U.S. OPENS WAY TO DEBT TALKS WITH ALL NATIONS

President Willing to Entertain New Negotiations but Can Make No Definite Offer of Revision or of General Conference.

DATE OF SPECIAL MESSAGE INDEFINITE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — The prospect of continued international war debt discussion in the near future grew today as word came from authoritative sources that the Hoover administration had indicated to France and other debtors its amenability to such negotiations.

While administration leaders followed intently the efforts of France to form a new Cabinet, Secretary of State Stimson conferred at length, at his home, with Ambassador Paul Claudel of France, who went there through a heavy snowstorm.

It was said later, in an entirely reliable source, that the United States had informed Paris, and other debt centers as well, that President Hoover was willing to entertain new debt negotiations. He has indicated to them indirectly, however, it was said, that no definite offer of debt revision can be given, and that open opposition will be expressed to any general debt conference.

White House Conference.

Stimson, Secretary Mills of the Treasury and Governor George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank held a conference with President Hoover for more than two hours in the late afternoon, indicating as they emerged that there had been discussion of war debts in connection with the general condition of world economic affairs.

Asked if some new move by the administration was imminent, the Treasury Secretary replied, with a smile: "Nothing that could not have been anticipated."

He declined to elaborate upon this remark, and, when asked if the President's special message to Congress might be transmitted soon, he replied "might" was a good word. He added there was no certainty of this, however.

Message May be Delayed.

Intimation was given that some move was in process of planning by the administration, but any hint as to its direction was carefully hidden by officials.

Pending some definite action among European debtors over the week-end, it was indicated the President would withhold his promised special debt message to Congress beyond the date tentatively set for its dispatch next week.

Representative Britten (Rep.), Illinois, introduced, without debate, a bill to place a tax on Americans holding private and public securities of such foreign nations as are in default on debt payments to the United States.

PARIS WANTS CLEAR REVISION PROMISE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Convinced that negotiations with the United States on the war debts problem should be pursued, Joseph Paul-Boncour tonight definitely accepted the task of forming a new French Ministry.

Paul-Boncour at the same time expressed his belief that the Government is bound by the vote of the Chamber of Deputies which resulted in the resignation of Premier Herriot's Cabinet and by which France failed to pay its war debts instalment due Dec. 15.

It is generally expected, however, that, as soon as the new Ministry can function smoothly, it will give thorough consideration to the debt situation and to relations with the United States, particularly if Paul-Boncour becomes the new Foreign Minister, as is generally expected.

The ideal in perfecting the new Ministry, the Premier-designate said, is that of forming a "union of the left parties," except that the Socialists will not take part. Paul-Boncour was first elected to the Chamber of Deputies as an Inde-

SNOWSTORM IN WASHINGTON; BONUS SEEKERS PUT TO WORK

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — A steady snow tonight had covered Washington a foot deep, delaying traffic but giving thousands of men jobs clearing the streets.

It had fallen since early morning at a rate of about an inch an hour. It is the heaviest fall in 10 years but was not expected to equal the 1922 mark of 28 inches.

The district of Columbia late in the day called for more than 3000 men to clear streets and sidewalks, using 150 trucks and 45 snowplows to keep main streets and sidewalks clear. This brought cheer to the crowded missions and shelters.

Among those who found jobs were many bonus-seeking veterans who a few days ago marched on Congress with petitions. They marched up the hill again today and were given work clearing the walks. Another similar detachment was cutting into the drifts around the White House doors.

The snowstorm hit Baltimore, too. It was the heaviest fall for December in 45 years, with the Weather Bureau predicting 18 inches by morning. All shipping was at a standstill.

GARNER OPPOSES TWO-WEEK HOLIDAY RECESS FOR CONGRESS

Speaker Thinks Session Should Be Resumed Tuesday of Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Holding out for a three-day Christmas recess for Congress, Speaker Garner today gave to newspaper men his views of Yuletide holidays in general.

"My idea is that everybody who has got a job will be mighty glad to have a vacation from Friday until Tuesday, and that the eight or 10 million people out of work would be mighty happy to have three days of work," he said.

Garner wants Congress to recess Friday and return Tuesday, but some legislators want to return not until after New Year's.

AMY JOHNSON LANDS IN FRANCE

Assured of New Record on Homeward Flight.

By the Associated Press.

LE BOURGET, France, Dec. 17. —Amy Johnson reached here at 4:03 p. m. today on her flight from Cape Town to London and was bitterly disappointed because she had not cut the record for that flight "nearly as much as I had hoped."

Miss Johnson left Oran, Algeria, at 6:30 a. m. today. She reached here six days and eight hours after taking off from Cape Town. She telephoned to her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, that she would not resume her flight to England until 10 a. m. tomorrow. While Miss Johnson failed to equal her own record-breaking flight which she made southward from England to South Africa, she is assured of a new record for the northward jaunt. Victor Smith holds the present record at 11 days and 15 hours.

Falling Icicle Kills Boy.

DANVILLE, Ill., Dec. 17.—Leo Lourance, 13 years old, was fatally injured here today when a huge icicle, which had formed at the end of a sewer emptying into a river, fell on his head, crushing his skull. He and a companion, Leonard Spencer Johnson, were cutting at the bottom on the icicle when it suddenly buckled, the upper portion, weighing several hundred pounds, falling about 10 feet.

SAYS INSULL GOT $2,000,000 LOAN; POSTED $400,000

HE HAD BORROWED LARGE SUMS BEFORE

Witness Asserts It Was Gerard Swope's Business, Not His, to Find Out About Responsibility.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Co., testified again today in the bankruptcy proceedings of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

He underwent further examination by Lewis F. Jacobson of Chicago, counsel for petitioning creditors, concerning Young's knowledge of the Insull financial structure at the time the General Electric lent Samuel Insull $2,000,000 in December, 1931.

This was Young's second and last day as a witness in the hearing before Referee John Joyce, at which Jacobson has sought to fix an approximate time when New York financial interests knew of the impending collapse of the Insull utility structure.

Young said that last February in a conversation with the former Chicago utilities magnate, he learned that Insull was not able to meet his obligations.

Young reiterated previous testimony that he did not question Insull as to what he wanted the money for. He said that he and General Electric's Executive Committee knew that Insull was under heavy obligations, but that he was a big customer and it was not unusual for him to want to borrow a million or two.

"Had he borrowed large amounts from the company in the past?" Jacobson asked.

"Between 1912 and 1915 in the early days of the Middle West Securities Co., I believe it was, the General Electric Co. loaned Mr. Insull some money," Young replied.

"What was the amount of the loan at that time?" "I can't recall. I was not chairman of the board at that time."

$400,000 Securities Put Up.

It was brought out that Insull put up securities valued at $400,000 as security for the $2,000,000 loan.

"With the market and stocks going up and down," said Jacobson, "didn't you figure that $400,000 that was good on Dec. 11 might be in the red on Dec. 12?"

Young agreed that he did, but because Insull agreed to guarantee the note personally he expected him to "margin up" on the collateral if such a condition arose.

"That was all taken up in the original conversation with Mr. Insull," Young said.

Jacobson then asked questions tending to determine whether Young knew Insull was bankrupt at the time of the loan negotiations. Young said he didn't know Insull was in any financial difficulties at that time.

"You believe Samuel Insull is broke now, don't you?" Jacobson asked.

"I suppose he is," Young replied. "I have not probed into his private affairs."

"Didn't you know," Jacobson persisted, "that Mr. Insull was financially irresponsible in December when he offered his endorsement to you for the loan; that he was broke?"

"No," Young replied.

"Wasn't it your business to find out about the financial ability of borrowers from your company?"

"Mr. Swope's Business."

"I didn't consider myself responsible for following out the details of the financial arrangement," Young said. "That was Mr. Swope's (Gerard Swope, president of General Electric) business primarily, not mine."

The Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was thrown into receivership on April 16 after Chicago and New York bankers had attempted to "freeze" bank loans for a six-months period in an effort to prevent the receivership. Young testified yesterday that he had personally taken part in efforts to effect a "standstill agreement," whereby the banks would not make demands for additional collateral for half a year. He called on officers of the Irving Trust Co. and the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., which had shown a disinclination to become party to such an arrangement.

Jacobson attempted to today to adduce testimony from Young, in-

GIVERS TO RELIEF FUND ASKED FOR ADDITIONAL HELP

OVER HALF WAY AT LAST REPORT

Employe Division Only One Likely to Exceed Quota With 60 Per Cent Already Obtained.

Workers in the United Relief Campaign, now just over the half-way mark toward the $3,850,000 goal, are continuing their efforts to raise funds for the support of 82 relief agencies of the Community Fund, Jewish Federation and Catholic Charities.

The appeal which was to have ended Thursday is to go on until the goal is reached. Solicitors at their last meeting, Friday, reported pledges totaling $1,930,300. They will not meet again until Wednesday, when the gathering will be at Hotel Jefferson, instead of at Hotel Statler where they have assembled previously.

Plans for continuing the campaign will be discussed by Ethan A. H. Shepley this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock during the Community Forum period on radio station KMOX. Rabbi Samuel Thurman of the United Hebrew Temple will be another speaker.

Check Back Work Now.

The first canvass of prospective contributors has been virtually completed and the work from now on will be largely a matter of going back over the lists, seeking larger contributions from those who have already given and gifts of some sort from those who have previously refused.

The employe division is leading the campaign organization so far in the percentage of its quota raised, and is the only division expected to exceed its quota. Its record at the last meeting was $620,490, or 60 per cent of its quota. The tabulation for this division includes only the gifts of employes, the contributions of the companies for which they work being listed in the totals of the general division or in the larger subscriptions division.

The larger subscriptions division has reported $1,071,467, or 46 per cent of its quota; the general division, $195,143, or 44 per cent; the county division, $41,000, or 39 per cent, and the Negro division, $2200, or 37 per cent.

Some New Cases.

Instances of acute suffering among the 1500 families added to the relief rolls since Monday have been reported to the campaign headquarters at Seventh and Locust street. A World War veteran who is on crutches as a result of an industrial accident appealed to the Red Cross when his wife became ill and there was no food in the house. Another family taken under care by the Red Cross consisted of a man and his wife who had been bundled in heavy clothes and walked about their flat hour after hour because they had no coal.

An 82-year-old musician now at Barnes Hospital for the fifth time in the last six years is one of those who are being helped through funds raised in previous campaigns. Although physically handicapped since birth he has paid for his hospital care until his last two visits.

Why They Gave Only $1.

Solicitors continue to report contributions requiring unusual sacrifices. One who was invited into an attractive West End home found the family bundled in overcoats and the explanation was made that they were trying to get along with very little fuel. This family, "trying to keep up appearances," gave only $1 instead of the $100 given in other campaigns.

A social worker employed by the Provident Association, who is paid $90 a month, pledged $73.33, enough, under the minute plan, to maintain the participating agencies for 10 minutes during 1933. This is based on the calculation that private giving must provide $7.33 for each minute the agencies operate in addition to funds available from the $4,600,000 relief bond issue.

Gifts by Other Workers.

Two workers employed by Children's Aid Society who are paid $80 a month gave $40 and $36, and the total pledged by the Society's employes was $622, or one and a half per cent of the payroll. The Provident Association reported about the same percentage. Forty-eight Visiting Nurses gave $877, and the 37 workers at St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross subscribed $747.

U. S. DEFICIT FOR YEAR UP TO $1,142,473,000

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — The Government increased its deficit for the fiscal year to $1,142,473,015 on Dec. 15, placing $418,764,000 in the sinking fund for public debt retirement.

On that date the Government had collected from all sources $876,693,402, and had spent $2,019,166,417. Secretary of Treasury Mills in his annual report to Congress estimated that the present fiscal year would end in June with a deficit of $1,644,344,757, if the payment to the sinking fund were made.

By Dec. 15 last year the deficit was $1,252,631,150. By the end of the fiscal year the Government was nearly $3,000,000,000 in the red.

While the contribution to the sinking fund is mandatory, there is no required date for transferring it. At the time the money was deposited in that fund the Government had paid out $574,751,094 on maturing one-year notes and had received, on sale of securities, $674,812,900.

The general fund collections, including taxes, customs and miscellaneous receipts, had totaled since July 1, $834,062,350, while the expenses, including sinking fund and interest, mounted to $1,975,300,256, leaving a net general fund deficit of $1,141,237,905.

Income tax collections from July 1 to Dec. 15 totaled only $236,154,196, as compared with $407,255,530 a year ago. Miscellaneous internal revenue amounted to $362,506,120, as compared with $249,975,016. Customs duties brought in only $128,995,288, against $184,338,492.

Indians on British Columbia Craft Were Returning From Basketball Game.

By the Associated Press.

BELLA COOLA, B. C., Dec. 17.—The small gasoline boat "J & J," with a party of 21 Indians aboard, has been missing since Wednesday on a trip to Bella Bella, on an inlet off Queen Charlotte Sound. It was last seen amid heavy ice, unable to make any headway.

The "J & J" and the small steamer Venture were returning from Bella Bella, fighting their way through heavy ice blocking the channel. Outbound from here, the Venture had to break ice all the way and the gasoline boat followed behind it. Returning, however, the "J & J" fell behind, and the ice closed in around it, blocking its course.

The ice in the inlet between here and Bella Bella, about 75 miles, has been the heaviest ever known, old residents said, following extremely cold weather followed by flood conditions on streams flowing into the inlet.

The "J & J," owned by John Harstadt, had taken the Indians to a basketball game at Bella Bella and was returning when caught in the ice.

CUTTING WANTS $15,000,000 TO AID NEEDY TRANSIENTS

Senator Says New Mexico and Other Southwestern States Are Overrun With Wanderers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Help for the Southwestern States, particularly New Mexico, which are being flooded with wanderers in need of charity, was described today by Senator Cutting (Rep.), New Mexico, as one of the basic objectives of his bill for a $15,000,000 transient relief fund.

Asserting that he expected the Manufactures Committee to pass on the proposal within a few days, Cutting explained that: "New Mexico, like the other Southwestern states, is full of transients. Many of them come to our part of the country in the winter because it is warmer, while others are just on their way through to California.

"Of course, New Mexico and the other states take as much care of them as possible, but they can not be expected to take care of these transients when they have enough to do to take care of their own needy."

VERSE ON BROWN'S HIGH HAT READ IN CONGRESS BY MEMBER

Lanham of Texas Author of Rhyme On Postmaster-General's Car.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The incident of Postmaster-General Brown's high hat, for which he said he tried to have the Government buy an automobile to fit, has been set to verse by Representative Lanham (Dem.), Texas.

His verse entitled "A Brown Study" was read to the House today by Representative Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama. It follows in part:

The ordinary motor car,
However low and flat,
May leave brown derbies as they are,
But not the Brown high hat.

A car that tilts to dodge the tile.
If Jones bears all expense,
Is this in high official style
A capital offense?

So, though the public look askance
At our Potomac town,
Its General, bound for fete or dance,
Must do the thing up Brown.

TOWN'S SANTA FATALLY BURNED

Whiskers Catch Fire When Tending Store at Hope, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

HOPE, Mo., Dec. 17.—Oliver Stock, 23 years old, a school teacher, died tonight in a Jefferson City Hospital from burns suffered today as he was about to leave his home to play Santa Claus at a community celebration.

His whiskers caught fire as he was putting wood in a stove. The whiskers were sewed on to his bright red uniform and he was unable to remove them before the fire spread to the rest of his costume. Stock's wife was burned in an effort to extinguish the flames.

MacDonald Off to Lossiemouth.

BLAST WRECKS FOUR-FAMILY FLAT BUILDING

Only Occupants of Place at 1841 O'Fallon Street Were Away at Time—Fireman Hurt.

An explosion destroyed the two-story, four-family flat building at 1841 O'Fallon street, a few minutes before 10 o'clock last night.

No one was injured in the wrecking of the house, owned by Ignazio La Rosa, who was the only occupant of the building. He lived on the first floor with his wife and two children, but all were away at the time of the blast, and La Rosa told policemen they had not been at the house since 7:30 a. m. yesterday.

Police and Fire Department officials believed, from their first survey of the burning ruins, that an accidental explosion of gas wrecked the building. Fire Chief de Voto said, "It looks like gas to me. It does not look like a bomb explosion. The whole thing went at once."

Chief de Voto estimated the loss at $5000 on building and $3000 on contents. The building was insured.

City detectives waited for firemen to extinguish the fire, so that they could make a closer search for the cause of the blast. La Rosa, who runs a fruit store at 1432 Biddle street, was questioned by the police. He said his family had been at the store through the day and evening.

Windows of adjoining houses, and of a house across the street, were shattered by the explosion. It did not appear that any of the adjacent buildings had been damaged structurally.

At 1835 O'Fallon, two doors east of the explosion, Sam Renda, who lives at 1829, was just saying good-night to the family of Mrs. Anna Camprise, when the explosion came, and a sheet of fire arose from the wreck. He helped the family to the sidewalk, where other neighbors joined them. None had smelled gas, so far as was learned, and none had seen anything which might indicate the placing of a bomb or other explosive.

Mrs. Sophie Bass said she was in her home at No. 1837, and that her son, an invalid, and her 19-year-old daughter had gone to bed, when the explosion broke their windows. The sick boy was carried out by John Mangapenello, who lives at No. 1847.

Fred Denny Jr., at No. 1843, across an alley from the wrecked building, said the building went in a flash, without any preliminary sound.

Ralph Schnitzer, a fireman attached to Engine Co. No. 8, was injured when struck by falling bricks. Schnitzer, who lives at 205 South Broadway, was taken to City Hospital.

He was one of a group of firemen, directed by Chief De Voto, who pulled down a weakened section of the wall at the northwest corner of the building.

LaRosa, when seen by reporters at a neighbor's house, said he had no idea as to the cause of the explosion. He said he left a fire burning in a basement stove on leaving the house yesterday, as he usually did on cold days.

SENATE VOTES FREEDOM BY 1944 TO THE PHILIPPINES

Hawes - Cutting Bill Is Adopted After Provision for Plebiscite Is Stricken Out and Quota on Sugar Is Lowered.

MEASURE IS SENT TO CONFERENCE

President Hoover's Veto of Independence Legislation as Passed by the Upper House Is Said to Be Inevitable.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Freedom by 1944 for the Philippine Islands was voted today by the Senate in the face of warnings that President Hoover would veto the legislation.

The measure, sponsored by Senators Cutting (Rep.), New Mexico, and Hawes (Dem.), Missouri, was approved without a roll call.

It now goes to conference with the House, which last session overwhelmingly approved a bill by Representative Hare (Dem.), South Carolina, granting independence in eight years.

The vote, coming after 10 days of debate, made it the first time any kind of independence legislation has received the indorsement of both branches of Congress in the years of agitation of the question.

Radical Difference in Bills.

The bill differs radically from that passed by the House.

The latter approved a measure to withdraw American sovereignty eight years after final enactment and meanwhile duty-free imports into the United States of sugar, coconut oil and hemp products, chief exports of the Filipinos, would be restricted.

The Senate bill not only lengthens the transition period in which the islanders may become accustomed to quasi-self government, but lowers the quotas on sugar and coconut oil, and provides that when the islands by vote approve a Constitution this shall be deemed an expression by them for irrevocable freedom.

It was the substitution of the latter provision for the original Hawes-Cutting clause calling for withdrawal of American sovereignty only after the Filipinos had voted for independence at the end of the 12-year period that led some Senators to predict a presidential veto.

Change Called "Indefensible."

The question of adopting a constitution would arise, under the bill passed today, as soon as the Philippine Legislature could arrange for it, and opponents of the amendment to make the vote on this tantamount to a declaration for freedom contended this was "indefensible."

This amendment was offered by Senator Byrnes (Dem.) South Carolina, and was approved 44 to 29.

Senator Vandenberg (Rep.) Michigan, made a bitter attack on this provision, saying it left no way for the Filipinos to express themselves, if they find fault with their economic disadvantages, "except through revolution which would precipitate intervention."

Borah for Amendment.

Republican leaders predicted President Hoover would veto the bill, especially if the plebisite provision is excluded.

Senator Hawes made a dramatic last-minute appeal for independence, but, like other supporters of the measure as it came from committee, opposed the Byrnes amendment.

Senator Cutting was not present when the bill passed, as he was confined to his home with a cold.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and Senator Borah (Rep.) Idaho, approved of the Byrnes amendment, saying it provided no better test for the islanders to determine whether they wanted freedom.

Provision for Taxes.

The Senate bill would make the import quotas effective for seven years. For the next five years preceding independence, the islands would be authorized to collect export taxes and use the money to help pay off their bonded indebtedness. The House bill makes no provision for such taxes.

The taxes would be 5 per cent of the normal American tariff the

BEER AND REPEAL BEING PRESSED TO EARLY DECISIONS

REPEAL UP AFTER BANK BILL IN SENATE

Leaders in Upper Branch of Congress Confident Resolution Will Be Approved There This Session.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Senate leaders formulated plans today for consideration of prohibition repeal shortly after the Christmas recess, provided the Senate Judiciary Committee now working on a repeal resolution is prepared to report by that time.

Meanwhile, House prohibitionists began formulating plans to fight the Democratic beer bill, with the center of their attack directed at the 3.2 per cent alcoholic content provision.

Senator McNary, assistant Republican leader, said the repeal question probably would be next on the Senate program after disposition of the Glass banking bill scheduled to come up Jan. 5.

Meanwhile Chairman Blaine of the Judiciary Subcommittee framing the resolution said that group would speed its work. He said he was not sure, however, when the committee would be ready to report.

Dry States' Protection.

It already has agreed tentatively on the wording of a clause to prevent liquor from being shipped into dry states, but has not decided how the resolution should be submitted to the states, or whether an effort should be made to outlaw the saloon.

Senate leaders are confident a repeal resolution will be approved in the Senate at this session, but its final fate, they say, is up to Speaker Garner in the House, who has indicated he will not allow anything but straight repeal to be considered.

Collier Is Confident.

Efforts are to be made by prohibitionists to reduce the beer alcohol percentage to 2.75 and to place further restrictions on the method of distribution by amendments.

Expressing confidence that the measure will meet with House approval, Chairman Collier of the Ways and Means Committee said, however, there is no doubt an amendment will be offered to reduce the alcoholic content. He said he expected at least 126 Democrats to support the bill as it stands.

Representative Christopherson (Rep.), South Dakota, who led the opposition to the Democratic proposal for submission of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, said he was "certain an amendment will be submitted to cut the alcoholic content (of beer) to 2.75 per cent." He said it had not been decided who would propose it.

Speaker Garner said "the House will get as much time as it wants to consider the beer bill," and expressed the opinion the measure would be disposed of in that branch before the Christmas holidays.

Representative Snell of New York, Republican leader, declined to say whether he would support the measure, but said it was "not an issue to be fought out on party lines."

"I believe it will pass, but I don't know yet," Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader said. "There will be a fight against the alcoholic content and probably some other provisions."

Representative Milligan of Missouri, assistant Democratic whip, said that on the basis of an incomplete poll, indications were that a majority necessary to secure passage would answer the roll call.

Last spring the O'Connor-Hull beer bill was defeated in the House 228 to 169. Eighty-five Democrats and 84 Republicans supported the measure and 112 Democrats and 116 Republicans voted against it. It requires only a majority for passage.

Milligan said, however, that some of the Democrats and Republicans who voted for the repeal proposal on the first day of Congress would not favor the beer bill, but, on the other hand, a few who voted in opposition would support the Collier measure. The repeal amendment, requiring a two-thirds majority for adoption, was defeated 272 to 144, or by six votes.

Representative Lea (Dem.) California, leader of the wine bloc, said that under House rules, an amendment to the beer measure, to legalize wine, would not be germane, and that his group would seek legalization of wine through an amendment to the bill if and when it reached the Senate.

pendent Socialist when he was 33 years old.

The Premier-designate in notifying President Lebrun of his decision to undertake the formation of a new Ministry, said he would spend Sunday preparing his Cabinet. His decision came only after he had consulted once more with former Premier Herriot, who earlier in the day had declined a post in the new ministerial combination.

Socialists Sympathetic.

The Socialists, while expressing sympathy for the effort Paul-Boncour will make as Premier, could not accept his offer, he said. Without the Socialists, who will not participate, the ministry will be somewhat like that of the resigned Herriot Cabinet.

It was said in some circles that Paul-Boncour's ministry might include the following: Premier and Foreign Affairs, Paul-Boncour; Interior, former Premier Theodore Steeg; Justice, Camille Chautemps; War, Edouard Deladier; Finance, Louis de Chappedelaine or Georges Bonnet; Budget, Francois Pietri; Air, Laurent Eynac.

Paul-Boncour, one of the greatest orators in France, at the recent dedication of the monument at Meaux to the war dead, made possible by contributions of many thousands of American citizens, gave one of the best and shortest speeches of his career. He is a celebrated lawyer.

Debt Problem Waits.

The troublesome debt problem for the time appeared to be dropping out of the picture as the center of of the political stage was held by the formation of the Cabinet and the agreement on the Premier-designate. His entourage informed the Associated Press tonight that the debt question by the very necessity of things had, for the moment, been put to one side.

Sources closed to him declared that the debts problem and particularly the relations of France with the United States would be earnestly examined at the earliest possible opportunity.

Regarding the debts payment due the United States on Dec. 15, Paul-Boncour said he felt the Chamber of Deputies' vote this week bound any future Government and that he considered it necessary that negotiations with the United States be pursued.

A high official of the French Government voiced the opinion today that the Chamber of Deputies might alter its decision to postpone payment of the war debts if the United States in some form or other would clearly give the French nation a promise that debts would be revised.

FREEDOM BY 1944 FOR PHILIPPINES VOTED BY SENATE

first year and would increase 5 per cent each year through the five-year period.

The import quotas, which their sponsors said would maintain the status quo of free trade, would be as follows:

Sugar, 585,000 tons of raw and 30,000 tons of refined.

Hemp products, 3,000,000 pounds.

Just before final passage several amendments were rejected. One, a complete substitute by Senator King (Dem.), Utah, would have freed the islands in from three to five years. Another, by Senator Dickinson (Rep.), Iowa, would have put pearl buttons on a quota basis to protect the button industry at Muscatine, Ia.

Pending consummation of independence, the United States would be represented in the islands by a High Commissioner.

The United States also reserves the right to retain its present military, naval and other reservations in the islands, and that after independence is complete, the United States may obtain, by lease or purchase, any additional territory in the islands it may deem necessary.

Attitude of Filipino Mission.

The Philippine Legislative Mission which since last January has been fighting for independence here, was elated at the Senate vote today, but dissatisfied with provisions of the bill excluding Filipino immigration and the low total for duty-free sugar importations.

Speaker Manuel Roxas of the Insular House, as joint chairman of the mission, said tonight he and proponents of the islanders' cause in the Senate would fight "to the last ditch" to have the immigration and sugar consideration changed when the bill is altered in conference with House leaders.

It was learned tonight that a tentative agreement has been made between Senate and House friends of independence to work in conference for final approval of the bill containing the immigration limit of 100 annually, and 850,000 long tons of duty-free sugar imports as contained in the bill passed by the House last session.

With these considerations included in the final draft of the bill, the Filipino delegation would feel that its work of the last 11 months had been well rewarded, it was indicated after Senate adjournment today.

The mission has endeavored to get the most favorable kind of a measure and, except for the two mentioned disagreements, a general feeling of satisfaction prevails among the Philippine leaders, who represent the Island Legislature.

dicating that when the bankers finally concluded there was no possibility of averting a receivership they worked out the matter of a receivership to their own "best advantage."

"Don't you know," he asked, "that everything was done to stifle other creditors who would have law suits against the company until April 16?" "I do not," Young replied.

In response to questions dealing with his services as an intermediary between New York bankers and Insull, during the negotiations for a "stand-still agreement" on collateral, Young replied:

"My efforts through February and March (1932) were to see whether there was any way of avoiding receivership. Because I knew well that if it could not be avoided, many thousands of investors might suffer. That is why we tried to carry that company along."

Young was excused after more than an hour on the stand. The hearing will be resumed Monday.

LEADERS SUBMIT EMERGENCY FARM MORTGAGE PLAN

Would Virtually Halt Foreclosures for Six Months to Meet 'Distress' Situation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A fourfold emergency program for preventing wholesale foreclosures on $9,000,000,000 of farm mortgages and to enable the American farmer to keep his home was recommended today by a group of agricultural leaders.

After deliberating for a week on how to remedy what was described as the "distress situation" due to unpaid farm mortgages, the credit committee set up by national farm organizations outlined its plan as follows:

"1. A quickening of public interest to the end that private adjustments between mortgage holders and their debtors be made as quickly as possible and on terms commensurate with the ability of the debtor to pay.

"2. With respect to the relationship of the Federal land banks to farmers who have executed mortgages through their own farm association, it is recommended that the Federal Land banks should have all possible legitimate assistance in caring for deserving borrowers who have become delinquent in their payments.

"3. It is recommended that arbitration boards be established, to which boards debtors and creditors can apply for assistance in making necessary readjustments.

"4. It is recommended that Federal funds set up for the purpose of the reconstruction program shall be shared with agriculture in refinancing mortgage indebtedness."

To Stop Foreclosures.

Explaining that a permanent policy, "possibly involving the co-ordination or reshaping of the services of existing credit agencies, depends somewhat on the plans of the incoming administration," the statement added that "the immediate problem is to stop foreclosures in so far as possible during the next six months."

Any plan, the leaders said, "should require all Federal Land Banks to refrain from all foreclosures for a period of six months, except where there has been an actual abandonment, and in so far as possible to make adjustments with debtors."

A long-time program for aid to agriculture is to be worked out by the farm leaders for presentation to the Roosevelt administration after March 4.

Rules for Settlement.

Recommending that a debt adjustment commission be set up in each agricultural county to operate under Federal authority and to be composed of "competent, public-spirited citizens serving without pay," the committee suggested the following rules for reaching an equitable settlement:

"1. No mortgage would be foreclosed as long as the farm owner continues to pay annually toward taxes and interest an amount equal to the customary landlord's share from the farm.

"2. In cases where the face value of the mortgage is greater than the net foreclosure value of the farm, the mortgage should be scaled down to the foreclosure value and refunded on terms which the farm owner can reasonably be expected to meet. Both debtors and creditors would benefit by such adjustment in most cases.

"3. Where there are other substantial debts aside from the first mortgage indebtedness, it is suggested that the debt adjustment commission confer with all creditors, endeavoring to effect the total debt of the farmer to a sum which the farm owner could reasonably be expected to handle. The legal rights of each creditor would be equitably considered in such adjustments.

Use of R. F. C. Funds.

"In cases where the creditor can not, or will not, refund or adjust the mortgage as an alternative to foreclosure, the Credit committee holds that the funds of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or other Government funds, which have been freely used in salvaging the equities of industrial institutions, should be likewise used for salvaging the equities of farmers."

Approximately 60 per cent of the 6,000,000 farms in the United States are still free of mortgage, the committee said, adding that more than 60 per cent of the mortgaged farms are appraised at values that represent sound values for investors.

"The effect of an improvement of the farm mortgage situation," it continued, "would be immediately felt by every urban community and by the financial institutions interested in the mortgage situation."

The report was signed by C. G. Henry, director, American Cotton Association; E. A. O'Neal, president, American Farm Bureau Federation; L. J. Taber, National Master, the Grange; John Simpson, president, the Farmers Union; H. W. Thatcher, Farmers' National Grain Corporation; O. O. Woolf, National Livestock Marketing Association; Dan A. Wallace, the the Farmer and Farm Stock and Home, and C. V. Gregory, the Prairie Farmer.

APPROACHES TO RAILROAD BRIDGE IN ILLINOIS BLOWN UP

PAWNEE, Ill., Dec. 17.—Both approaches to the Chicago & Illinois Midland Railroad Bridge between here and Sicily, Ill., were dynamited and destroyed today. The outrage was attributed to the coal fields warfare in progress for several months. The road is the main outlet for the coal output in the Taylorville region.

The dynamiting was accomplished in spite of the patrol of national guardsmen in the district. Sheriff's forces and railroad police also cooperate in guarding the railroad property.

W. C. Hurst, senior vice-president of the railroad, said repairs would permit trains to use the bridge soon.

POWERS HAPGOOD, SOCIALIST LEADER, ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 17.—Powers Hapgood, nationally known Socialist and that party's candidate for Governor of Indiana at the last election, was wounded seriously here this evening when he was accidentally shot by William L. Hines, vice-president of the Columbia Conserve Co. The two men were engaged in target practice at a country estate south of the city, where the shooting took place.

Hapgood was shot in the abdomen and was taken to a hospital where a blood transfusion probably will be necessary.

City Will Require $8,000,000 A Year for Relief as Long As Present Unemployment Lasts

Bond Issue Supplying $4,600,000 of 1933 Needs—After Next Year New Source of Revenue Must Be Found.

A study of the expenditures for relief of unemployment and destitution in St. Louis this year and of estimated requirements for 1933 indicates that the need is growing and almost certainly will continue at the present level, or higher, as long as unemployment exists on the present scale.

The requirement for years immediately following 1933 probably lies somewhere between the $5,500,000 dispensed this year and the $8,450,000 sought for next year. This compares with an average of about $1,000,000 a year before the depression.

Where have the funds come from and where will they be found in the future?

As the foundation for this year's relief work, with an average of 25,000 families on the relief rolls and about 125,000 workers out of jobs, there was the $4,016,000 of voluntary private subscriptions to the Community Fund, Crisis Committee and other organized charitable campaigns.

To this was added $860,043 appropriated by the municipal government of St. Louis out of funds raised by various special taxes.

The remainder, about $625,000 comes from the funds borrowed by Gov. Caulfield for the city from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Of the R. F. C. item, $353,581.06 has been received and there is a balance of $275,348.94 in the loan authorized, which the City expects to receive and turn over to relief agencies this month.

Two Sources for 1933.

For 1933 the United Relief Campaign combines the efforts of the various groups which heretofore have sought voluntary private subscriptions. The objective of this campaign is $3,850,000, which is far short of estimated needs. For the remainder, the city's relief bond issue of $4,600,000 is relied upon, making a total fund of $8,450,000 sought for next year's needs.

Out of the $4,600,000 relief bond issue, $3,600,000 is intended for direct relief and $1,000,000 for so-called work relief. The Board of Aldermen has passed a resolution asking various departments to submit proposals for projects to be financed out of the work relief fund. The various institutions which participate in the voluntary funds will not share in the bond issue funds, and, of course, all bond money is to be spent in the city. In the voluntary funds, St. Louis County citizens share both as contributors and recipients.

The municipal government's contribution of $860,000 this year was made possible principally by the tolls collected on the municipal bridge and the additional half-cent a gallon tax on gasoline. Since the city turned its Free Bridge into a revenue producing public utility last July, it has collected $366,092 in tolls at 10 cents for passenger automobiles and 15 cents for commercial vehicles. This is at the rate of $941,000 a year. The additional tax on gasoline went into effect last February and it will produce about $400,000 a year.

Reason for Bond Issue.

With the increasing demands for relief of destitution, it was evident the city government's contribution of less than $1,500,000 from bridge tolls and gasoline tax would not complete the fund needed for 1933 even if the public subscribed all of the $3,850,000 set as the maximum to be expected from that source. The difficulty of raising the public fund has been demonstrated in the fact that in the time originally set for duration of the campaign only a little more than half has been pledged, but the campaign is being continued.

In view of the inadequacy of the special taxes and the decline in general city tax revenues, the city administration, advised by a citizens' committee, decided upon the bond issue, which the voters approved at the November election. In order to avoid additional taxation to pay interest and sinking fund on these bonds, the Board of Aldermen extended the bridge toll ordinance so as to devote the tolls to payment of interest and principal of the bond issue until retired. It was estimated this will take from five to seve years.

Consequently, the city's bridge—that is, the income from it—is virtually mortgaged for that period, a fact that has a vital bearing on the question, where may the city look for needed relief funds in the years to follow 1933?

As to Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds, no provision has been made beyond the close of this year. Whether such funds will be available from that source next year and later is uncertain.

It is intended the relief bonds are to be sold during the year as the needs develop, so that interest will not start to accumulate a sooner than is necessary. Before any of the bonds are sold a suit to test their validity is to be taken to the State Supreme Court. The city's special counsel has advised that they are legal, but that a ruling by the Supreme Court would cause them to bring a better price.

As soon as the bonds are offered, the City will begin to set aside the bridge tolls in a special fund to provide for interest and retirement, and thereafter no proceeds from the bridge charges will be availa for direct relief.

The only new source of revenue found by the city for meeting this situation is its municipal bridge producing nearly $1,000,000 a year. Additional revenue from public utility ownership probably will be available when and if the city carries out its recently announced policy of public ownership of the mass transportation system. Experts who assisted in formulation of the city's policy estimated profits from this source would exceed $1,000,000 a year.

AUNT OF WOMAN SEEKING FRANK ESTATE TESTIFIES

GAVE GIRL LITTLE DIRECT SUPPORT

Witness in Deposition Declares She Paid for Education With Money Ex-Congressman Supplied.

Attorneys for Nathan Frank's estate filed in Federal Court yesterday a deposition intended to offset Mrs. Gladys Catania's claim that she is the adopted daughter of the former Congressman and entitled to his entire $4,000,000 estate.

The deposition, that of Mrs. Naomi F. Nelson, of New York City, an aunt of Mrs. Catania, was taken here Dec. 8. In it Mrs. Nelson told of 13 years' acquaintance with Frank during which he supported her. She had charge of her niece during that time and denied, in the deposition, that Frank ever had said he would adopt the child or ever had provided for the child's support directly except for a short time.

Mrs. Catania's suit, one of six still pending against the Frank estate, was dismissed on technical grounds last September, but recently was reinstated. The plaintiff, 24 years old, red-haired and the wife of a New York night club entertainer, alleges Frank paid for her support and education and that his acts constituted adoption.

Says Frank Helped Her.

Mrs. Nelson testified that Mrs. Catania was the daughter of her sister, Mrs. Omer Wood, who died of tuberculosis at Phoenix, Ariz., in 1913. Visiting Mrs. Wood shortly before her death, Mrs. Nelson said she was asked to take care of the child and after the funeral did return to St. Louis with her.

In October of that year, Mrs. Nelson testified, she went to Frank's office to see about a stenographic position. At the time, she said, she was suffering from a nervous breakdown caused by the death of her sister and mother in the same year.

"Mr. Frank asked me why I seemed to be sad and the cause of my ill health and I told him I had lost my mother and sister and had a little girl to take care of," the witness said. "He volunteered to help me."

She related that Frank said she was "in no physical condition to take a position" and that if she cared to rest until in better health, he "would be glad" to pay her expenses.

Gave Her $150 a Month.

Her acceptance of the offer was the beginning of a friendship under which he supported her until her marriage in 1926, giving her $150 a month. She said that she paid the child's expenses from that amount, and that they lived in an apartment in the 4300 block of Olive street.

Frank visited the apartment two or three times a week, bringing the child candy, books and stationery. Mrs. Nelson said he once gave her a diamond brooch as a gift.

In 1916, Mrs. Nelson said, she was engaged to be married and told Frank of her intention to go to New York for that purpose.

"He seemed pleased to know I was going to be married," the witness said. "He spoke about Gladys, of course. He asked me to leave her here and let him put her in school and educate her. I asked if he would adopt her and take care of her and he said no, that he knew what to do."

Placed in Several Schools.

Mrs. Nelson said she suggested that he was then an elderly man and that if he should die, there would be no one to care for the child. "He said not to ask questions, that he would see she was taken care of," the witness said.

Together they selected a Catholic academy at Florissant, and put the child in school, according to the testimony. In conversation with the Mother Superior, they agreed Frank would be the child's guardian.

The child, known always by her right name of Gladys Wood, according to Mrs. Nelson, remained at Florissant until the school burned in 1919, then went briefly to another Catholic school here and in the summer of 1919 was sent to New York by Frank.

Other schooling followed in institutions of the same classification at Pleasantville, N. Y., and Fort Lee, N. J., and about 1921, Gladys was placed in public schools in New York City, according to her aunt.

In all that time, Mrs. Nelson said, she paid the child's expenses with her personal checks. The marriage plans which had taken her to New York had fallen through, she said, and Frank continued to visit her when he was in New York, about every month or six weeks.

Glayds, she said, was graduated from grammar school in 1924 and went for a time to high school, after which she and the child lived together briefly. A "personal misunderstanding" occurred and Gladys went back to the boarding place which has been her home during school days. It was after that time, according to Mrs. Nelson, that Frank paid directly for Gladys' support, and education at business college, lowering the amount of Mrs. Nelson's checks at the same time.

The witness declined to say whether there had been any "hostility or coolness" between herself and Frank then. She married in June, 1926, and Gladys a year later. She said Frank told her he once had given Gladys $250 for clothes and had paid $1200 for her business education. Frank visited the child throughout her school days, the witness said, and when in New York occasionally took her and Gladys to dinner together.

Letter to Frank Read.

During the testimony, a letter written by Mrs. Catania to Frank in December, 1927, was read to the witness. It described the former Congressman as "a wonderful friend," told of an expected child, asked him to "bury the hatchet" and help Mrs. Catania's husband to get employment. Mrs. Nelson was unable to explain if Mrs. Catania and Frank had had a disagreement.

Frank later did give the baby a present and its parents a check, Mrs. Nelson said. The letter is addressed to "My Dear Mr. Frank" and signed "Affectionately, Gladys." According to the testimony, Mrs. Catania never addressed him as other than "Mr. Frank" and he called her only "Gladys." Mrs. Nelson denied Gladys ever had claimed him as her adopted father.

After Frank's death in 1931, a lawyer called with Mrs. Catania and her husband to discuss the estate, Mrs. Nelson said, the lawyer giving his name as a "Mr. Luke" of St. Louis.

"I asked him the cause of his visit and the source of his information and he refused to tell me, because it was confidential," the witness said. "I told him I did not care to talk to him." She said she had seen Mrs. Catania only infrequently since then.

St. Louisan to Give Away 4000 Toys This Christmas

CHARLES J. GEVECKER

OWNER of a sheet metal works, and some of the toys he will give to needy children.

C. J. Gevecker Makes Annual Distribution Because of Happiness Donated Wagon Gave Him When Poor Boy.

Charles J. Gevecker, proprietor of a sheet metal works at 5020 Easton avenue, gives away toys to children of more than 1000 needy families at Christmas because when he was 7 years old his family was in straitened circumstances and he received a wagon at a Post-Dispatch newsboys' Christmas dinner.

Gevecker's father lost his money and business in the panic of 1893, forcing Charles to sell newspapers to contribute to the support of the family.

A newsboys' dinner was given at Christmas by the Post-Dispatch. "Because of that party, I am giving away as many toys as possible, which will total about 4000 items this year, to poor children each Christmas," said Gevecker. "I never will forget, nor can I describe, the thrill I received when a wagon was given me that night."

After four years as a newsboy he went to work in a shoe factory at the salary of $1.25 a week. He had a side line with the latter job. Early in the morning before work and at night after work he sold milk by lugging two five-gallon cans to customers' homes.

Ten years ago at Christmas, while Gevecker was hunting and fishing at Morse Mill in Jefferson County, he saw how the children of many needy farmers missed the fun of getting candy and toys from Santa Claus.

Since then, at 2 p. m. on Christmas day, several hundred children gather in a hotel at Morse's Mill and wait the arrival of St. Nick—impersonated by Gevecker—who gives each child toys and a bag of candy and nuts.

"They earn their presents, though," said Gevecker. "Each kid must come prepared to do some kind of a skit before he will be given a present. They can recite, dance a jig, sing, anything at all. And believe me, they practice for days ahead."

Has Received 1000 Letters.

Five years later, the children in the neighborhood of his store became wise to his toy gifts. He soon had a local following built up, which today reaches more than a thousand poor families in St. Louis.

He has received about a thousand leters to date, most of them in the handwriting of children, requesting toys. He is known to most of them as "Uncle Charlie." His mail comes addressed that way. Some children have even addressed him as "Santa Claus," and one called him "Uncle Sam."

The workshop, in the rear of Gevecker's business, is a veritable toyland. Instead of the atmosphere of a sheet metal workshop on entering the back room, there is an air of the toy department of a large downtown store, with hundreds of different kinds of toys strewn over the tables. Among the collection are dolls and cross-eyed ones, too, pianos, tractors, airplanes, automobiles, air rifles, games of all descriptions, animals, sewing machines and footballs.

The toys are delivered in the city two days before Christmas, with the assistance of members of the Concordia Country Club, of which Gevecker is president and founder. At each home, the toys are delivered without name—merely the saying of "Merry Christmas and with Santa Claus' best."

Gevecker, who lives at 3801 Holly Hill boulevard, is married but has no children, but his home is a haven for the neighbors' children.

Boy Injured by Street Car.

Guy Forcier Jr., 12 years old, 5374 Delmar boulevard, was slightly injured yesterday when he alighted from a west-bound Delmar street car near his home and walked behind it into the side of an eastbound car. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital.

NOTE OF WOMAN SAYS SHE ENDED LIFE OVER ILLNESS

Admiral Parsons' Stepdaughter Also Short of Funds, Letter to New York Police States.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Ill health and lack of money, it was learned tonight, were the averred motives that led Mrs. Reeves Brace, stepdaughter of a Rear Admiral, to hang herself with a silk stocking in her hotel room last night.

The reasons for her act were set forth in a letter to the police, inscribed "this will explain everything." The letter was not made public, but it was learned it contained $20, which Mrs. Brace said was all she had, to pay her hotel bill, and apologized to the police for causing them trouble by her suicide.

On a dressing table was a photograph of the young woman with this inscription written across it in white ink:

"May Be All for Best."

Beside the photograph were two cards. One read:

"This may be all for the best."

The second, addressed to Mrs. Brace's mother, Mrs. A. L. Parsons, wife of Rear Admiral Parsons, chief of the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks, read:

"This is what you told me to do."

Admiral Parsons came here from Washington to take charge of the body.

In Troy, Inspector Moore said he was only a "casual acquaintance" of Mrs. Brace, that he had not seen her recently, and that he believed the photograph had been inscribed impetuously some time ago and had nothing to do with the suicide.

Ignored Phone Calls.

When Mrs. Brace registered at the hotel she said she was tired from a long trip and did not wish to be disturbed. She declined to answer several telephone calls from Washington.

Finally Mrs. Parsons telephoned the hotel management and the door of Mrs. Brace's room was forced open. The young woman apparently had knotted the stocking around her neck, stood on a chair, knotted the other end around the top of the closet door, and then kicked away the chair. She had been dead about 10 hours.

Mrs. Brace's husband is Ernest Brace, brother of a member of the publishing firm of Harcourt, Brace & Co. He and his wife were both writers, and she was an artist as well. A children's book she wrote is soon to be published. She illustrated it herself.

The Braces left Woodstock, where they had lived, some time ago, and there were reports they had separated.

German Who Warned Allies About Gas Sent to Prison

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Dec. 17.—Thousands of English and French soldiers killed in and after the first Germany gas attack might have been saved had the allied high command listened to the warning given them in Flanders on the night of April 14, 1915, by August Jaeger, truck driver in a German front-line transport outfit.

But while Jaeger's warning was ignored, today, 17 years later, he nevertheless was punished for having given this information to the enemy.

It was in 1920 that Jaeger was first tried for divulging military information, but the German court freed him for lack of evidence. He became a chauffeur in Erfort, Thuringia.

In 1930, the French magazine "Revue Des Vivants" revived the charges in an article, written by Gen. Ferry of the French army, entitled "the inside story of the first German gas attack." The article accused Allied commanders of stupidity and casually named Jaeger as the informant who was spurned.

The German Government searched the nation for Jaeger, arrested him two years ago. He pleaded not guilty when the new French evidence was presented. Jaeger said he had not deserted but had been captured and that a gas mask had been found on him. Subjected to violence, he was forced to tell the French of the German plans, and was laughed at.

Today, the German High Court of Leipzig sentenced Jaeger to 10 year in a penitentiary.

REFUSES ACCOUNTING ON WIDOW'S ESTATE

Dr. C. A. Meredith Says Mrs. Mary A. Peters Suggested Contract to Him.

Trial of the suit of Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., as trustee under the will of Mrs. Mary A. Peters for an accounting of securities which formerly had been Mrs. Peters' property will be resumed tomorrow before Circuit Judge Pearcy.

Evidence so far introduced shows that on Jan. 12, 1912, Dr. Charles A. Meredith, 5628 Enright avenue, defendant in the action, made a contract with Mrs. Peters 20 years ago whereby she conveyed to him the title to various deeds of trust and bonds, he agreeing to pay $1500 yearly to her from the income as long as she lived. She died in 1924 at her home, 1947 Semple avenue, and the trustees seeks to compel Dr. Meredith to surrender the property to the trust estate.

It is alleged that at the time the contract was drawn Mrs. Peters, by reason of her age and illness, did not possess mental capacity to make a legal contract and that Dr. Meredith influenced her as business adviser as well as her physician. According to Irvin H. Gamble, who, with former Circuit Judge Grimm and Joseph A. Kane, represents the trustee, the value of the securities involved is in excess of $42,000.

Under Mrs. Peters' will a son, Lewis W. J. Peters, 3102 North Taylor avenue, is the beneficiary of her trust estate, which was inventoried at $5588. The inventory made no mention of the securities in controversy. Six daughters were the ultimate beneficiaries of the estate bequeathed in the will.

Dr. Meredith asserted the contract was legal and denied he had influenced Mrs. Peters.

Mrs. Peters was the widow of William Peters and later married his brother, Louis F. Peters, who died in 1909, leaving property valued at $175,000, of which she received a one-seventh interest. Louis Peters conducted the bar in the old Planters Hotel and later became a commission merchant.

PARAGUAY REJECTS U. S. PEACE PLAN

By the Associated Press.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 17.—In a reply to proposals by the commission of neutrals in Washington for a truce in the Gran Chaco fighting, Paraguay emphasizes that the proposition is unsatisfactory to this country.

The reply argues that under the proposed plan Bolivia would keep half the Chaco region, while Paraguay would be ousted completely; also that the Bolivians would have police control over regions where there are big Paraguayan cattle interests.

Paraguay also objected to the absence of guarantees by the neutrals for the avoidance of future incidents and said further that there should be some definite promise of a fair settlement of the whole boundary dispute.

The Government finally alleged that Bolivia had been guilty of violently aggressive acts and it asked a searching investigation to determine penalties for this aggression.

POLAND ADOPTS SYSTEM OF BARTER-LIKE TRADE

Seeks to Get More South American Business; Steel-Coffee Deal Starts Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 17.—Compensating trade policies almost like barter have been inaugurated by the Polish Government in an effort to obtain more South American business for Polish steel mills.

The first result of the new arrangement was an order for 60,000 tons of rails for export to Brazil.

In return for this order Poland will center the import of coffee in one organization, so that the coffee business may be directed to countries which in turn buy Polish goods.

The Central Import Co., to handle these transactions as a clearing house, was established. Payment for the rails, or other steel products, will be made in coffee direct to the foundries and steel mills, which will in turn sell coffee to the import company for cash.

The difference between prices is expected to be so small as not to present any difficulties over money transfers.

In an effort to increase the coffee consumption, new coffee restaurants are being opened here by a company which is 45 per cent Brazilian and 55 per cent Dutch.

3 FINED FOR DEMONSTRATION AT CAFETERIA FOR JOBLESS

Two of Communist Group Ordered to Pay $300 Each; All Appeal.

Peace disturbance fines totaling $750 were assessed in Police Court yesterday against three members of a group of 50 Communist demonstrators who went to the restaurant office of the Bureau for Homeless Men at 1413 Pine street Thursday with demands for a change in the restaurant and general relief program.

Orville Smith, 1505 North Tenth street, and Frank Bittner, 1508 North Tenth street, were fined $300 each. Mike Pachacz, 1306 Cass avenue, was fined $150. All appealed.

Fifteen members of the delegation were arrested on complaint of the restaurant manager, who had agreed to receive a committee of two but had declined to accede to the demand that he receive 12. The demonstrators demanded meal tickets good in any restaurant, in lieu of the meals prepared in the bureau's new cafeteria, had protested that the cafeteria was inaccessible and offered no choice of menu to its diners, and had repeated the Communist demands for cash work relief payments to unemployed.

The 12 arrested with Smith, Bittner and Pachacz, including several Negroes, were discharged yesterday.

TOKIO REJECTS U. S. AS A PEACE AGENT

Also Opposes Russia as Member of Manchurian Conciliation Commission.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 17.—Instructions to the Japanese delegation to insist that the League of Nations Committee of Nineteen's proposed resolution on the Manchurian issue be revised, were telegraphed by the Foreign Office today, following a special cabinet session. The demanded revision calls for elimination of the invitations to the United States and Russia to join a conciliation commission.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 17.—Facing apparently irreconcilable views of the Chinese and Japanese governments, the League of Nations Conciliation Sub-committee tonight continued search for a basis of conciliation in the Chinese-Japanese dispute which would not be vetoed by one or both parties.

The League's negotiators discussed the problem both with W. W. Yen of the Chinese delegation and Yosuke Matsuoka of the Japanese delegation, sounding out every possibility for concession, but their interviews brought no hopeful indication from either side. It now is predicted the Assembly will sit into the middle of next week or later before it is able to find some grounds acceptable and can take a Christmas recess.

The sub-committee adjourned without reaching any definite decision. It will resume discussions tomorrow afternoon, when further knowledge of the official Tokio and Nanking positions will be available.

The Chinese delegation to the League announced earlier in the day that an essential condition on which China would accept conciliation was that Japan renounce support of the new state of Manchukuo.

"So long as the Japanese show no sincere desire to accept a basis for discussion, it would be a waste of time to go into details for a plan of conciliation," the Chinese statement said.

CHEVROLET PRESENTS A NEW SIX

Longer · Larger · Faster · Smoother · New in Styling · More Economical · Featuring Fisher No-Draft Ventilation

THIS is Chevrolet Week throughout the nation. And the great new car that millions have been watching and waiting for—the latest product of the world's largest builder of motor cars—is now on display: the New Chevrolet Six—at a new scale of low prices.

Front, side, rear—inside, outside—everything about this new car is advanced, improved, exciting. Longer wheelbase makes it the biggest automobile in today's low-price field. The latest principle of car design—"Aer-Stream" styling—gives it a totally different, ultra-modern appearance—as fine-looking as anything ever introduced at any price. The new Fisher bodies are larger, wider—faultlessly stream-lined—swung lower to the road for greater smartness and roadability—and offer the first basic improvement in travel comfort in over ten years: Fisher No-Draft Ventilation.

Chevrolet performance in every gear is faster, flashier, more brilliant. The time-proved six-cylinder engine is more powerful as well as more economical. Improved Free Wheeling is combined with a "silent second" Syncro-Mesh gear-shift. Chevrolet engineers have stepped out ahead of the industry with a remarkable new patented development that wins, not a halfway, but a complete victory over vibration: The Cushion-Balanced Engine Mounting. And as far as prices are concerned, several models now sell at the lowest figures in Chevrolet history.

Chevrolet is able to do all this—because Chevrolet has the advantage of being the world's largest builder of cars for 4 out of the past 6 years. Chevrolet builds cars in greater volume. Chevrolet buys materials in greater quantities. Chevrolet does everything on a bigger, more economical scale. Hence, Chevrolet is in a position to provide a better car at a better price than could possibly issue from any other source! Come, see this Great American Value for 1933. Let your eyes confirm the fact: The leader can accomplish what others dare not try!

RUTLEDGE RESTRAINED ON CONTEMPT CITATION

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 17.—A preliminary rule of prohibition, restraining Circuit Judge Charles W. Rutledge of St. Louis from taking any action on a contempt citation he had issued against five St. Louis lawyers, who were defense counsel in the trial last April of a suit contesting the will of Mrs. Blanche Bordley, was issued late today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc.

The order prevents Judge Rutledge from making any move to enforce his citation, which has been set for Tuesday, until the higher court finally disposes of an application for an absolute writ of prohibition. The preliminary rule is returnable in 10 days. After an answer is filed the application likely will be set for hearing during the January call of the Supreme Court. Judge Rutledge's term expires Dec. 31.

The five lawyers cited to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court, for statements in their motion for new trial which charged Judge Rutledge with prejudice and partiality, were Samuel A. Mitchell, Frank A. Thompson and Richmond C. Coburn, who were counsel for the Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co., administrator and trustee of the Bordley will, and Ernest A. Green and Albert Chandler, who were counsel for two beneficiaries under the will.

The preliminary rule was issued after a hearing for attorneys for the cited lawyers, in the offices of Chief Justice Gantt, and was issued by vote of 4 to 1 by the five Judges present.

In the application it was charged Judge Rutledge, by the language of his citation, had prejudged the matter and already had declared the statements of which he complained were contemptuous. It was charged the hearing, if held Tuesday, would merely be for the purpose of fixing punishment for the alleged contempt. It was pointed out that there could be no appeal, nor writ of error to a higher court, from any decision Judge Rutledge reached.

The citation issued by Judge Rutledge ordered the five lawyers to show cause Tuesday why they "should not be punished as for contempt of court." It did not cite them to show cause why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court. The attorneys pointed out that the motion for new trial, of which Judge Rutledge complained, was filed with him on April 18, and was overruled on Dec. 6, but that the citation was not issued until Dec. 15.

The will of Mrs. Bordley, a wealthy widow, was contested by Mrs. Adele L. Tatum, 86 years old, of Los Angeles. The jury set aside the will. The value of the estate was estimated to be between $1,000,000 and $2,750,000.

HEAD OF A. F. OF L. TO VISIT PRESIDENT-ELECT TODAY

Green to Urge D. J. Tobin for Cabinet; Roosevelt Motors Home in Zero Weather.

By the Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Dec. 17.—Motoring over icy highways in zero weather, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the President-elect, traveled 80 miles through the snow-whipped Hudson Valley today to his ancestral home. The estate overlooks the Hudson River, which was frozen over for the first time in years.

The President-elect prepared to receive as guests tomorrow William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Chief Justice Edward R. Finch of the appellate division of the Supreme Court, first department.

The visit of Justice Finch will be social, but Green was expected to present a plea for the appointment of Daniel J. Tobin of Boston and Indianapolis as Secretary of Labor. Tobin was chairman of the labor division of the national Democratic organization in the presidential campaign.

FEARS ROOSEVELT WOULD BE HURT BY FARM RELIEF PLAN

Missourian Thinks Allotment Might Do to Him 'What Farm Board Did to Hoover.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A belief that the domestic allotment relief plan may do politically to President-elect Roosevelt "what the Farm Board did to Mr. Hoover" was expressed to the House Agriculture Committee today by one of its Democratic members, Representative Nelson of Missouri.

He called this proposal of farm leaders for boosting 1933 prices of wheat, cotton, tobacco and hogs "an artificial set-up," and added:

"I voted against the agricultural marketing act because I believed it would fail, as it has failed. As a Democrat, I am afraid now that this plan with all its theories and ramifications will, unless there is an improvement in world conditions, do to Mr. Roosevelt what the Farm Board did to Mr. Hoover."

Farm Editor Testifies.

His remark, made just as C. V. Gregory of Chicago, editor of the Prairie Farmer, was concluding testimony in behalf of the plan to pay a bonus to producers of the four great staple commodities, brought the reply from the witness that "unless something is done the price of hogs in 1933 will drop below $2 hundred pounds."

Gregory confined himself to a statement of how the allotment plan would apply to hogs, explaining that the benefit and the processing tax would take effect gradually, beginning at one-half cent a pound and increasing to 2 cents. He recommended paying farmers $4 an acre to reduce their corn acreage 15 per cent in 1933.

"Because of the present surplus we recommend authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to make purchases to maintain prices duriing the initial stages of applying the plan," Gregory said. "It would cost from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Pork for the Unemployed.

"This meat could be turned over to the Red Cross for food distribution to the unemployed or put to some other noncompetitive use."

"Congress is not going to agree to another stabilization plan," Representative Purnell (Rep.), Indiana, said, "and that is what that would amount to."

"We think you could take that out without seriously hurting the bill," Gregory replied. "But 30 days of feeding the unemployed would consume the surplus."

LAWYERS IN HANDLAN ESTATE SUITS ALLOWED $55,800 FEES

Attorneys Successful in Recovering $310,000 Stock Which Sons Had Claimed.

Circuit Judge Nortoni yesterday allowed fees totaling $55,800 to attorneys in consolidated litigation over the trust estate of Alexander H. Handlan, president of Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co. The allowances go to attorneys who were successful in recovering Handlan-Buck stock valued at $310,000 for the benefit of the estate. The stock had been claimed by Handlan's sons as a gift to them from their father.

The suit, which had been filed by other heirs, also asked that the trust be voided but this plea was denied. The litigation extended over a period of 10 years and was twice before the Supreme Court after trials in Circuit Court.

In the fee award the law firm of Jones, Hocker, Sullivan & Gladney, who represented a daughter, Mrs. Lillian H. Lemp, and her son, William J. Lemp Jr., will receive $35,800. They had requested $77,500. Meredith & Harwood, a Kansas City firm, which had asked for $35,000, will receive $20,000. They represented another daughter, Mrs. Vella Bisbee of Kansas City.

Fees totaling $16,500 to other counsel in the same litigation were allowed by JJudge Nortoni several 300. Counsel representing the sons days ago, bringing the total to $72.- have filed a motion to set aside the fees previously allowed. All the fees are charged against the estate, which was valued at $2,000,000, according t othe Court's memorandum. The elder Handlan died in 1921.

EXPECTANT MOTHER APPEALS FROM HER SENTENCE OF DEATH

Action Automatically Stays Execution of Mrs. Snipes Pending Ruling on Plea.

By the Associated Press.

YORK, S. C., Dec. 17.—Attorneys for Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, expectant mother convicted of murder and sentenced to die on April 7, today filed notice of appeal. This automatically stays execution until the case is disposed of by the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Snipes was convicted of the murder of Elliott Harris, York County policeman, who was shot to death last July 17. Her conviction automatically carried the death sentence and she is now in the penitentiary at Columbia.

The woman's attorneys have 30 days to file their proposed appeal and exceptions unless an extension of time is granted.

WATER COLOR GROUP BY HOMER ON DISPLAY

Pictures by Artist Who Depicted the Sea at the Art Museum.

An exhibition of 22 water color drawings by Winslow Homer have been placed on exhibition in City Art Musem in Forest Park and will remain until Jan. 15.

Homer, who died in 1910, was best known for his pictures of the sea and subjects associated with it. He first came into prominence during the Civil War through his illustrations of war scenes in Harper's Magazine.

The group at City Art Museum, lent by Chicago Art Institute from its Martin A. Ryerson collection, represents later phases of his work. After the war he painted for a time in the Adirondacks, and then on the New England coast. A trip to England supplied the material for sketches of the English coast and about 1885 he made his first of several trips to the West Indies.

The drawings at the museum exemplify these four types of subjects. The charm and isolation of the Adirondacks are depicted in such pictures as "Rapids, Hudson River," "Camp Fire," "Adirondacks Guide," and "End of Day."

The English series illustrates his power in representing the sea and seafaring folk. Two of these, "Flamboro' Head" and "Fishing off Scarboro" are in monochrome, with simple washes of opaque white.

The grim New England coast appears in such pictures as "Sunshine and Shadow," "Breakers, Prout's Neck," and "Breaking Storm, Maine Coast." There are three pictures which resulted from his trips to the West Indies. These are "Stowing Sails, Bahamas," "The Gulf Stream" and "After the Tornado, Bahamas."

Artist Guild's Water Color and Craftwork Exhibit Opens Today.

The Artist Guild's second annual exhibition of water color drawings and craftwork will be opened today in the Guild galleries, 812 Union boulevard, and will remain on view until Jan. 10.

It includes about 200 examples of the work of artists of St. Louis and vicinity. Most are water colors, but there are some pastels and black and white representations. The craftwork includes batiks, textiles, metal work and tooled leather pieces.

A reception for the artists and their friends will be held this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, and after today the exhibition will be open to the public each week day except Tuesday from 1 to 5 o'clock.

There are four purchase prizes offered, one of $100 by the Newhouse Galleries, one of $50 by Clark McAdams, and two of $25.

Rev. C. A. Nugent Ran Into Hard Luck in California on Way to Indiana Destination.

The Rev. Charles A. Nugent, Pentacostal evangelist and prison worker, today is on his way with his family to their home at Rochester, Ind., completing a journey, beset with misfortune, begun two months ago at Los Angeles. The minister, his wife and four small sons, wtihout food or funds, yesterday received assistance at Welcome Inn, Fourth street and Chouteau avenue, and resumed their journey in their battered automobile.

They left Los Angeles Oct. 19 with meager but sufficient funds to make the trip. The Rev. Mr. Nugent had ended a two-year tour of Western states, living on contributions made at his evangelical meetings when he devoted himself to prison salvation work. His income, of late, had become too meager to buy food and clothing.

A short distance from Los Angeles, his car was struck by another machine. His wife, ill, was taken to a physician, and with her, Richard, 10 years old. There it was found the boy's arm was broken. After a period of waiting another car was purchased for $10, and with depleted funds, the homeward journey was resumed. They arrived in St. Louis Friday afternoon, and yesterday, with a replenished purse and several boxes of food, they climbed into their shaky conveyance and started home.

MRS. J. H. TRORLICHT DIES IN NEW ORLEANS AT 87

Succumbs to Infirmities of Age; Funeral to Be Held Here Tomorrow.

Mrs. Trorlicht, who was 87 years old, was born in Belleville, the daughter of Antoine Lobsinger, but came to Carondelet, now a part of St. Louis, with her parents during the Civil War. She made her home in this city until a few years ago.

Besides Mrs. Robichaux, she is survived by these children: Mrs. Ferd Hauck of Kansas City; Mrs. Clara Schmauss, Los Angeles; Mrs. L. B. Fabacher, Biloxi, Miss.; Miss Lillie Trorlicht and Mrs. Max Feuerbacher of St. Louis; Oscar A. Trorlicht of New Orleans, and H. A. Trorlicht, St. Louis; by 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock from the home of H. A. Trorlicht, 3234 Copelin avenue, to Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery.

TWO UNDERTAKERS DISPUTE OVER BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN

One Replevins It From Another, Who Hires Lawyer to Claim Funeral Fees, Nevertheless.

A dispute between two Negro undertakers has arisen over possession of the body of Mrs. Agnes Robnett, 19-year-old Negro, shot to death Wednesday in her home, 17 Irving avenue, Kinloch.

Clark Young, undertaker at 4400A Kennerly avenue, obtained an order to take charge of the body from Eugene Robnett, 22 years old, a janitor, who was held for homicide at the County Coroner's inquest Friday. The body was first taken by County Undertaker J. C. Lewis, from whom the Boyd Undertaking Co. of 4209W Easton, got it on an order from the woman's mother.

When Young found that Boyd had the body and would not give it up, he got a replevin order from a Justice of the Peace, and, accompanied by a Deputy Constable, took it away from Boyd.

Boyd then urged a lawyer to file an injunction suit against Young, on the ground that a body in a murder case is a corpus delicti in law; is without value, and cannot be made the subject of replevin. The lawyer will represent Boyd at a hearing Dec. 29 on the return of the replevin proceeding, and will claim the funeral expenses for his client.

BILL FINANCING MORGAN WIDENING SIGNED BY MAYOR

Construction of Final Sections of the Improvement Will Be Started Next Spring.

An ordinance financing completion of the Morgan street widening was signed by Mayor Miller yesterday and became effective immediately. The city plans to pay $2,107,899 into Circuit Court this week and to notify owners of the property involved to vacate.

Th bill, appropriating the money from 1923 bond-issue funds, with an emergency clause to put it in force at once, was passed Friday by the Board of Aldermen. It is planned to start paving the widened street next spring.

Thirty days after the damage money is paid into court will be allowed owners to vacate the property in most instances. For larger structures 60 or 90 days will be granted. There are 300 pieces of property affected.

The widening, to 80 feet, is to extend for 22 blocks, or more than a mile and a half, between Third and Fourteenth streets and between Jefferson avenue and Grand boulevard. Morgan was widened to 80 feet for 10 blocks, or nearly a mile, between Fourteenth and Jefferson, a number of years ago.

Cutoff to Spring Avenue.

In addition, Morgan will be extended for a long block, from Grand to a point just west of Spring avenue. This will be done by cutting an 80-foot strip through the back of property fronting on Delmar boulevard and on Enright avenue. The new boulevard will branch in Y-shape to Delmar and to Enright, west of Spring.

A 30-foot strip will be taken from property on the south side of Morgan, between Third and Thirteenth streets, except the Union Market block (Broadway to Sixth street), already widened. Between Thirteenth and Fourteenth the addition will be 15 feet, from both sides, as the width now is 65 feet. Present width between Jefferson and Grand is 60 feet and the new slices will be cut from both sides, generally 10 feet on either side.

More than nine years have been consumed in the legal preliminaries of condemnation for this widening. The ordinance authorizing it became effective in August, 1923, six months after passage of the bond issue. Three sets of condemnation commissioners had to be appointed and there are numerous exceptions to their findings which will be tried in the Supreme Court of Missouri eventually—probably long after the improvement is done.

Reason for Procedure.

The money the city will pay into court represents net damages for property required. Benefit assessments as fixed by condemnation commissioners and agreements are $1,811,167, against 3692 pieces of property in a district surrounding the proposed improvement. The payment the city is about to make covers this sum plus the city's own share of the cost, $296,731.

This method of financing was adopted in order to delay issuance of the benefit bills until the widening and new paving is completed. Entry of final judgment in the condemnation suit is being deferred so that the bills, which constitute liens against property, cannot be issued. In making this arrangement, the city took into consideration the fact that general taxes were due this month and it did not desire to add to property owners' burdens at this time.

In general, the benefit district extends from the river to Taylor avenue, with Washington avenue on the south and Franklin and Enright avenues on the north. The city will bear a part of the cost of paving, but the bulk will be assessed against abutting property.

TENNESSEE SOCIETY DINNER

The Tennessee Society of St. Louis will hold its thirty-eighth annual dinner Jan. 7 at the Woman's Club. An address will be given on "Americanism" by Dr. Gus W. Dyer, for 25 years professor of economic sociology in Vanderbilt University.

The society, incorporated in 1895, has gathered yearly to hear distinguished citizens of Tennessee at its banquet, held on Andrew Jackson's birthday, Jan. 8, except when it falls on Sunday, as it does this year.

HORNSBY'S FARM HERE TO BE SOLD AT FORECLOSURE

Baseball Player Fails to Meet Interest on Mortgage —Certain County Taxes Delinquent.

Rogers Hornsby has been forced to give up the 86-acre farm north of the municipal airport, where he has lived for four years. The property will be sold under a mortgage foreclosure at Clayton courthouse Tuesday noon.

The sale, according to the legal advertisement, results from the baseball star's failure to meet interest payments due two months ago. Certain county taxes are delinquent also.

Mrs. Hornsby said yesterday the foreclosure was "another hard knock." "We have had several hard knocks lately," she added. "This place has been too large for us, and cost too much to maintain. We put a lot of money into it."

The property, part of the estate of Barney Schreiber, race-track man, includes a 14-room house and barns. Hornsby did not farm the place extensively, raising chickens and a few cattle and hogs. At the time he made the purchase it was stated he gave a $40,000 mortgage.

The hardest knock Hornsby has received recently was his dismissal as manager of the pennant-winning Chicago Cubs in midseason this year. An investigation conducted by Baseball Commissioner Landis disclosed that the manager, pressed for cash despite a reported salary of $40,000 a year, borrowed $6000 from men on his team. Hornsby explained he needed the money "to help pay bills," and he arranged to repay the players from that part of his salary still coming to him. The Cub players did not give their former manager a share of the world series money.

The Government has demanded $21,283 from Hornsby, alleging he failed to include all taxable items in his income-tax returns for several years. Examiners looking into his income reported they found money in the bank not accounted for in the ball player's tax returns.

Hornsby recently returned as a player to the St. Louis Cardinals, the team he led to its first pennant and world championship in 1926. He has been working out in a downtown gymnasium to condition himself to regain his old job at second base.

Bundles will be called for, she said, if donors will telephone CEntral 3365. Mrs. Bettman estimated the bureau supplies about seven out of eight garments desired by co-operating relief agencies.

DECLINE IN AUTO DEATHS HERE

Factors in Decrease Discussed Before Safety Council.

Fewer automobiles are registered this year, and less gasoline consumed, but more machines are driven with poor brakes and smooth tires, Augustus L. Abbott, president of the Safety Council, told its Executive Committee last week, in discussing the decrease in automobile fatalities.

So far this year St. Louis traffic accidents have caused 144 death, 15 fewer than in the corresponding period last year, when the 12 months' total was 170. With a fatality rate of 18.3 to the 100,000 population, St. Louis is now eighth of 13 major cities in accident prevention. The average rate is 17.6. New York, Boston and Milwaukee lead, with rates of 13.7, 13 and 12.2, respectively.

To Preside at Lawyers' Meeting.

BALES COMMITTEE URGES SLASHES IN STATE SALARIES

Unofficial Group on Governmental Reform Also Proposes Abolition of Many Boards.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 17.—Large reductions in State salaries and abolition of many boards and commissions are proposed in bills being prepared by the Committee on Taxation and Governmental Reform of which State Senator D. L. Bales is chairman.

The committee's report was given out today by Senator Bales, who said the bills to make its recommendations effective would be introduced early in the session of the Legislature which convenes Jan. 4.

Ten members of the Legislature—five from the Senate and five from the House—comprise the committee, and all but two will be in the next General Assembly. It is not an official committee, however, but is a voluntary organization sponsored by the Missouri Farmers' Association which paid its expenses. Hearings were conducted in various parts of the State by the committee.

Governor's Salary Unchanged.

The report contains a long list of State positions for which salary reductions are proposed. Salaries of the Governor and other elective State officers would not be reduced, but would remain $5000 for the Governor and $3000 for Secretary of State, Treasurer, Auditor, Attorney-General and Superintendent of Schools. To each would be added $1500 annually as compensation for serving on the Board of Permanent Seat of Government. This $1500 allowance would take the place of certain fees these officers now receive.

Salaries of various chief clerks and secretaries would be reduced from $2800 to $2400, and $1200 would be made the standard for stenographers, many of whom are now paid $1800.

It is proposed to reduce salaries of Judges of the Supreme Court from $7500 to $6500 and of commissioners of the Court from $7500 to $4500. Appellate Court Judges would be reduced from $6000 to $5500 and Appellate Court commissioners from $6000 to $4500.

The Public Service Commission members would be reduced from $5500 to $4800, the general counsel from $4500 to $3600 and the secretary from $3600 to $2400. Various other heads of departments receiving from $3000 to $5000 would be reduced $1000 or more.

50 Pct. Cut for Chief Engineer.

The report recommends a salary cut of 50 per cent for the Chief Engineer of the State Highway Department, from $10,000 to $5000, and a reduction from $7500 to $4000 for the Assistant Chief Engineer.

Drastic reductions in the educational institutions are recommended; the president of the State university from $12,500 to $6500; presidents of the State Teachers' colleges from $6000 to $4000; deans of the State university from $7000 to $4800.

Circuit Judges in all circuits except St. Louis, St. Louis County, Jackson County and Buchanan County would be reduced from $4700 to $4200, but in St. Louis their salaries would be $6000, instead of the present $5500 plus $2500 as members of the Board of Jury Supervisors. It is recommended the Circuit Clerk in St. Louis be reduced from $5000 to $4500.

The report contains salary reduction recommendations for many positions which also are recommended for abolition through consolidations or elimination, the reductions to be sought if reorganization fails.

Suggested Reorganization.

The boards of dental examiners, nurse examiners, barber examiners and embalming would be abolished and their functions assigned to the State Health Commissioner. The Department of Labor and Industrial Inspection would be abolished and its functions assigned to the Workmen's Compensation Commission. In many cases commissions of three or more members would be abolished and one commissioner would be provided instead.

Altogether there are 45 recommendations for outright abolition of boards or bureaus, or for consolidation with other bodies.

Senator Bales said in his report that his committee had assurances of support for these recommendations from numerous members of the Legislature.

Members of the committee, in addition to Bales, who is a Democrat, are Senators A. M. Clark (Dem.), Richmond; J. G. Morgan (Rep.), Unionville; J. M. Joffee (Dem.), Kansas City; Langdon R. Jones (Dem.), Kennett; and Representatives J. W. Armstrong (Dem.), Pulaski County; O. B. Whitaker (Rep.), Hickory County; W. E. Freeland (Rep.), Taney County; Jones H. Parker (Rep.), St. Louis, and Rush H. Limbaugh (Rep.), Cape Girardeau County. Parker and Limbaugh will not be members of the next Legislature, they were not candidates for re-election.

Buys Bread With 1860 Pennies.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 16. — A woman, with a threadbare coat drawn closely over scanty clothing, stepped into Carlyle Horn's grocery store here and ordered a loaf of bread. From a worn purse she counted out seven pennies and hastened away. Horn found they were the old eagle coins of Civil War days, dated from 1856 to 1863.

ADMITS HITTING MAN WITH BAT, FIRING BODY

Barber Previously Said Burning of Hatchery at Maysville, Mo., Was Accident.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 17.—Lawrence Sparks, Maysville (Mo.) barber, confessed today, Chief of Detectives John T. Duncan said, to striking Carl Bledsoe of Maysville with a baseball bat, then purposely upsetting a can of gasoline and firing Bledsoe's hatchery Thursday morning. Bledsoe died in a St. Joseph hospital the same night.

In an earlier confession today Sparks said he struck Bledsoe, but that the fire was an accident.

Sparks said that he had waited an hour for Bledsoe before making the attack. He had hoped that the fire would destroy evidence of foul play, but when he ran outside the building the presence of a passerby made it necessary to turn in the alarm at once.

Sparks, father of seven children, and who occupied an apartment adjoining that of the Bledsoe family over the hatchery, said in an earlier story, officers reported, that he had upbraided Bledsoe for cursing Mrs. Bledsoe, and that he had struck the man with the handle of a car door which he had taken from the barber shop of his employer, Sheriff-elect Bob Daniels. The fire was accidental, Sparks said, stating that Bledsoe was holding a can of gasoline at the time of the attack.

Sparks said he had followed his victim from the upstairs apartment to the lower floor early that morning after Mrs. Bledsoe had come to him the previous day telling of her husband's alleged cruelty.

When the gasoline was spilled it ran all over Bledsoe's body, Sparks said, and ignited from a heating stove. Sparks had previously told officers that he heard an explosion and found Bledsoe's clothing in flames and that he tried to rescue him. He said that he did not attempt to extinguish the fire, but instead ran into the street to sound an alarm.

Bledsoe regained consciousness shortly before he died Thursday and made a statement, the contents of which has not been revealed. Sparks was brought here last night for questioning by St. Joseph detectives. He had been employed the Sheriff-elect for six years.

Bledsoe was a cousin of Mrs. Verne Campbell, wife of the present Sheriff of De Kalb County.

METHODIST BISHOPS, SOUTH, REAFFIRM PROHIBITION STAND

Say People Voted for Bread, Not Beer, and Demand Saloon Be Kept Out.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 17.—The College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session here today, reaffirmed its stand for prohibition and urged that Congress take steps to prevent the return of the saloon and to protect dry territory.

An open statement, issued by the college to the President and for the records of Congress, re-emphasized the warning against the saloon's return expressed by the last general conference of the church at Dallas, Tex., and declared that "we would emphasize at this time, when the effort is being made to stampede and to overwhelm the friends of prohibition, that there has been no change in the attitude of our church."

The Bishops in their statement asserted that "Congress has no mandate from the people to vote for a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment until and unless it presents to the states for action a substitute amendment, which will effectively prevent the return of the saloon and effectively protect dry territory. As a matter of fact, the people did not in the last election vote so much on the question of repeal and beer as on bread."

"This College of Bishops would respectfully remind the Congress of the United States," the statement said, "that the platform of both major political parties and the two candidates is 'expressly and unequivocally against the return of the saloon and for the protection of dry territory.' . . .

"We insist that this frenzied effort to authorize the manufacture of such beer as is clearly in defiance of the Constitution cannot be regarded as other than a deliberate attempt to nullify the Constitution."

BILL TO BAR NEPOTISM IN CONGRESS INTRODUCED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A bill providing that all Senators and Representatives be penalized by forfeiture of their office if they practice nepotism was introduced today by Representative Mouser (Rep.), Ohio.

The measure would provide that "no duly elected Senator or Representative or delegate or commissioner from any territory" shall "use all or any part of any appropriation given him or her for clerical or secretarial hire for the purpose of placing those upon the public payroll who are related to him by consanguinity or affinity in the third degree under the civil law." Mouser said he would ask Chairman Sumners of the Judiciary Committee for a hearing.

Mouser was not re-elected to the next Congress.

State University Investigation Results in Unconditional Expulsion of Guilty.

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., Dec. 17.—Fourteen youths have been expelled unconditionally from the University of Oklahoma as the result of an inquiry into the flogging of Billy Stephens, 18-year-old campus news writer, President W. B. Bizzell announced today. The university president's action was given approval by the University Board of Regents

Because he wrote a news story they considered injurious to university tradition, a throng of hooded youths, wearing insignia of the D. D. M. C., outlawed secret order, spirited Stephens from his fraternity house the night of Dec. 7. In subfreezing temperatures, he was taken into the country wearing only his pajamas and overcoat and was lashed with a double rope. Then he was forced to walk back to campus.

Stephens, a reporter for the Oklahoma City Times and Daily Oklahoman, is working his way through college by writing for the newspapers. Non-initiated students call the D. D. M. C. the "Deep Dark Mystery Club."

TAXI DRIVER RETURNS JEWELS OF SENATOR LEWIS' WIFE

Rare Collection Discovered in Cab After Other Passengers Comment; $500 Reward.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—A caseful of rare jewels, left yesterday in a taxicab by Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, was returned to her today by the driver of the machine. She gave him a $500 reward. The jewelry was not insured.

The cab driver, Willard Follin, did not notice the bag in his cab, he said until the fourth or fifth passenger he had carried today, mentioned its presence. He opened it, and recognizing the jewels from published accounts of their disappearance, took them directly to the hotel where the Senator's wife was staying.

Mrs. Lewis was anxiously pacing the lobby of the hotel in company with a detective when Follin appeared. She gave him $200 and promised him $100 a month for the next three months. This was at the suggestion of Senator Lewis, who thought it wiser not to give the man all the reward outright.

Wins Recognition at Dartmouth.

William E. Rench, a junior at Dartmouth College, and son of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Rench, 5544 Chamberlain avenue, has been elected to the business board of the Dartmouth Pictorial, an undergraduate publication, according to word received by his parents. Rench was graduated from John Burroughs School in 1929 and was active there on publications.

GETS BAD CHECK FOR HIS AUTO

Loss of a Chevrolet coach to two men who gave a worthless $285 check was reported Friday by John Corney, 3500A Greer avenue.

Corney said the deal was made at a rooming house in the 5000 block of Washington boulevard after he had been directed there by a newspaper advertisement. He delivered the automobile Wednesday and got the check. When the bank returned it Friday, he went to the rooming house with policemen. The men, there only two days, had gone.

'YELLOW KID' AND AID RELEASED BY POLICE

Freed After 73 Hours in Custody When Chicago Authorities Do Not Want Him.

"Yellow Kid" Weil, one-time "king of the confidence men," and Fred Buckminster, his 65-year-old lieutenant, were released unconditionally by the police yesterday after having been held three days for Chicago authorities for questioning in the $104,000 robbery of the First Trust and Savings Bank of Riverdale, Chicago suburb, on May 27.

They were arrested Tuesday noon at the Claridge Hotel, 15 hours after Buckminster, registered as "Hale," had telephoned a Kansas City garage and asked the manager to forward by motorbus a valise left there by him Monday when he and Weil departed in Weil's automobile for St. Louis.

Detectives who inspected the valise at Kansas City found it contained $20,300 in bonds which were identified Thursday as part of the Riverdale bank loot. Without knowing the true identity of "Hale" and his traveling companion they forwarded the empty grip to him, kept the bonds in Kansas City, and notified St. Louis to arrest the man who received the grip.

St. Louis detectives followed "Hale" to the Claridge, arrested him and his companion, and shortly identified them as Weil and Buckminster, the former internationally nottorious for his swindles during the past 20 years in this country and Europe, Buckminster declared a Kansas City friend had given him the grip to take to St. Louis. Without knowing what it contained, he continued, he and Weil decided it was injudicious to take it with them and left it at the garage because they did not know how to get in touch with its owner. He denied he had called the garage manager and refused to explain how he happened to meet the motorbus on which the grip was sent to St. Louis.

Yesterday the Chicago police notified the Illinois Bankers' Association that the facts in the case would not warrant prosecution of Weil and Buckminster, who already had agreed to waive extradition to Illinois. The decision was communicated to St. Louis authorities and the men were released after 73 hours in custody.

Alfred W. Fleming, real estate dealer, died at City Hospital yesterday of injuries which police think he suffered in falling 15 feet from an alley to a passage leading to the basement boiler room of the Westgate Hotel, Kingshighway and Delmar boulevard.

Fleming, who was 38 years old and lived at 5950 Pershing avenue, was found unconscious in the passage early Friday and never regained consciousness.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. from the residence to St. Roch's Church. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

RESOLUTION ON GRAZING FEES

Two Senators Hyde Failed to Meet Introduce Measure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—An offer of Secretary Hyde to discuss with him grazing fees on public forest lands was called "useless" today by Senator Carey (Rep.), Wyoming, one of three Senators with whom Hyde failed to keep an appointment Thursday to consider the matter.

As a result of the failure to see the Secretary then, Carey and Senator Steiwer (Rep.), Oregon, today introduced a joint resolution to order the Secretary to continue through 1933 the 1932 rates, which were reduced 50 per cent from 1931 charges.

CONFESSES KILLING FOSTER PARENTS

ROBERT BRUCE JONAH, 19 years old, of Newton, Mass., who confessed that he murdered his foster father and foster mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Jonah. He claimed he killed Mrs. Jonah with a hammer rather than see her suffer with an incurable disease. He then killed the man rather than see him left alone. Young Jonah's next move was to slash his own wrists in an attempt at suicide.

ROOSEVELT THRIVES ON 12-16-HOUR WORKDAY

'Low Pressure' Executive Likes to Get Job Done, but Without Fretting.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 17.—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt appears to be thriving on a program of 12 to 16 hours of work a day. With only an occasional movie, a swim, and a little reading to divert him, he is devoting practically all his waking hours to preparing for March 4, when he will become President, and putting his affairs in order preparatory to quitting, two weeks from now, the Governorship of New York.

In spite of the enormous amount of work, he remains an effortless worker.

If executives can be classed as "high pressure" and "low pressure" men, the next President belongs definitely in the latter class. There is only one telephone on the Roosevelt desk, the broad mahogany top is neat, but informally arranged—Roosevelt works quietly, rapidly, and persistently.

"I like to get a job done," he explains, "but I don't like to fret and fume about it."

He wakes up, but does not always arise, at 8 a. m., and goes immediately into his work. Breakfasting in bed, he reads the papers, goes through his morning mail with his secretary, and dictates.

After a particularly heavy day, he relaxes for an hour in bed reading. He prefers history, usually naval history, and detective stories.

PARK CONFERS WITH ADVISERS ON LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Governor-Elect Spends Two or Three Hours in Discussions at Jefferson City.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 17.—Governor-elect Guy B. Park spent two or three hours here today conferring with advisers on legislativ recommendations to be included in his inaugural address when he takes office on Jan. 9. His presence was known to only a few persons and he slipped out of town without being discovered by any of the job seekers who have besieged him since his election last Nov. 8.

Park declined to comment on measures he will advocate in his message, stating they were in tentative form and that much work remained before his message would be completed.

He spent most of his time here with State Auditor-elect Forrest Smith of Richmond, considering data assembled by Smith on the probable revenues of the State during the biennial period of 1933-1934, from existing sources of revenues, and details of the State fiscal system. During the Caulfield administration Smith has been the Democratic member of the State Tax Commission, a fact-finding body, which, among other duties, prepares recommendations for the State Board of Equalization on assessment of property for taxation, and prepares estimates of the probable biennial revenues and a suggested State budget within those estimates, in advance of each biennial session of the Legislature.

Park held a brief conference with Prof. Walter Burr, who has been handling for Gov. Caulfield the details of investigation of applications from Missouri cities for allotments of Federal unemployment relief funds.

FARIS ANSWERS CHARGES IN FRISCO RECEIVERSHIP CASE

U. S. Judge Files Reply to Attorneys Trying to Overturn His Action in Appointment.

Federal Judge Faris made his reply, in a return filed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here, to the charges made by attorneys who are trying to overturn his action in the appointment of receivers for the Frisco Railroad.

Appellate Judges Kenyon, Sanborn and Gardner gave the complaining lawyers until 10 a. m. tomorrow to file any additional matter, and Judge Kenyon said that the whole controversy would be taken up on its merits at that time.

The complaining lawyers, Louis Mayer and Jack Lewis Krause II, represent Dora and Charles Gans, Frisco bondholders, who filed the first receivership petition. They are complaining of Judge Faris' action in appointing receivers in a later suit, filed by a creditor, after having denied their petition, and while a rehearing of their petition was pending. They appealed Thursday to the Court of Appeals for permission to file application for a writ of mandamus, or prohibition, or certiorari, or all, against Judge Faris.

Judge Faris, who was directed to show cause why the filing of the proceedings should not be permitted, did not appear in person. His written return was signed by E. T. Miller, counsel for the receivers, and W. Frank Carter, as his attorneys.

Judge Faris said the petition contained duplicity, in that it asked relief by one or more of three wholly distinct and different extraordinary writs. He then replied to charges that he had acted improperly in naming James M. Kurn, former president of the Frisco, as operating receiver. The petition charged misconduct against some officials and directors of the Frisco.

The appointment of Kurn, Judge Faris said, was proper, because of his peculiar knowledge of the company's property, and no proof was offered and no tender of proofs made, of any improper conduct on Kurn's part.

"The Court has stated repeatedly," Judge Faris said, "that if it becomes necessary to investigate the conduct of any officer or director of the Frisco, he would appoint special counsel for the receiver, to conduct the investigation." Miller, the receiver's counsel, is former vice-president and general counsel of the Frisco.

Judge Faris said he gave the Gans interests an opportunity to be heard as to the appointment of receivers, and that Gans' counsel said they had no objection to Kurn, if a financial co-receiver were appointed; this was done in the naming of John G. Lonsdale, banker.

Granting of the petition of the Gans lawyers, Judge Faris said, would "throw the whole case into a muddle," and "tie the hands of the Court to the detriment of the trust estate."

In the course of hearing the Gans counsel, Judge Kenyon asked them the amount of Frisco bonds held by their clients. They replied that it was $3500.

ELECTION CONTEST SUIT OF E. P. FARRIS SET FOR JAN. 5

Supreme Court Upholds Decision of Judge Hartmann That General Law Applies.

The suit of E. P. Farris, contesting the re-election of William Kaysing as Republican Committeeman of the Fifteenth Ward, was set yesterday for Jan. 5, before Circuit Judge Calhoun. The setting is in a suit under the general election law.

Previously Farris sued under the primary law, but Circuit Judge Hartmann held that such law did not apply, as candidates for party committees are elected at the primary, and that no provision was made for an appeal. His ruling was affirmed Friday by the Missouri Supreme Court, which also affirmed his decision in the contest suit of Clarence Hammond against Charles M. Reardon for Democratic Committeeman in the Twenty-third Ward.

In the Hammond-Reardon case Judge Hartmann ordered a recount, as the petition was filed under the proper statute, as he viewed it. Reardon asked the Supreme Court to prohibit the lower court from enforcing its order, but the higher court overruled the plea, which was a request for a writ of mandamus.

Harry Troll, attorney for Farris, said yesterday he expects to obtain an immediate recount on the present petition, which charges irregularities. On the face of the returns Kaysing won by 140 majority.

U.S. INVESTIGATION INTO AFFAIRS OF THE ILLINOIS LIFE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The Government today tightened its hold on the funds and records of the Illinois Life Insurance Co., a firm obligated for $150,000,000 to policy holders in many Midwest states and now in Federal receivership.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson ordered the Northern Trust Co., a Loop bank, not to honor any demands on the deposits of the Lincoln Securities Co., owned by J. W. Stevens and his brothers and his two sons, who also controlled the insurance company, and two Loop hotels that borrowed $13,000,000 from the insurance company.

The insurance company lent $1,160,000 to the securities firm, its records showed. Attorneys for Abel Davis, receiver for the insurance firm, said the deposits in the bank were not large but must be protected.

Missing records of the securities firm were delivered to the Chicago Title and Trust Co., of which Davis is chairman. Officials of the firm refused to say who had brought them.

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green, who ordered a Federal investigation of the insurance company to determine if any Federal statutes have been violated, was reported to have been at the point of taking action to produce the missing records.

Green said Federal auditors would be brought from Washington next week to look over the insurance books. Receiverships of several large firms formerly controlled by Samuel Insull have taxed the Government's auditors here.

Sales agents of the insurance firm talked over a plan to form a stock company and take over obligations they incurred for the company when they wrote policies for the persons it insured.

KREISLER'S OPERA "SISSY" READY FOR FRIDAY PREMIERE

Austrian Violinist's Familiar Themes Woven Into Empress' Love Story.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Dec. 17.—Fritz Kreisler has arrived in Vienna and taken charge of the final rehearsals of his opera "Sissy," which will have its world premiere next Friday. It will be the Austrian violinist's first appearance as composer and director of an opera.

Kreisler has taken his operatic themes from such well-known works as his "Caprice Viennoise," "Love's Joy" and "Love's Sorrow." He will use these melodies to weave therefrom an idyllic musical tapestry presenting the love story of Austria's Empress Elizabeth. He has written 14 new numbers, with duets abounding in the piece, among them a ballad of light wines and beer in the Viennese style.

The title role of "Sissy," which is short for "Elizabeth," will be sung by Paula Wessely, a Berlin and Vienna favorite. The book is from a comedy by Ernst Decsey and Gustav Holm. The latter had a part in framing the libretto, his co-workers being Ernst Marischka and Hubert Marischka.

The story relates how the youthful Emperor Franz-Joseph happened to marry Elizabeth of Bavaria instead of her sister, whom royal matchmakers had picked for him.

URGES SELECTION OF BUSINESS MEN IN ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

C. W. Gaylord, Head of St. Louis Chamber, Writes Hoover; Gives Views on Agenda.

C. W. Gaylord, chairman of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, wrote President Hoover yesterday, suggesting that consideration be given to the selection of business men of long experience and of the highest standing to serve on the committee which will represent the United States at the world economic conference in Europe next year.

Gaylord also expressed the belief that the agenda of the conference should give first consideration to matters affecting international commerce and trade with due precaution to safeguard effectively the trade and industry of this country.

"It is our belief," Gaylord wrote, "that much can be accomplished at this conference to stabilize business conditions, restore confidence and increase the good will among nations of the world. The interdependence of the people of the entire world has been amply demonstrated during the present crisis. Outstanding business leaders meeting to consider the causes of the present crisis and possible remedies can possibly contribute much toward restoring normalcy."

St. Louis U. Sociologist to Speak.

The Rev. Joseph Husslein, dean of the department of sociology of St. Louis University, will speak on "Our Social Crisis and the Way Out" at a meeting of the St. Louis Conference of Social Work at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at noon tomorrow.

Senator Norris Recovering.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Senator Norris of Nebraska, who has been ill with a cold for more than a week, was described as "much better" today by attaches in his office. They said the Senator probably would return to his desk Monday.

STUDYING VALIDITY OF BILLS TO REGULATE SOFT COAL TRADE

Subcommittee of Senatorial Lawyers Named to Consider Constitutionality.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Pending measures to regulate the soft coal industry were referred by the Senate Mining Committee today to a subcommittee of senatorial lawyers to determine whether they are constitutional.

The proposed legislation includes the Davis-Kelly bill, which would create a Federal commission to regulate bituminous production by licenses and the suggested substitute by Senator Hayden (Dem.), Arizona, setting up a co-operative association among the producers to allocate production and further to regulate the industry by taxation.

The subcommittee named to study the constitutionality of proposals is headed by Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana. Other members are Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, and Logan (Dem.), Kentucky.

Has Not Foreign Trade Gone Forever and Progressive Unemployment Come to Stay?

English Editor Raises the Question After Calling Attention to Trend of the Nations Toward Self-Sufficiency, and Asks Financial Powers of United Kingdom What They Are Going to Do About It.

ENGLAND AND TECHNOCRACY.
By A LONDON EDITOR.
From the New English Weekly, London Economic Nationalist Weekly.
(Reprinted, by permission, from the Living Age.)

THE Week-end Review, with a fatuousness not usual to it, remarks that the increase in the figures of unemployment (a quarter of a million have been added since January) can be read as a signal of a danger which, if unchecked, might eventually "bring down the Government." The fact, of course, is that the increase, not if unchecked, but if resisted, might eventually, and, indeed, will eventually, bring down civilization.

It is true that unemployment can be checked, it can indeed be totally abolished, by the simple expedient of "lending" increasingly large purchasing credits abroad and never asking for any return upon them save upon paper. We understand that this, in fact, is the prescription against unemployment now in favor at the Bank of England, and therefore the Treasury. But sooner rather than later the idiocy of making trade by presenting your goods gratis will become clear even to the semi-imbeciles now in control of the "City" (the great financial district of London, of which the Bank of England is the hub—Ed.) and on the instant that the policy of enabling every country but our own to buy our products ceases unemployment will again set in.

Progressive Unemployment.

Apart from this policy, however, there is literally nothing within the armory of the "City," as at present brained, to "check" unemployment or, of course, even to begin to abolish it. Assuming nothing catastrophic to occur and no South Sea Bubble of foreign investment to be blown, the curve of unemployment will continue steadily to rise, and from the three million now officially registered the number by next summer will have risen another half a million. The question, it will be seen, is not the fate of a government which, in any case, is only a collection of corks on the rapids; it is the fate of modern civilization. And it will need a stupendous effort to avoid catastrophe.

Figures of the Technocrats.

We are not speaking without our book, the latest volume of which contains the report of a group of American engineers under the leadership of Mr. Howard Scott* on the "energy production"—including the energy of the human machine—now available in the United States. Of the 3000 major industrial products of the country, the status of 150 has now been completely examined by "Technocracy"—the name adopted by the group referred to; and the expert findings of this highly competent body of investigators fully bears out our own conclusions.

They remark, to begin with, that for a period of 7000 years mankind, as far as we have any record, had to depend for its production exclusively upon the energy of the very inadequate machine of the human body—a matter of one-tenth horse-power unit per eight-hour working day. The maximum output possible in these circumstances was obviously a multiple of the working population; and, in fact, the ancient great empires of Assyria, Egypt and Greece had a productivity measureable in terms of energy units of no more than about 150,000 horse power per five million population, which allowed, as a maximum, a distribution of only about 2000 calories per head per day.

Steam Engine's Contribution.

Thanks to the revolution initiated by James Watt, however, the energy available for production began about a hundred years ago to be prodigiously increased; and Technocracy now estimates that the energy resources, not simply potential in the future but available within actually existing plant, are at present nine million times as great as mankind could command during the previous 7000 years of its history.

They report, furthermore, that it is simply not true that "employment"—that is to say, the demand or use for the human machine—increases with the increase of the use of machinery proper. In the first place, it would be a ridiculous frustration of the design of machinery proper if labor-saving devices continued to demand a proportionate increase in human labor; and, in the second place, it is a matter of simple observation and statistics that "the displacement of men by machines is proceeding so rapidly that even the creation of new industries (motors, radio, for instance) cannot check the steady decline." The relation, indeed, between the use of the two forms of energy can be expressed almost in terms of a mathematical law, namely, that "human employment tends to become an inverse function of the rate of total output."

Machines Devouring Jobs.

It might be supposed that at least during periods of depression, resulting from deflation, the growth of the world's productive plant would slow down. Extraordinarily enough, mechanical development seems to thrive equally well on deflation and inflation. When times are "prosperous," it is intelligible that new plant of all kinds should be laid down in abundance; but equally, it seems, when times are "depressed," new plant is, if not laid down in such abundance, intensified by inventive economy in terms of productivity. Such, for instance, has been the development of the plant of the United States, even within the last three years of "depression," that our authors reckon that a good half of the existing unemployed of America (now numbering 11 millions) "could not possibly be reemployed, even if the prosperity of 1929 were to return." New machines, installed in the brief interval, have literally taken over their jobs.

Rise of the Robot.

Of the many examples offered, we shall quote merely a few. Within the last three years, an electric-lamp machine has been constructed that is capable of turning out half a million lamps

National Debt Mounting at Rate of $10,000,000 a Day---Has Jumped $4,500,000,000 Since June, 1930

$169 Obligation for Every Person in U. S. by Next June 30—Rigid Economy and Further Taxation Imperative.

22 Cents of Each Dollar Received by Government in Fiscal Year of 1934 Must Be Paid Out for Interest.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.

UP goes the national debt, and, by the same token, up goes the amount that the Government must raise through taxes to pay the interest on the National debt.

At the first of this month the debt was about $20,806,000,000. In the 29 months from June 30, 1930, when the halcyon years of government surpluses were brought to an end by the general (and hence the Government's) depression, to Dec. 1, 1932, there was added to the public debt the staggering sum of more than $4,500,000,000 — a greater amount than all the Federal expenditures for a year.

The increase in the debt during this 29-month period was at the rate of more than $159,000,000 a month, or more than $5,300,000 a day.

In still other words, the debt during this calamitous period of deficits grew at the rate of $3680 a minute.

$7000-a-Minute Rise in Last 12 Months.

The figures are even more striking when reduced to term of the last 12 months. In that time the debt has mounted by about $3,500,000,000, or at the accelerated rate of nearly $300,000,000 a month, or $10,000,000 a day or $7000 a minute.

The debt is still growing—it is growing by the minute as this is written—and it will continue on the upgrade as long as the Government shows a deficit. For the Government is like any private busines; when the money for current expenses runs short, recourse is had to borrowing. In the case of the Government there is, of course, an alternative not open to the private citizen. The Government controls and hence can inflate the currency. With this drastic device we are not here concerned. Both the major parties are pledged to the maintenance of a sound money system. Short of inflation, there is no way in which the Government can meet its current obligations except by mortgaging the future. There can be no halt in this process until the Federal budget is brought into approximate balance.

The Treasury this week, for example, borrowed $600,000,000 on new issues of one-year certificates and four-year notes in order to help meet maturing notes of $604,000,000 and $100,000,000 in interest on the public debt.

For the current fiscal year, ending June 30, 1933, President Hoover has estimated a net deficit of more than $1,146,000,000. With this huge shortage in prospect, it is estimated that the national debt by June 30, 1933, will reach a total of $21,426,000,000, or $169 for every person in the United States, and that only by rigid economies, plus further taxation, can a further increase be averted in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934.

Assumption That War Debts Will Be Paid.

Incidentally, the 1933 deficit is figured on the assumption, among others, that the Government in that fiscal year will receive $268,000,000 on the foreign war debt. We know now that considerably less than that amount will be received. To the prospective national debt total of $21,426,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year should be added the amount by which the foreign payments fall short of $268,000,000.

The fact is obvious that as long as the Government must continue resorting to the money lenders for current expenses, one of the great obstacles in the way of a balanced budget—namely, the interest on the public debt—will be heightened. This is one of the hard realities pointed out in the Post-Dispatch article of Nov. 27 last on the clash of facts with theories in budget-balancing. Again, the situation of the Government today is precisely that of the private citizen who must borrow to keep going. The greater the amount of borrowing, the greater the ultimate expense of breaking even. Borrowing creates a never-ending spiral of expenditure.

Interest on the comparatively small public debt in the pre-war year of 1916 was only about $23,000,000. For the fiscal year 1932 it was $599,000,000 and for the fiscal year 1933 it is estimated at $695,000,000. The year after that, unless the now indicated deficit is overcome, the interest bill will be $725,000,000.

This interest charge of $725,000,000—an impregnable item in the yearly budget—amounts to more than 22 per cent of all the estimated expenditures of the Government for the fiscal year 1934 exclusive of the sum devoted to statutory debt retirement. Debt retirement is figured out of the equation because it partly offsets the creation of new debt. The President's budget estimates for 1934 will make this clear:

Deduct debt retirements.....	534,070,300
Total other expenditures.....	3,256,354,900

22 Cents of Every Dollar for Interest.

The estimated interest charge for 1934 is 22 per cent of the total of net expenditures. That is to say, 22 cents of every dollar that the Government receives in the fiscal year 1934 must go for interest on the public debt. Note how the proportion of this fixed charge to the total expenditures of the Government has increased since 1932:

Total net expenditures—Interest on public debt—Percentage of interest to total expenditures:

*1933 ...	3,770,735,000	695,000,000	.18

*Estimated.

The table shows what a tremendously big item, both actually and relatively, is the interest charge in the national budget. The relative importance of the item has increased as the total expenses of the Government have decreased, and this progression upward must continue until the Government gets out of the red and begins reducing the interest charge by paying its debts.

Let us examine briefly the history of the national debt. After the Revolutionary War, our total foreign and internal indebtedness, including the obligations of the states assumed by the Federal Government, was about $71,000,000. This was all retired by 1832. In the Civil War cycle, the debt grew from practically nothing at the start to a peak of $2,766,000,000 at the end. Gradual reduction followed, until by 1892, or 27 years after the war, the debt had reached its low point of less than a billion dollars.

Thereafter it was never more than $1,436,000,000 (in 1899) until the World War shot it skyward to a peak of about $26,500,000,000 on Aug. 31, 1919. This however, was at a time just prior to a tax payment period and was about a billion in excess of the real debt. The peak at the end of any fiscal year was $25,482,000,000 on June 30.

In the 11 following years, thanks to steady Treasury surpluses, we reduced the debt by $9,297,000,000 so that at the end of the fiscal year 1930 it stood at a total of $16,185,000,000. This reduction of 36 per cent in 11 years, as compared with a 23 per cent reduction in the 11 years following the Civil War, represented a real achievement, for which credit is due, in part, to the steadfast policy of the Treasury in insisting that substantial retirements be made from surplus receipts, over and above the retirements prescribed by Congress.

Middle Ground Policy of the Treasury.

In this policy the Treasury took a middle ground between those who favored reduction of the debt at the minimum rate, with the concomitant policy of low taxes, and those who believed in keeping taxes up and thereby getting rid of the debt as fast as possible. The Treasury sponsored successive tax reductions in the flush times, but still it was able to knock $3,460,000,000 off the debt from surplus receipts, in addition to the $4,907,000,000 retired from ordinary receipts in fulfillment of the statutory requirements

Slight decrease for month due to Treasury's financing operations. Report for December will show upward trend, reaching estimated $21,426,000,000 at end of June, 1933, and, on the basis of the executive budget for 1934, if estimated revenues are not increased by new taxation, reaching estimated $21,718,000,000 at end of June, 1934.*

Reflecting the mounting Treasury deficits, the above table shows $3,500,000,000 added to the national debt in the twelve months from Nov. 30, 1931, to Nov. 30, 1932. This increase was almost three times the entire national debt of 1916.

Parliaments Do Nothing But Talk; Dictatorship Only Practical Form of Government, Says Shaw

Under That System Right Men Will Assert Themselves and Wrong Ones Be Found Out, He Argues.

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.
(Copyright, 1932.)
LONDON, Dec. 17.

THE real function of Parliament in Britain is to prevent anything being done by simply talking about it. All parliaments are the same, whether you call them Senates, Congresses or Chambers, or what not.

Yet where does all the talk lead us? There is too much talk and too little government. The world is not governed now. Talking prevents the world from being governed. It is merely being talked to.

I look back on my far too long career and can remember instance after instance of a sensational kind wherein talking has obscured real and potent facts. There were the utterances of Sir Edward Grey, our Foreign Minister, made before the war.

Listening to them nobody would have suspected that there was any treaty between Russia, France, Belgium and England. He absolutely denied it. Yet, when war came, it was obvious that it had been carefully planned, but Sir Edward Grey had been so busy talking about problems that nobody noticed it.

Speeches and Acts.

Came the war. We were all registered. I have still my card. We all thought it was for rationing purposes. Nobody thought of conscription because Asquith had been making speeches in which he would not have conscription at any price. Then conscription came. We were so staggered we did not notice the discrepancy between Asquith's speeches and the actual facts.

Now we have Ramsay MacDonald, once our colleague in the Fabian Society, and now in a very different position.

You remember what he said when he was leading the nation at the recent election. To elect him would mean the retention of the gold standard. That is what he promised us. He got his majority, a big one; now look what has happened to the gold standard and the balance of trade and all the other things he promised us.

The trade of England was never lower than it is at the present moment, and now the Bank of England is going broke. Going? I believe they are broke; for they are only paying us about 13 shillings for our pound.

Now Mr. MacDonald is saying it is a good thing to go off the gold standard and is advising all the other nations to come off it.

Those Election Issues.

What happens at elections? They are not elections, but stampedes. At one election it is the gold standard that causes the stampede, at another it is a Zinoviev letter. Both these talky-talky topics provided a really magnificent stampede, but nothing to the stampede at the Presidential election in America. Never was such a thing known before.

Roosevelt was going to do wonders, Hoover was going to damn the country forever. So they elected Roosevelt, but it really doesn't matter whom they elected. The result will be the same. Each said something was going to happen. Something WILL happen, but it won't be what they said would happen.

It is supposed to be democracy that keeps State Legislatures going and keeps Congress going there, and in this country that keeps Parliament going. Nonsense! It's talk, talk and nothing but talk.

We have now to think of the possibility of a government outside of Parliament; that is the government of the future. Being governed by Parliament at the present moment is just so much madness.

In Parliament's Place.

Guy Fawkes wanted the government to do a certain thing which it declined to do, and so like an intelligent man, he wanted to blow up Parliament. I think it is to be regretted that he failed. The whole history of Parliament is a vindication of Guy Fawkes.

It is being continually demonstrated that government can be defeated by having Parliaments, but Parliament not only defeats governments, it also defeats democracy.

So we must assume that we have got rid of Parliament. Now we must ask what is to take its place and what is going to be the democratic foundation of government which seems most in touch with the people? The government we adopt must be capable of giving the people or the democracy exactly those measures which are good for democracy.

There is the occupational vote. Take a shoemaker. Shoemakers have got to make a number of shoes for the nation. They know where the shoe pinches; they know all about corns and bunions; therefore they must know what is good for shoe wearers and everybody is a shoe wearer. So we might be induced to have shoemakers' representation. The same about tailors, farmers, millers. One to work against the other so as not to make them too self-interested and grasping.

Then it is necessary for the Government to teach the people something. This is where the Socialists come in. As it is most necessary for the elected to be in closest touch with the people, then the occupational vote seems the most likely to provide us with an ideal government.

Two True Workers.

As in Italy and Russia, you have got to begin to get people electing representatives. Now there are certain conditions which must attend the election of these representatives. In the first place, something must be known about them. Heretofore each representative must live or have lived and worked in the district he is going to represent. He must also belong to the same class as the people who elect him. He also must have no interest in being elected, except a personal satisfaction that he is doing public work. I call the true workers for the public real people like Bernard Shaw and Sir Oswald Mosley.

Now don't laugh when I mention Sir Oswald Mosley; he is about the most interesting man we have at the present moment. He is doing something for us all outside Parliament and, as I have said, it is outside Parliament that we will have to look for the Governments of the future. Mosley is writing and speaking about real things at the moment. You will hear more about Oswald Mosley.

Mosley intends to do things and not talk bunk. Everybody else is talking bunk; going round and round the subject instead of tackling it square in the front. He will give a formidable account of himself.

Mosley as Dictator.

When the real crisis comes people will want somebody to come and tell them what it is all about. I have been telling them that this would happen for the last 40 years, but nobody has believed me. So now that it is about to happen it is Mosley's moment and as a man of action he will be ready.

Remember when Mussolini first tried to get elected he only got 25 votes, and from then it did not take many years to make him Dictator of Italy. More curious

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Would Refund Federal Debt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE indebtedness of the Federal Government now stands near the 20-billion-dollar mark. It is paying a variety of interest rates on this borrowed credit, ranging from 3 per cent to 4 per cent, which would put the annual interest charges on the indebtedness in the neighborhood of $600,000,000 to $800,000,000.

The Dec. 15 issue of one-year Treasury certificates at ¾ of 1 per cent was oversubscribed 16 times, more than four billion dollars being offered. Another offering of $350,000,000 four-year notes, bearing interest at 2¾ per cent, was oversubscribed 20 times, $6,666,000,000 being offered. Granted that there may have been some padding in the amounts requested by the various depositories, does not this indicate a tremendous surplus of unused credit lying idle in the banks?

With the tremendous pressure being brought to bear to reduce Government expenses, can no way be devised to refinance the Government's indebtedness, to let it avail itself of the low interest rates? It seems very likely that there would be many takers at even lower rates, since there is a great deal of capital lying around drawing no interest at all. Such refinancing, too, would not increase the demand for capital and consequently raise the rates. The paid-off bonds would immediately become idle credit, supplanting that removed through new Treasury issues. Too, there is little prospect that such funds will be needed for further industrial expansion, unless it be through credit extended to housing developments. Hence the moneyed interests would be more willing to tie up their funds for a longer period of time.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I THINK you should be commended upon your splendid editorial regarding President Hoover's gracious act in giving his Rapidan camp to the State of Virginia. It is rather gratifying that at last President Hoover has done something that meets with the approval of the Post-Dispatch. The President is a great man, and while the majority of the American people do not think so at this time, history will place him as one of our great Presidents. I am proud that I had the privilege of voting for him.

AMERICAN GIRL.

For Five-Day Railroad Week.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE purchasing power of the people is the balance wheel that regulates industry. This is one immutable law in economics that cannot be contradicted.

The judicious application of the five-day work week for railroad employes would start millions of dollars to working daily, thereby giving added impetus to everything that feels the touch of a well-spent dollar.

The advocates of the five-day work week in the railroad industry stand on the great principle of equity and justice, desiring an equal share in the privilege and opportunity of doing an honest day's work, firmly believing that the adoption of the shorter work week would bear its proportionate part in the recovery of a general prosperity. The plan is equitable and practical, and is proving its efficacy in many other lines of activity.

Enjoys Post-Dispatch Features.

SEVERAL letters have appeared lately commending your woman columnist, Elsie Robinson, and I want to add, "Me, too."

One of her earliest essays in your pages marked her out for me as a true lodestar in the generally cheap potpourri of commercial journalism. She wrote with earnest power and her theme was poverty, its horrendous crushing force, and of our vital need to banish it from our midst, and she revealed a virile intellect, free and potent. And a word of thanksgiving should greet the return of John G. Neihardt. Again and again in his reviews you will find him writing a pregnant sentence or paragraph adding that ineffable luster of greatness so lacking and so needed in journalism today.

PLEBE.

Praise for Police Department.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE always been a Democrat, and I am heartily in favor of the views of "P. W. G." in regard to maintaining the high standard of the Police Department as it is today. I hope Mr. Igoe and the other Democratic leaders of St. Louis will see their way clear for maintaining this type of Police Department. We have the outstanding Chief of Police, who not only has been honored in St. Louis, but has been honored by the International Chiefs' Association by making him president some years ago. He is internationally known as an authority, as an executive and as a successful Chief of Police.

We look forward to Governor-elect Park appointing a board that will continue the policies that have been practiced in the past years.

America Comes of Age

Unless we are mistaken, what has happened within the last few weeks as to the war debts will do more to open the eyes of the American people than anything that has happened in our history.

No country was ever so unprepared as the United States was for that major role in which we were cast by the World War. Always a secure people, with the Atlantic upon one side of us and the Pacific upon the other, we had never known exposure to the problems of the world, and so never dreamed that these problems would some day be our own. Before the World War, the United States was chiefly interesting to foreigners because of what Lord Bryce called our great political experiment. We were not a Power in the European sense. We were not a creditor nation. An immensely successful people, enriched by the New World, we were still undeveloped in that sense which distinguishes the cosmos from the community.

The French writer, Andre Siegfried, told us all about this in his book, "America Comes of Age." We saw ourselves through his scholarly and revealing eyes far more clearly than we had ever seen ourselves with our own.

The World War had closed the long provincial era in America as effectually as Commodore Perry had closed the provincial era in Japan three-quarters of a century before, as suddenly as Cortez had closed the provincial era in Mexico early in the sixteenth century. President Fillmore had sent Commodore Perry to Japan for the purpose of establishing diplomatic and trade relations with the hermit nation. The naval officer gave the Japanese an industrial exposition of American products and manufactures, including the railway and the telegraph.

Charmed and interested by such advances from the Western world, the Japanese opened their minds and their ports, thus inaugurating the most astonishing era of progress in the history of any people. Within less than half a century, Japan had become one of the Powers. Her exports spread to every part of the world. In turn, she became a market for every nation. Her students appeared in every great Western seat of learning.

Unfortunately, when America came of age she was not so charmed as Japan had been with the possibilities of the new era. Instead of doing what Japan had done, we closed both our minds and our ports. The provincialism of the American people was almost a phenomenon. "It is," says Siegfried, "the most difficult of all countries to understand." We had long before detached ourselves politically and culturally from Europe. Now we proposed to detach Europe and all other parts of the world from us commercially.

Those natural contacts which we had enjoyed with so many of the European countries in the first century and a half of American history were broken by our revolt from England. From that time on we became, in a sense, a hermit people. We were immensely clannish. We fought all our foreign wars with a spirit that must have been like that of the conquering hordes of Genghis Khan. We had grown to be a giant, one of the greatest swashbucklers of all time; but we did not realize, as Col. E. M. House points out in the current number of Foreign Affairs, that power and wealth, in addition to imposing grave obligations upon us, also expose us to widespread resentment and envy.

The World War, in which we were a participant from the moment it started, was our own equivalent of Commodore Perry's arrival in Japan. The Europeans had something more to show us than watches, firearms, astronomical instruments, telegraphs and railroads. They showed us what Shakespeare has so melodiously called this mundane sphere. Do what we would, we were inevitably drawn into that world of which we are a part.

The greatest prophet and the most forward-looking man among us was Woodrow Wilson. He conceived that the world of which we had found ourselves a part might be organized into an international society which would do away with war and all its works. Our international bankers reacted to the revelation in a manner very characteristic of us. It could not have differed greatly from the manner in which the ingenuous Quakers first traded with the Indians. Our bankers let Germany have the money with which to pay reparations. They also financed the South American republics. In some instances, they bribed foreign governments to borrow. If we were not asked for money, we thrust it upon someone.

The American people had been enriched by the war. Most of them had never had money. They bought anything offered for sale. When the awakening came, their investments abroad had mounted into billions of dollars, much of it probably lost. Their domestic investments had followed everything to fantastic heights. The deflation in securities alone has been more than 60 billion dollars. The international bankers who had despoiled us were put in the public stocks by a Senate committee. They said they had suffered with the rest.

The situation was not much unlike what had happened in Spain when she was enriched by the gold of Mexico and Peru. Nor was the naivete of our international bankers much unlike what our domestic bankers and money lenders had done. The debt upon farm lands is nine and one-half billions; upon urban real estate three times as much. It is too great even for the gentle art of foreclosure. We had all spent money like water. As eminent an authority as Glenn Frank thinks inflation is the only way out.

All the European writers who have studied the great depression agree that the collapse of the stock market in 1929 was a major factor. An impression had got about in the United States that we were all to be rich. Even an experienced industrialist like John J. Raskob went so far as to propose a people's investment trust, in which the meanest man would be a stockholder and a beneficiary.

That prudence which Benjamin Franklin had advocated was thrown to the winds in the orgy of speculation. The United States became a veritable Monte Carlo, in which thousands of seemingly shrewd people possessed the secret of beating the system. More things turned to ashes on Black Thursday in the United States than had ever turned to ashes in any former phenomenon of the kind. It is easier to dig through the crust of Herculaneum and Pompeii to find values than it is to dig through the ashes of Wall Street until something worth while is exhumed. The Mississippi Bubble, the adventures of the French bourse, the panics of the Goulds, the Drews and the Fisks, were all as nothing by comparison with what happened when Europe deluged us with her gold.

At about the same time, our Congress passed the Hawley-Smoot tariff law. Excluding the goods of other nations, as it virtually did, it was of a piece with our great delusion of self-sufficiency. The Raskob scheme for making everybody rich, the Hoover augury of poverty abolished, the Coolidge myth of a better and rosier time under the benign rule of the bankers and industrialists, were all matched by the Hawley-Smoot tariff. We had become a world Power, a great creditor nation, a molder of the destinies of men everywhere, and yet turned our backs squarely upon everybody who sought to trade with us, everybody who looked to us for guidance and leadership in our new international role. The adventurer and the money lender sat in the seats of the mighty. It was a spectacle for Olympus.

The average member of Congress is opposed to any amelioration of the war debts. He is opposed to the League of Nations, to the World Court. He wants a big army and navy. Such is the parochialism of America, the growing pains of a great nation coming of age. The British said when they sent their major note on the war debts that they were addressing not only our Government but the American people.

The French also addressed the American people. They all realize, as members of the British Parliament put it in a debate on the war debts last Friday, that we are a people of many diverse elements and areas, a congeries for which the Government cannot hope to speak. That was where Mr. Hoover made his great miscalculation. He thought we would back him up if he could trade the war debts to a degree for the reparations. We have not done so. He is bigger than we are. So was Woodrow Wilson. Both had a vision in which we strangely could not share. It is not altogether that we are without leaders; we sometimes cannot be led.

It is impossible to foresee how immediately the recent revolt in Europe against the war debts will affect public opinion in the United State. We must give America time to rise to the stature of that giant part which she must inevitably play. Time alone is the maker of all great things.

An Apology From Moscow

Russia's foreign policy consisted for so long of a scornful, even defiant, attitude toward other nations that news of a formal apology from Moscow, even though not directly from the Government, has an air of decided novelty. England is the recipient of this diplomatic innovation, proffered by the editor of Izvestia, official Soviet Government newspaper. The occasion was an article printed by Izvestia, accusing the British Intelligence Service of manufacturing evidence that Stalin was fomenting civil war in India. This aroused a storm of protest in England, and an apology was demanded. The Russian Ambassador now has told the British Foreign Office that the editor was misinformed by a correspondent, and accordingly sent his regrets.

"Was it worth while raising all this fuss?" Winston Churchill asked, according to a wireless dispatch to the New York Times, when the Under-secretary for Foreign Affairs gave the news to the House of Commons. "Yes, I think it was," came the reply. It was, indeed, although only a small point was involved. For it shows a glimmer of doubt illuminating the doctrine of Soviet infallibility, and a new desire to observe the amenities, rather than to wax indignant when Russia is in the wrong. Russia's desire to promote trade and non-aggression treaties with other nations is, of course, at the bottom of this conciliatory attitude, and the immediate objective in this case is resumption of business relations with England, abrogated by the latter after the Ottawa conference. This apology, which England accepts as closing the incident, shows how the wind blows.

A Special Session

The lame duck session is waddling around in its customary aimlessness and getting nowhere. This is the last such session we shall witness, and it is a costly spectacle. There is so much that ought to be done. Here is a crisis which, seemingly, would inspire all men in responsible position to great effort. Instead, personal pique, partisan politics and shopworn prejudices are obstructing legislative accomplishment.

The situation, as viewed by our Washington correspondent, portends an extra session, shortly after the new administration takes over affairs, which will continue on the job for more than a year. That prospect need not be disconcerting. Conditions demand the best service our political brains can give, as well as our industrial and economic brains. And our political brains can function effectively only when Congress is in session.

One of the many mistakes of the present administration was Mr. Hoover's obstinate refusal to summon Congress back to Washington during the long, trying summer of 1931. No one can have forgotten the frantic calls from the White House of the leaders of both parties in June of that year when the moratorium on war debts and reparations was proposed as an eleventh-hour emergency operation. Had Congress been in session then, as we believe it should have been, the moratorium would have been a normal administrative action. As it was, it had the appearance of an executive decree, notwithstanding the approval of party leaders. In blunt fact, it had a dictatorial flavor.

Congress resented it. That resentment still smolders in the legislative attitude toward the war debts. But if Congress had had its proper part in formulating the moratorium, had had the information on which the President acted, had been made officially aware of the urgent necessities of the case, had read President von Hindenburg's Macedonian plea to President Hoover—if that had been the procedure, it is fair inference that an enlightened Congress, co-responsible with the President for the moratorium, might today take an enlightened position on the war debts.

It may not be within the compass of legislation to lift us out of the depression, though it is pretty generally recognized that except for relief, legislatively applied, we should be deeper in the mire than we are. What is apparent is that a capable direction of our foreign policy is now a vitally important factor, and, of course, there can be no capable direction of foreign policy with Congress on vacation. We are speaking, of course, of a Congress commissioned by the people to undertake the task of governing; not of a group of repudiated politicians who have failed.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

The Great Delusion

OUR TIMES: 1909-1914. By Mark Sullivan. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

SINCE the curious persuasion became general in the world that somehow democracy was triumphant and the people had at last become the masters of their destiny, perhaps no work has appeared that can so accurately be described by the expression, "democratic history," as can "Our Times," by Mark Sullivan.

Wells' "Outline of History" was democratic in the sense that the entire story of mankind was revised in keeping with the proletarian point of view; and with what solid satisfaction to the flattered many, the enormous popular success of the world would seem to attest. It was distinctly a doctrinaire's reinterpretation; and whatever may have been its value in presenting all history as an organic continuity, a less hysterical and better educated posterity can hardly take Wells' judgment seriously in certain realms of value where the proletarian spirit cannot reasonably be expected to operate otherwise than as the proverbial bull in the china shop.

Mark Sullivan, on the other hand, is the shrewd and urbane reporter of popular moods and fashions and unconscious trends. The outstanding public figures emerging from the great mass drifting with the winds of the going persuasions, seem, when the book is closed, precisely what they had to be in such a time—the objective embodiments, the articulate champions of the moods and whims, the desires and necessities of the inarticulate many.

Mr. Sullivan has no social doctrine to inculcate, no thesis of any sort to support, and his mildly philosophical bent is employed, not in the tracing of a large comprehensive pattern, such as a lonely height of time may reveal, but with the fitting together of minor details in the immediate picture. However the future social historians may deal with the material that Sullivan is preserving for them, that the material is accurately presented and rich in the human stuff of vital history no one is likely to question.

With each new volume, and the one here listed is the fourth, it becomes more apparent that a truly important source work is in the making; the more important in that it deals with the pivotal generation in what is undoubtedly one of the major changes in all history. The work, beginning in 1900 and soon to reach our own perplexed and ominous moment, must be seen, in the last analysis, to deal with the generation of the Great Delusion.

It is the generation in which competitive machine industrialism resulted in the wiping out of old standards in all realms of thought and behavior; created in all realms a general spirit of anarchy, fatuously mistaken for a new freedom; actually believed that a steadily increasing mass production, without reference to purchasing power that in the very nature of the competitive profit scheme could not keep pace with the product, was the key to Utopia. It is the generation that, even in its greatest captains of industry, did not suspect that an effort was being made to adapt the horse-and-wagon social economy of a vanished agricultural regime to an age of high-powered machines in an urbanized industrial world with but shallow anchors in the soil.

In the present volume, covering the five complacent years just previous to the World War, the increasing pulse and rising fever of the Delusion are distinctly felt. These are the years in which Henry Ford emerged as a virtual Messiah of Materialism, preaching and practicing the gospel of unco-ordinated mass production that was somehow destined to make all men rich. Just how this could be was set forth even by very distinguished economists, and many of the great captains of industry were heard to swell the chorus of delusion. Along with many old, and, by that fact alone, ridiculous, beliefs, thrift was assailed as a vice and deliberate waste was urged as a virtue. It was the prevailing quantitative obsession of the age rapidly developing into a fatal madness, while the mood of anarchy increased in every field—in ethics, morals, literature, painting, sculpture, music, psychology, philosophy, religion and even in science, regardless of its fundamental pretensions.

Social philosophers of the future can hardly regard it as accidental that, as recorded by Sullivan in his usual entertaining manner, ragtime, the forerunner of jazz, emerged during these years; that the craze for indecent dances swept the country; that the Freudian psychology, with its emphasis upon the bestial aspect of man and its attribution of all dominating impulses in personality to sex, achieved an overwhelming popular acceptance. Surely it can be shown that the Great War, which will be treated in the next volume, was only a major symptom of the prevailing social disease which these minor cultural symptoms indicated.

As stated before, it is not Mr. Sullivan's purpose to trace the large pattern beneath the apparent chaos of facts with which he deals; but he offers an opportunity for the tracing of that pattern, which should make clear the growth of the anarchic mood out of the gospel of laissez-faire economics, which is essentially a preachment of anarchy. The gospel was already considerably over a century old, and because of the stimulus it had given to invention and activity, it had already done more in the material development of the world than had been achieved in all previous history. Accordingly, an unbounded optimism became the fashion.

But the joker in the scheme was emerging; an anarchic mood had arisen from the material level of its origin to the upper levels of immaterial human values, as a hollyhock blooms from the base to the tip of its spike. Already at the base of the spike was the original conception of what has seeded in vast combinations of capital on an international scale; and by the time the original anarchic impulse bloomed at the top of our scale of values, we were ready at the bottom for that orgy of international anarchy which broke out in 1914 and is still not only unabated but apparently more terrible than ever in its possibilities.

MONEY IN ELECTIONS. By Louise Overacker. (Macmillan.)

AN associate professor of political science at Wellesley College discusses the sources of political slush funds, their uses, and the results in corruption attained thereby. The author asks and undertakes to answer the question: "Does our present method of financing campaign funds constitute a danger to democracy?" She assumes, evidently, that the word, democracy, expresses a reality.

The author bases her study upon data uncovered by Senate investigations, official reports of campaign committees, reports filed under the corrupt practice acts of many states and upon the personal testimony of public officials.

DURING our latest quadrennial sham battle, we heard high praise of our "rugged American individualism" and were importuned to rally in defense of it. Apparently the "forgotten man" was not greatly impressed by the fine mouth-filling phrase. Perhaps he yearned for cheese and crackers with his "beer by Christmas." Possibly the thought of starving, both ruggedly and individually, was too much for him. But had he understood the now obsolete, though still dominant, social principle concealed beneath that phrase, and had he been aware that his choice of answers was being limited automatically to an essential "yes," he might have answered "no"—and started something vital to his interests.

The above oblique remarks may seem quite beside the point in any comment on a serious study of triumphant gangsterism and racketeering in America, such as that here listed; but anyone who may take the trouble to read Mr. Lynch's volume with care should be able to see the connection. For what is gangsterism in America but the logical, extreme result of this very social philosophy of "rugged individualism" that has been praised so highly? A social doctrine, involving a glorification of the predatory and acquisitive instincts in the human animal, leads inevitably to anarchy; and we have arrived.

Those who think complacently about gangsterism as merely a detached phase of crime, to be suppressed somehow, are kidding themselves. This social phenomenon is integral in our existing social structure. Already the annual cost of gangsterism to the American people, according to the official estimate, exceeds the cost of running the Federal Government. A state of open and successful armed rebellion exists in America. Nowhere is anything really done about it, for the very good reason, as Mr. Lynch shows and most people already know, that government, itself, has become pretty much a racket.

Let the hunger marchers—potentially useful citizens, empty in the midst of plenty—throw a few pathetic bricks in Washington if they want to learn just how "rugged" our "individualism" can be! The army attacked the bonus rabble, which had no profits to share with politicians; but the army has not yet been summoned to rub out gangsterism.

100 ATTEND STATE CONFERENCE HERE ON CIVIC PLANNING

A State conference on city and county planning was held here yesterday, with more than 100 public officials, representatives of civic groups and others in attendance. Among the principal topics of discussion were the desirability of official adoption of city plans, as a guarantee of stability, and the need for county and regional planning authority.

Morning and afternoon sessions and a luncheon were held at Washington University and a dinner at the Kings-Way Hotel. The gathering was under auspices of the university and the city and St. Louis County chambers of commerce. The coming session of the Legislature probably will be asked to pass laws enabling at least the larger counties, such as St. Louis and Jackson, to put systematic planning into effect.

The program included the following addresses: "Present Status of City Planning in Missouri," Earl C. Mills of St. Louis; "The Essentials of a City Plan," S. Herbert Hare of Kansas City; "The City Plan of University City," Mayor Ruth; "County Planning Accomplishments in Jackson County," Presiding Judge H. S. Truman of the County Court; "The Scope of County Planning," Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the St. Louis City Plan Commission; "Social, Economic and Political Significance of Official City Plans," President Walter B. Weisenburger of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; "Legal Aspects of City Planning," Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati, president of the National Conference on City Planning; "Reconciliation of City Planning and Practical Politics," President Neun of the Board of Aldermen.

County Needs Common Plan.

"Only in the last half century," said Weisenburger at the dinner, "has man overcome the conviction that it was no business of the individual citizen how his city grew—orderly or otherwise. First the street car and then the automobile spilled population over the urban rims, so that destructive, unplanned, hit-or-miss city growth became a decided communal liability.

"Naturally, St. Louis has made more progress than St. Louis County in planning methods, but because our metropolitan growth slackens perforce within our city limits and expansion springs up in the county, the county is the place that is in greatest need of co-ordinated plans for expected growth. If values are to be anywhere near stable, if health is to be protected through adequate sewerage, if recreation is to be afforded through a county park system, 19 incorporated communities, some of which have some planning, and the rest of the county must seek a common accepted plan for the St. Louis County of 1975."

The county, by following a plan, is acquiring one of the finest highway systems in the country, but if the plan had been adopted 10 or 15 years ago, the speaker said, property owners would have known better what development to expect and there would be no superhighway controversy now.

Urges Adoption of City Plan.

Arguing for official adoption of the city plan, Weisenburger declared this would minimize objectionable amendments to the zoning law. It also would give permanency to the various plans, he continued, saying: "One of the greatest dangers to American cities is that in the pressure of these times we will kill civic idealism and deal city planning a stunning blow that it will take years to recover from and cost cities millions and millions of dollars."

Missouri cities having plan commissions, Mills related, are St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield; and in St. Louis County, University City, Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Richmond Heights, Clayton, Maplewood, Ferguson and Huntleigh; also Jefferson City, Sedalia, Cape Girardeau, Independence, Poplar Bluff, Excelsior Springs and Liberty. Mills referred to the unusual achievement of University City in laying out a city plan while its population was comparatively small, and to the recent plans of Jefferson City. He declared the State could be reasonably expected to assume responsibility for some of the Jefferson City work surrounding the Capitol. Mills concluded:

"There is but one avenue open leading to public economy, efficiency and attractiveness in public improvements and that is a comprehensive, official city plan and a definite financial program. Unquestionably, now as never before, is there need for all forms of governmental economy and for this reason city planning will be found indispensable. Its merits will be more fully realized when political economy is practiced as well as preached."

National Debt Mounts $10,000,000 a Day

laid down by Congress. Another $933,000,000 was taken from the debt by reducing the general fund balance in the Treasury, which had necessarily grown to abnormal proportions during the war.

The sum of all these reductions brought the total of the debt, as stated, down to $16,185,000,000 on June 30, 1930. Then came the lean years. In the three years from June 30, 1930, to June 30, 1933, successive treasury deficits will have erased $5,242,000,000 of the previous reductions. All of the 11-year reductions from surplus receipts and more than a billian and a half in addition will have been wiped out.

At the end of June, 1933, we shall be worse off than we were in 1924. We shall have slipped back more than nine years. This is one of the effects of three years of depression on the Government's finances.

It is highly fortunate for the Government, as Secretary of the Treasury Mills pointed out in his annual report, that during the good years we accumulated, through accelerated debt reduction, what amounted to a reserve which could be drawn upon in the lean years.

More Than Five Billion Result of Depression.

Until the deficits came upon us it was correct to say that virtually all the huge national debt was due to war. Unless the depression be regarded as a direct outgrowth of the World War, the share of war in creating the debt as it now stands must be cut to three-fourths. More than $5,000,000,000 is the result of the depression. This tells something of the force of the economic upheaval in the United States.

Of the total outstanding debt of $19,487,009,766 at the end of the fiscal year 1932, $60,086,685 was matured debt on which interest had ceased; $265,649,541 was non-interest-bearing debt and $19,161,273,540 was debt-bearing interest at the average rate of 3.505 per cent.

Interest-bearing obligations as of June 30, 1932, were divided as follows: Pre-war bonds, $789,567,390; Liberty bonds, $8,201,314,550; Treasury bonds, $5,258,776,100; Treasury notes, $1,261,283,600; certificates of indebtedness, $2,725,729,900; Treasury bills, $615,632,000, and special issues, $308,970,000.

The figures on the national debt and the growing interest charge lend point to a statement made this week by Secretary of the Treasury Mills before the House Ways and Means Committee on the urgent necessity of bringing the receipts and expenditures of the Government into balance.

"There is no more valuable contribution that can be made by the Government," he said, "to the economic welfare of the nation. It is beyond question the most important task to which Congress should address itself at this session. Both parties unequivocally pledged themselves to this accomplishment."

If the budget is not balanced, the Government must keep on running up the national debt and the amount that must be taken from the taxpayers to pay interest. How long can the credit of the Government stand the strain?

English Editor Speculates on Trade and Work

per day—9000 times as many as were possible per day in 1929. Cigarettes, formerly produced at the rate of five or six hundred per minute per man, can now be produced at the rate of two or three thousand. In New Jersey a rayon-yarn plant is being erected that requires no human labor whatever and can run 24 hours a day. One hundred men in five plants can now manufacture all the bricks turned out by 2370 brick plants run at capacity during the building boom of 1929. Finally, the employment in the iron and steel industry of America was the same in 1929 as in 1887; but the output of 1929 was 9.3 times the output of the former year.

Two Divergent Views.

But against 7000 years what is the period of 100 years in its effect upon human psychology? It is true that the human mind is supposed to be adaptive to circumstances; and the intelligentsia loudly claim to be "modern in outlook; but, in view of the demonstrated and demonstrable facts just recorded—mere samples of 3000 similar instances—what is the value of their claim? We cited the cases last week of Sir Alfred Ewing and Prof. Lionel Robbins, the one an engineer and the other a professional economist. Sir Alfred Ewing maintains that mankind is not "ethical" enough to make a proper use of its potential abundance; and Prof. Robbins maintains that already we are living beyond our means and must contract our consumption.

The defect in both cases is the same, though it leads to different conclusions. Sir Alfred Ewing, being an engineer, cannot deny the reality of the abundance, but shivers with terror at the thought of distributing it. His "ethical" objection is a mere sublimation of his fear. Prof. Robbins, on the other hand, having probably never seen a factory in his life, and thinking in terms of money only, naturally cannot believe the report that, in fact, no possible rate of consumption can even begin to catch up to the actual rate of the development of the means of production.

Modern vs. Ancient Speed.

In terms of calories—if they mean anything to a professional economist—the potential production of the United States today is 150,000 per head per annum against, as we have seen, the beggarly 2000 of the ancient empires.

But will these facts, facts, facts outweigh the accumulated traditions of 7000 years of suffering under the curse laid upon Adam? Can the children of the yoke accept the gospel of man's redemption as promulgated through Watts' teakettle? On the other hand, it is too flattering to pretend that a simple inability to grasp the significance of the new energy dispensation is an ethical attitude, or that the theory that we are squandering our resources is "novel" and interesting. It is downright stupid; and the "bright intelligentsia" of today who fail to grasp the fact will figure in history as the Philistines of all time.

What Is to Be Done?

Fortunately* or unfortunately, however, it is not a question to be decided by professional debates. Events themselves are in the saddle. The obvious conclusion to draw, even from such findings as we have already cited, is that never again, and with less and less likelihood as the harnessing of natural energy to production increases, will the existing unemployed be reabsorbed into profit-making industry. If, as we have seen, their places are even now being filled almost as fast as they are being made, there is plainly no possible hope of their ultimate reinstatement; and the inevitable and increasingly urgent question to ask is, therefore, "What is to be done about it?"

We are plausibly informed that the view of the Bank of England and the Treasury is that the hope for the gradual and ultimate reabsorption of the unemployed lies in the conquest and development of new foreign markets. And for the "City," no doubt, concerned only with money, this is a natural enough point of view.

Whole World Affected.

But the mechanical development of productive resources, which has already reached such a height in America, is obviously not confined to that country, and with the inevitable spread of the same resources everywhere else it is absolutely certain that every nation will tend to become more and more "self-sufficient" and less and less obliged or disposed to provide a market for serious foreign investment. The problem of unemployment must, therefore, appear to be hopelessly insoluble in any of the old terms; and, what is more, any attempt to apply prehistoric treatment to it is bound to involve us in even worse evils than the unemployment itself.

World Demand Declining.

England is quite plainly not the only manufacturing nation in the world feverishly looking for foreign markets under the pressure of unemployment. There are others and greater. If therefore in face of an inevitably declining total world demand, England, under the direction of the "City," persists in attempting to maintain, or recapture, the lion's share of it, not all the good will in the world will prevent a clash between ourselves and our equally desperate competitors.

It is high time, in fact, that the nation, through Parliament, should demand that the Bank of England and the Treasury put their cards on the table and tell us not only what they are playing for but upon what they count to win. To make even the show of a case for what is declared to be their present policy they must produce some evidence that the employment is not an inevitably progressive feature of modern society, and that foreign trade has not gone forever.

*An interview with Mr. Scott giving a full account of the findings of the Technocracy group was published in the Post-Dispatch Oct. 23 last, under the heading, "Technocrats Tackle the Depression and Reach Some Ominous Conclusions." A signed article by the Engineer covering the same ground appears in the current issue of Living Age.

Quarrel in Senate Settled.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Participants in the recent Senate press gallery quarrel have shaken hands and the incident has been formally and finally closed by the Senate Rules Committee. Charles Stevenson, former Kansas City and Sedalia newspaperman, who was sought by Charles M. Pace, Senate Financial Clerk, asked that no action be taken against Pace for carrying a revolver when he went into the gallery looking for him. Pace assured the committee he meant no harm to Stevenson and would not carry the revolver again.

FUNERAL OF MAYOR STOCKHO TO BE TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Services for Clayton Official at Bethel Lutheran Church, University City.

The funeral of Edwin F. Stockho, Mayor of Clayton, who died suddenly Friday night, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Bethel Lutheran Church, Big Bend and Forsythe boulevards, University City. Burial will be in New Bethlehem Cemetery. Until 11 a. m. tomorrow the body will be at the Bopp undertaking establishment, Hanley road and Forsythe, Clayton.

Mr. Stockho, who was in his third term as Mayor of the county seat, died at his home, 59 Arundel place, apparently of heart disease induced by acute indigestion. He was a director and department manager of the Lammert Furniture Co.

The vacancy in the Mayor's office will be filled by the Board of Aldermen, which will select one of its 10 members to serve until next April, when an election for the unexpired term will be held.

Shaw Considers Dictatorship Most Practical

things have happen than Mosley as prospective Dictator of England.

Ramsay MacDonald became Tory Prime Minister of England. Had I said that 20 years ago you would have laughed just as you are laughing now about our friend Mosley.

Now this is the way we elect people. Somebody puts up for Parliament in the district in which I live. I don't like him; I don't know what he looks like except from a photograph taken 30 years ago which they print on his election address which he probably hasn't written. That address doesn't mean anything. He will forget all about it directly he is elected to the House of Commons. He will like us so long as we vote for him, but if we tried to marry his daughter or his son he would cut them off with a shilling.

Voting by Occupation.

Therefore there is something to be said about occupational franchise as they have it in Russia. There nobody has a chance of being elected unless the electors know them personally.

Under that scheme no man of a questionable character has a chance even to be put forward as a candidate. If he has borrowed five shillings from any of his future constituents the latter can jump up at the meeting and ask about the loan.

Candidates, therefore, in Russia must be that peculiar class of people fitted for and anxious to do public work and still have the respect and confidence of people who vote for him.

Now our ultimate aim is to have a big congress. Those people who are elected to it will elect their government. The government will consist of the chiefs of big industries with a strong quota of Fascists and Socialists. They will elect the local chiefs and they might be Absolutionists, Fascists, Socialists or even King Georgians.

Political organization will have to be evolved that will get us out of our present mess. It may be in the form of some hierarchy and something like the corporate state of Italy.

Anyhow it will have to get at the bottom of the trouble and find out a solution, otherwise out it will have to go.

Power Is Test of Man.

You will find out as they do in Russia that right men will assert themselves and you will find that the wrong men get swiftly found out. The only way to find out men to be right or wrong or negative, is to give them power. Power makes great men of some and makes others homicidal, like Nero.

Under this system which I have just pointed out a dictatorship must be evolved and it will be a dictator who has passed all the tests. You needn't be alarmed at the mention of dictator for you really have never had anything else in this country and your dictators are far more powerful for good or evil than Stalin in Russia.

Directly a dictator feels that he can no longer continue, or people find out that he is no longer efficient to continue—out he goes.

Political stricture is just as necessary for Fascism as it may be for Communism. Whether you get a Stalin or a Mussolini rest assured that system is to be the system of government of the future.

CITY LIBRARY HAS SECOND LARGEST MONTH IN HISTORY

415,409 Books Issued in November; 6217 Cards; 4883 New Books.

The second largest monthly circulation in the history of the St. Louis Public Library occurred during November, according to a recent report of Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian. Books issued numbered 415,409.

An increase of 21,755 volumes over figures for November, 1931, and a gain of 10,966 over the total for October were noted. The Carpenter Branch, Grand boulevard and Utah place, circulated 28,962 books, showing the largest increase among the branches. The blind department issued 3966 braille books.

During November, 6217 library cards were issued, 3513 to persons who had not had cards before. The library added 4883 new books to its shelves. The six non-fiction books in greatest demand at present are: "What Men Live By," by Dimnet; "A New Deal," by Chase; "More Merry-Go-Round," anonymous; "Marks of an Educated Man," by Wiggam; "Flying Carpet," by Halliburton, and "A Fortune to Share," by Young.

81 AUTO FATALITIES, ONLY 40 DROWNINGS IN NAVY

Surgeon-General in Annual Report Tells of Increasing Motor Vehicle Accidents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Automobile accidents in the Navy's personnel accounted for 81 deaths last year as compared with 40 drownings.

Rear Admiral C. E. Riggs, Surgeon-General of the Navy, in his annual report today stressed the increasingly important role motor vehicle accidents have assumed in their effect on the general health of the Navy.

Drownings, usually the leading cause of death in the Navy, dropped to second place in 1930 and again in 1931, having been exceeded both years by fatalities due to motor vehicle accidents.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER OF $8240 GIVES BOND

Harry Klie Jr., former East St. Louis manager of the Consolidated Oil Co., is at liberty today under $3000 bond, after being arrested on a warrant charging embezzlement of $2840 from the oil company.

Klie, who is 39 years old and lives at 1413 St. Louis avenue, disappeared early last March, shortly before the warrant was issued. His automobile was found two weeks later in Chicago. He returned to his home several weeks ago and the warrant was served Friday. The warrant charges Klie committed the embezzlement March 1, while he was employed by the company at $150 a month.

He owned the Columbia Theater in East St. Louis until June 24, 1930, when he filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy and it was taken over by creditors. He declined to discuss the charge.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE CIBULKA, ORGANIST, TO BE TOMORROW

The funeral of George Cibulka, organist at the Old Cathedral, 213 Walnut street, will be held at that church at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Interment will be in SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery.

Mr. Cibulka, who was 47 years old, died Friday night at his home, 3901 Parker avenue, following a long illness. He was a graduate of St. Louis University and a pupil of the late Charles Galloway, noted organist. Before becoming organist at the Old Cathedral 15 years ago he was instructor in music at Lindenwood College. Surviving are the widow and twin sons.

IN the fashion of barons of long ago, August A. Busch presided Friday night over a gathering of his family and friends at a lavish entertainment given at the Busch estate, Grant's Farm, the occasion being the debut ball of his young granddaughter, Miss Marie Eleanor Busch, the daughter of his son, Adolphus Busch III.

The scene was the Bauernhof. The term translated literally means farm yard. In this case it is applied to an elaborate building housing the fine show horses, cattle and vehicles for which the estate is famous, and which has frequently been used for parties to entertain the children of the family, and has been lent for charity benefits.

The entrance to the great U-shaped structure was flanked by giant Christmas trees, their colored lights reflected in the snow. At the entrance stood a carriage starter in full hunt regalia. Inside, the guests were directed past lighted stalls, where carefully groomed thoroughbreds viewed the proceedings with apparent interest, to dine and dance to the music of both an orchestra and special entertainers until the small hours of the morning.

The high-ceilinged vehicle room was converted into a ballroom at an expense of several thousand dollars. The carriages had been removed, with the exception of two of the picturesque tally-hos. Each has an interesting history, and both may be seen bowling along the countryside frequently during the hunting season. One was once the property of the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt, and before that was on a regular run between London and Brighton, England. The other has been in the Busch family for several generations.

On one side of the room was a long refreshment stand. On another the orchestra, each man garbed in bright colored silk jockey blouse and cap, was inclosed in a specially constructed house built to simulate a covered veranda, its pillars festooned with greenery and lighted by carriage lanterns. Storks, a characteristic decoration on the Busch estate nested in the chimney.

In a corner near the entrance was spread an elaborate buffet table 40 feet long, on which roast turkeys and pheasants were arranged on miniature trees at the base of which toy fox hunts were in progress. Whole roast pigs were crowded against salads, and at each end were pyramids of lobsters topped by clusters of vari-colored button chrysanthemums. In the center, beneath an enormous roast turkey in feathers, was the figure of a hunter taking a hurdle on a turf of brown bread sandwiches. The high brick arches of the walls were outlined in ropes of smilax and the ledge of each window which dotted them was filled with boxes of shaggy yellow chrysanthemums. Three enormous wrought iron chandeliers, hung with green foliage, were suspended from the ceiling and the light from their lanterns augmented that of carriage lanterns, which gleamed from the doorway.

In the center was a dance floor, roped off by leafy foliage, separating the dancers from many small tables decorated with chrysanthemums and arranged in night club fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. Busch Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Busch and Miss Marie Eleanor, received before a tall silver vase filled with dozens of yellow blossoms in front of a tally-ho. The men in the family, including Louis A. Hager Jr., a son-in-law of the host and hostess, wore the formal attire of the hunt, pink swallow-tail coats with robin's egg blue collars and black trousers. Mrs. Busch, her daughter-in-law and her granddaughter, appeared in elaborate evening gowns. Mrs. Busch Sr. wore black chiffon velvet with rhinestones glittering on the bodice, and diamonds. A black velvet wrap trimmed with chinchilla accompanied the costume, and on her shoulder she wore purple orchids. Mrs. Adolphus Busch was gowned in an evening ensemble of tea rose chiffon with a short chiffon jacket with a collar of natural fox fur. Her slippers were fuchsia tinted, as were the orchids in her shoulder bouquet. The debutante's gown was of yellow chiffon velvet, its neck line crushed down with a jeweled silver ornament, a replica of which held in place a bustle-like drapery at the back. She, too, wore orchids.

Preceding the ball many of the debutantes and their escorts were entertained at a dinner given at the Deer Creek Club by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langenberg. Before

DR. AND MRS. HENRY C. BERNHARDT of Kirkwood announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Bernhardt, to Charles Newcomb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Newcomb of Kirkwood. The wedding took place Saturday, Dec. 10, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride attended Park College. Mr. Newcomb attended Washington and Missouri universities, and is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. Mr. and Mrs. Newcomb will make their home in Kirkwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Edmonds and Dr. and Mrs. Henry L. Wolfner of 4563 Forest Park avenue will be at home next Sunday evening, in honor of Miss Josephine Wolfner Edmonds, their daughter and granddaughter, respectively, and her fiance, Harold L. Steinfeld of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Steinfeld of the Embassy Apartments, who will assist in receiving.

Miss Edmonds is a graduate of Mary Institute and is a senior at Washington University, where she is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority. Mr. Steinfeld attended the School of Engineering of Washington University. Their engagement was announced last summer.

Members of Miss Edmonds' sorority will assist in serving.

The wedding of Miss Gertrude Hooss, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Hooss, 3735 Juniata street, and John Whittington-Quinn of Cape Town, South Africa, took place at 8:30 o'clock Thursday night in the Messiah Lutheran Church, the Rev. W. F. Wilk officiating. The church was decorated with greenery and white flowers, and the aisle through which the bridal party passed was lighted with candles tied with white ribbon.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Louis J. Fink Jr., as matron of honor, and Miss Mary Jane Hooss as maid of honor. The bridegroom's brother, Tancred Whittington-Quinn of Detroit, was best man, and Mr. Fink was groomsman. The ushers were Jack Scanlon and Charles Beller.

The bride was attired in a gown of white panne velvet, made with a high neckline and long sleeves. A motif of pearls was embroidered around the armholes and the cord belt, and was repeated in a velvet coronet which held in place her tulle veil. From her shoullers depended a white satin court train sewn with velvet flowers and embroidered in pearls. She carried calla lilies.

Her attendants were gowned alike in white satin, with shoulder capes of poinsettia red chiffon velvet with tiny brimmed hats of red to match. They wore red slippers and the Christmas colors were emphasized in their white satin muffs to which natural poinsettia were fastened. Mrs. Hooss wore eggplant colored velvet with a shoulder corsage of orchids.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Whittington will depart today for New York, to sail for Havana on their honeymoon. They will live in St. Louis temporarily.

Miss Ruth Pauline Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kay, Festus, Mo., formerly of St. Louis, was married to Jerome Debs, Chicago, Sunday night, Dec. 11, in the crystal room of the Chase Hotel with Rabbi Thurman officiating. The bridal party stood before an improvised altar decorated with huge white chrysanthemums and pompons.

The bride's gown, a Vionnet model in cream satin, was very simple except for mid-victorian puffs on the shoulders and an outline of seed pearls along the empire waist line. A long train was built in the dress and was covered by the tulle veil which fell from a turban-shaped satin hat. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Simon Seegman of Pittsburgh, Pa., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Florence Kay, Miss Pansy Goldstein, Mrs. Oscar Brant and Miss Dorothy Salamon of Chicago. The bridesmaids wore Vionnet dresses of burnt orange rough crepe with capes of brown velvet over the shoulders tapering to the waistline. Their close-fitting hats were of brown velvet and orange taffeta. They carried tiny muffs adorned with shower bouquets of Joanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore a hyacinth crepe dress studded with tiny gold stars. Her hat and shoes were brown velvet. She carried Joanna Hill roses.

Mrs. Louis Kay, the bride's mother, wore white tigarra trimmed in bands of mink which formed short sleeves. Mrs. Debs, the bridegroom's mother, wore white crepe with capelets of brown mink. They both wore shoulder corsages of gardenias. Betty Jane Debs, Mr. Debs' sister, who was flower girl, wore blue taffeta.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS

Social Items From the Army Post

THE United Relief Campaign has closed at Jefferson Barracks with a pledge reported by every officer, enlisted man and civilian employe at the post.

As a part of the program for raising funds for local and Army relief the first of a series of boxing smokers was held in Atkinson Hall Friday evening. Ten bouts were held.

Lieut. Charles P. Bobe was host at a dinner at the Officers' Club for Frank D. Meckes, Capt. F. D. Harlowe, Charles Bobe and Tom Schatzman before the event. Mr. Meckes later officiated as a judge as did Capt. Charles H. Henry. Capt. Guy W. Skinner was referee.

Major and Mrs. Arthur Underwood and their two sons, Arthur Jr. and Andrew, left Monday for their home after a visit of five days with Major and Mrs. Thomas L. Smith. Major Underwood, who was formerly at Jefferson Barracks, is now on duty at the University of Illinois at Champaign.

Maj. and Mrs. Henry S. Cole left by motor Thursday morning for the East. They plan to stop at Washington, D. C., for a few days and then go to Far Rockaway, L. I., where they will be guests of Mrs. Cole's sister, Miss Adelaide Crimm, until they sail Jan. 19 on the army transport, Chateau Thierry, for their new station in the Philippine Islands. Miss Dorcy Cole, who is now in New York, will join her father and Mrs. Cole and will accompany them when they sail.

Capt. Robert L. Hostetler returned Friday from Lansing, Mich., where he had motored to take his young niece, Onalee, back to her home. Onalee had been visiting the Hostetlers for several months. En route Capt. Hostetler stopped for a few days at Fort Benjamin Harrison where he was the guest of Lieut. and Mrs. Clinton J. Ancker.

Plans are progressing under the direction of Mrs. Walter Krueger for the military ball to be given in February as part of the post program for Army relief. This relief association assists and cares for widows and orphans of deceased soldiers. The affair probably will include many novel features, among them a series of military exhibitions by soldiers of the Sixth Infantry. B. Elizondo. In Mexico City they will be the guests of Mrs. de la Rosa's mother, Mrs. Sara Padilla, until their return in February.

Capt. and Mrs. William W. Brier Jr. entertained at dinner last Sunday evening for Col. and Mrs. Walter Krueger and Maj. and Mrs. Oral E. Clark.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.

THIS was the week when the White House diplomatic reception gave a group of debutantes this country's nearest approach to a court presentation; when the social feud of Dolly Gann and Alice Longworth found a felicitious finale; when the Democrats debated having a several-section inaugural ball.

Not for many administrations has a diplomatic reception brought to the capital so brilliant a representation of the country-at-large as the one Thursday that fell on the day the debt payments were due.

Talk of a trip South for the President and Mrs. Hoover convinced many that the White House, usually giving its gayest parties at Christmas time, would be "dark" through the holiday season, and that there would not even be a New Year's reception.

The Smart Set In New York

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.

YOUNG people are returning from school for the holidays, and festivities the next two weeks will center around the younger set. Among the debutantes making their bows next week are Miss Nina Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis de Bebian Moore, who will be presented at a tea dance at the Colony Club on Tuesday; Miss Alva de Acosta Root, daughter of Mrs. Henry S. Breckenridge, who will be guest of honor at a luncheon at the Colony Club on Tuesday and a dinner at the Coffee House Club Thursday; Miss Margaret Milbank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Milbank, who will make her debut at a dance at the River House on Thursday, and Miss Adeline Hathaway Weekes, who will be honored at a Christmas eve dinner dance at the Central Park Casino, given by her mother, Mrs. Alexander Tcherepnine of Paris.

Miss Helen Choate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, and Geoffrey Platt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Platt, will be married Wednesday in the Church of the Heavenly Rest. The bride's attendants will include Miss Priscilla Choate, Miss Phyllis Byrne and Miss Jean Sears of Boston; and Miss Joan Harding, Miss Clarissa Platt, Mrs. Charles B. Harding and Mrs. Daniel Lindley of New York. The bride is a granddaughter of the late Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

SCOUT WINTER CAMP DURING THE HOLIDAYS

Registration for Outing at Irondale, Mo., Will Close on Wednesday.

The drop in temperature and the increased snow have stimulated interest in the Boy Scout winter camp which will be held during the Christmas recess at the regular scout camp at Irondale, Mo. Registration for the camp will close Wednesday at scout headquarters.

Already more than two-thirds of the camp has been reserved by scouts, according to Merle D. Shippey, camping director of the St. Louis Council. Scouts will leave Dec. 27 in the morning and return Dec. 31 in time to spend New Year's eve with their parents.

The total cost of the winter outing is $9, of which a $2 registration fee must be paid before Wednesday. The cost of the camp is lower this year than ever before.

The campers will occupy Adirondack shacks and if the present snow continues there will be skiing, sleighing, bob-sledding, snow-shoeing and skating. In the last few years elaborate preparations for winter sports have been made, but the weather has been too warm. Morton Pareira and Louis Sherwood of the summer camp staff will assist Shippey with the camp. Robert Morath, summer bugler, will also attend.

The following scouts have registered: John King, Wilford King and Bob Morris, Troop 44; Arthur Wright, Walter Hays and Phil Russell, Troop 61; Don Burke and Ed Spellenberg, Troop 27; Giles Strut and Thomas Quinlen, Troop 122; Bob Roeder and Maynard Carter, Troop 90; Robert Fifield, Troop 8; Bill Russe, Troop 153; Lawrence Russe, Troop 186; Billy Woods, Troop 236; Tom Driggs, Troop 13; Billy Brier, Troop 187; Arthur Tichenor, Maplewood Troop 1, and Gordon Williams, Brentwood, Troop 1.

Troop Notes

Headquarters Notes.

December boards of review, scheduled for this week are as follows: Tomorrow night—South District at Rose Fanning School, Interracial District at Banneker School; Tuesday—North District at Farragut School, West District at Ben Blewett Intermediate School, and Suburban District at Webster Groves High School; Wednesday—Central District at Gallaudet School. All reviews begin at 7:30 o'clock.

District courts of honor will be held during the Christmas recess. All awards except Tenderfoot and Eagle badges will be made. Applications for Star, Life and Palm badges must be on file at scout headquarters by tomorrow night. Applications for merit badges must be on file by Saturday. Following is the schedule of the courts: Wednesday, Dec. 28—Suburban District at Webster Groves Trust Co. at 3 o'clock, South District at Holy Ghost Evangelical Church at 8 o'clock; Thursday, Dec. 29—Central District at Lafayette Park Presbyterian Church and Inter-racial District at All Saints Church, both at 7:30 o'clock; Friday, Dec. 30—North District at St. Paul's M. E. Church at 8 o'clock and West District at Ben Blewett Intermediate School at 7:30 o'clock.

North District.

Troop 162 has reorganized and now is sponsored by Farragut School Patrons' Association. A new troop committee has been appointed. The troop will, like all troops, re-register in January.

In the patrol contest in Troop 33, St. Peter's Evangelical Church, the Kuku patrol is ahead with 25 points. Next in line are the Flaming Arrow with 20, Flying Eagles with 15, and Silver Foxes with 5. Edwin Miller is leading in the individual scoring with 14 points, followed by Allen Stickner with 11 and Kenneth Koeller with 7.

Seven new scouts were invested into Troop 114, Baden School, at a recent court of honor. They are: Russell Burback, Sammy Jones, Ralph Kinder, Robert Knight, Jack Rice, James Eaues and Bernard Keller. Three scouts were advanced to first rank and two became star scouts.

South District.

The standard troop award was given to Troop 168, St. Pius Church, at the annual Fathers' and Sons dinner held Tuesday evening. The troop also received its charter for 1933 and a camping certificate for a troop unit at Irondale.

Plans for the formation of an associate scout group made up of older boys were formulated at an old timers' dinner held last Wednesday by Troop 198, St. John's Episcopal Church. The new group would keep in touch with troop affairs even though its members are all out of scouting.

Merit badges were awarded to Charles Meyer, Ried Freiermuth, Frank Schoenborn, and Wilbert Pickles at a court of honor for Troop 76, Winnebago Presbyterian Church. William Erb received a first-class badge and Vernon Wilson and Malcom Timpe second-class badges.

Twenty-five awards were made at a court of honor for Troop 245, sponsored by the Lindenwood Patrons Association, held last Friday.

West District.

Richard Elliot Jr., Thixton James and Drane Wilkinson Jr., received star badges at a court of honor held last Friday by Troop 120, Church of the Holy Apostles. A tenderfoot investiture ceremony also was held.

Robert Walker, Jack Barton, and Clyde Stewart received awards at the annual Fathers' and Sons' banquet of Troop 45, First Christian Church. Billy de Bord was admitted to the troop.

Cub Notes.

At the conclusion of the Den Chiefs' training course yesterday morning at the Michael School, 31 certificates were awarded to members of the course by Earle W. Beckman, scout executive of the St. Louis Council. The Elements of Cub Leadership course will close on Tuesday night.

Belleville Area.

A playoff was necessary to decide the winner of the annual Boy Scout first aid meet for Belleville troops held at Millstadt Liederkranz Hall last Saturday night, but Troop 11, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, finally took the title from Troop 9, Union School, last year's winner. Troop 12, St. Paul's Church, was third.

Twelve teams competed. Each troop sent six members. Troop 11 was represented by Melvin Kastel, Charles Wuller, Fred, Koening, John Reis, Robert Wuller and Marion Gundlach.

PART FOUR. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 18, 1932. PAGES 1—41

Casey Back

Returns to City to Open Shubert-Rialto With a New Stock Company —Motion Picture Moves Into the American.

WITH Arthur Casey back in town the languishing drama may be said to be sitting up and taking notice. Rehearsals are now under way for "As Husbands Go" which will be the first piece produced at the Shubert-Rialto, where Casey and his stock company will hold forth, beginning Christmas night. With his usual policy of bringing in guest stars to supplement the regular members of his organization, Casey hopes to interest St. Louis in a string of New York successes at very low prices. Taking advantage of the falling market in royalties and salaries, Casey believes that he can give his patrons a first-class performance for less than a dollar and it is on this basis that he expects to keep the doors of the Shubert-Rialto open for the remainder of the season.

Catharine Doucet, who created the role of Emmie, the loving lady from Dubuque, when "As Husbands Go" was produced on Broadway, will be the guest star. St. Louis remembers her from her appearance in the same role last season here. She was a member of the Theater Guild Company for its production of "Camel Through the Needle's Eye" and Eugene O'Neill's "Dynamo," and she made her first great Broadway success in "The Royal Family."

Gladys George, who is to be leading woman during the season, comes from the Pacific Coast, where her most recent engagement was with the coast company for "As Husbands Go." She will play the same role in support of Miss Doucet that she played to support Pauline Frederick on the coast. She was leading woman for the Henry Duffy players in San Francisco and in Los Angeles.

Martin Burton, the company's leading man, had the juvenile role in "Death Takes a Holiday," and appeared in New York with Ethel Barrymore in "The Love Duel" and with William Farnum in "The Idol." In "Tommy" he had the same role, and he appeared in "Night Hawk," "Crime" and "Cafe de Danse."

Shelah Trent, ingenue, comes from the John Golden forces in New York, that producer having her under contract. She has appeared with success in "Eva the Fifth," "Get Me In the Movies," "We Never Learn," "Mr. Romeo," and "Bidding High." Stock engagements in Atlanta, Ga.; Yonkers, N. Y., and East Orange, N. J., round out the record of her stage experience.

Fred Sherman, the company's juvenile, has just closed a successful engagement with the Shuberts in "Best Years," and returns to the Arthur Casey Productions with which he has been associated for several seasons.

THE American Theater, now dark, will fill in Christmas week with a motion picture, "The Theft of Mona Lisa," which has had a great run all over the country, and will then get ready for Earl Carroll's "Vanities," which will follow.

Al Trahan, one of the comedians in the Vanities, is now known as "The King's Jester," because, while appearing at the Palladium in London last spring he was commanded for a performance and subsequently was celebrated up and down the realm as "the man who made King George laugh."

When the King expresses a desire for an actor to appear before him, of course, he does not issue a direct command. The artists first receives a letter on the stationery of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund and Institution. . . . In red ink at the top it is marked "Private and Confidential," and under that are the words: "Re: Royal Performance, London Palladium." It reads as follows:

"Dear Mr. Blank: We are compiling a list of artists for submission to his majesty the King for the above performance. I should be glad if you would let me know immediately if you are available to appear if selected."

"The command performance," of course, is considered the highest honor that can be bestowed on an actor, and to be the hit of it means front-page publicity all over the world.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.

GIVE Beatrice Lillie the center of the stage and a show isn't particularly needed, has been an axiom with Broadway producers since the day in 1919 when she arrived here with the first of Charlot's revues.

This comical burlesquer, who is Lady Robert Peel in private life, is a show in herself, a fact which seems fortunate after seeing her in the new revue, "Walk a Little Faster." Except those too few moments when Clark and McCullough are on stage, she offers practically all the diverting numbers on the program.

Robert McGunigle and Sid Perelmen have written for her some particularly appropriate sketches which she enacts with her flippiant and sophisticated style. One of the funniest moments of the season is when she plays the rude visitor who always says the wrong thing on a visit to a backstage dressing room. This sketch should establish McGunigle, an erstwhile Yale halfback, as one of our No. 1 writers of revue hilarity.

Again in the revue she and Bobby Clark do a burlesque of Tamara Geva and Clifton Webb in their "Alone Together" dance which is one of the most diverting satires since Miss Lillie did an imitation of Ruth Draper in one of the earlier "Little Shows."

"Walk a Little Faster" should have no trouble in surviving because it is bubbling with humor, but where it strikes a snag is in its production numbers of dances, songs and spectacles. The score is not an impressive one and it would be difficult to pick out a single tune which one can remember to whistle after leaving the theater.

Arthur Beckhard, who entered the ranks of Broadway producers by presenting "another language," has decided that his next production will be "Goodbye Again." The authors are Allan Scott and George Haight, the former being a lecturer and the latter a stage manager.

The leading role has been given over to Osgood Perkins, an actor who has distinguished himself in such salty roles as the managing editor in "The Front Page" and the press agent in "Wild Waves."

Jacqueline Logan, who has been playing in London talking pictures since she left Hollywood, is returning to the Broadway stage. She has the principal assignment in "Last to Speak," an item authored by Edgar Self.

Three new plays are announced for opening next week, the one of chief interest being "Lucrece," which has Katherine Cornell in the leading role. As an attraction for the holidays there will be a revival of "Little Women," which was played with considerable popularity here last Christmas.

At German Theater.

"Die tolle Lotte," a comedy by Hans Sturm and Moritz Faerber, will be given this evening by the German Actors' Co-operative Association in the auditorium of the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue.

Joan Blondell in "Central Park," at the Ambassador.

Ice Villages Made For Arctic Picture

"Ice architecture" is the latest art to be mastered by studio art directors and technicians. With snow as material, ice houses, igloos, fences and even Arctic villages are being fashioned near Teller, Alaska, for scenes in "Eskimo," being filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer polar expedition headed by Col. W. S. Van Dyke.

"We fashion them first out of snow," writes Col. Van Dyke. "Then we build a roaring fire inside. The outer snow melts and becomes water. We then rake out the fire quickly, and the cold night freezes the water to solid ice. The exterior is handled the same way. A hose connected to our portable boiler sprays warm water on the snow. Then the freeze at night gives us ice."

Preston S. Foster teamed up with J. Carroll Naish to make a hot time of it for the wild ducks. They bagged a couple near Manhattan Beach and they are looking for another spot where the ducks fly thicker and faster.

Marjorie Moffett To Be Here Dec. 27

Marjorie Moffett, former St. Louisan and a protege of Margaret Anglin, whom she met in St. Louis at the Garden Theater years ago will appear in a monologue repertoire at the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A. Tuesday evening, Dec. 27, 8:30 p. m. Miss Moffett has played on the legitimate stage. It was Daniel Frohman who induced her to appear on the concert platform. Her repertoire includes a variety of presentations.

Music Clubs Want An Official Song

The Missouri Federation of Music Clubs invites Missouri Composers to enter a Song Contest, for the purpose of selecting what will be known as the State Federation Song. The winning composition will be officially adopted at the State Convention which will be held in April at Sedalia. The contest will close March 1. Further details may be obtained by addressing Miss Lucille Barnes, State president, Carthage.

Symphony Orchestra to Give Popular Christmas Program

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra follows a custom inaugurated last year in announcing a Christmas "pop" concert to be given at the Odeon Monday, Dec. 26, at 8:30 p. m. Vladimir Golschmann has arranged a program combining delightful melody with brilliant orchestral colorings, and with fascinating rhythmic figures, for this gala concert, a feature of which will be Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade," which was so great a success when presented earlier this season, in the course of the regular concerts, that innumerable requests for its repetition have been received. Every seat in the Odeon is reserved for this Christmas "pop," the prices being 50 and 75 cents, with box seats at $1.

"Scheherazade" brings in musical guise an old Christmas favorite, for Rimsky-Korsakoff's great work is based upon "The Arabian Nights," which almost everyone recalls from the Christmas gifts of childhood. The music is a tissue of singing melodies and dancing rhythm and is as brilliant and colorful as a series of delightful illustrations to that book of wonders. Scheherazade, the teller of the tales, and her stern husband enter into the story, as do Sindbad the Sailor, and his ship, one of the Kalander Princes, and other favorite characters. But the composer has sought to create the atmosphere of fairy wonders and the brilliant and glowing colors of the Orient, rather than to tell the story. It is music to appeal alike to the habitual and the casual concert-goer.

Mr. Golschmann has arranged his program for this concert to present also Johann Strauss' brilliant overture to "Die Fledermaus," that delightful operetta which in its tuneful beauty St. Louis remembers as "The Bat" from its presentation by Municipal Opera some seasons ago; Camille Saint-Saens' symphonic poem, "The Wheel of Omphale," with its fascinating picture of the fabled Hercules spinning among the women; and Jan Sibelius' tone poem, "Finlandia," with its painting of wintry landscape in tone. The complete program is:

Overture to "Die Fledermaus" ("The Bat") .... Strauss
Symphonic Suite: 'Scheherazade" (after "The Thousand Nights and a Night") .... Rimsky-Korsakoff
I. The Sea and Sindbad's Ship
II. The Story of the Kalander Prince
III. The Young Prince and the Young Princess.
IV. Festival at Bagdad—The Sea—The Ship Goes to Pieces on a Rock Surmounted by the Statue of a Bronze Warrior—Conclusion.

There are no regular symphony concerts scheduled for this week, and the next will be presented Thursday evening, Dec. 29, and Friday afternoon, Dec. 30; the regular Saturday evening concert having been advanced to Thursday to avoid conflict with the celebrations of New Year's Eve. Mischa Elman, one of the world's foremost masters of the violin, will play the Mendelssohn Concerto at these concerts, while the purely orchestral part of the program will offer three delightful dances from Manuel de Falla's "The Three Cornered Hat" and Mozart's greatest symphony, the "Jupiter."

St. Louis Theater to Re-Open Next Sunday

Everything is ready and in order for the holiday reopening of the RKO St. Louis which will take place next Sunday, Dec. 25. At that time the local show house will present to local theatergoers Clarke Gable in "No Man of Her Own" in which this popular star will be seen with Carole Lombard and Dorothy Mackaill.

'Sign of the Cross' Booked to Begin at American on Jan. 8

Cecil B. De Mille's road show dramatic spectacle "The Sign of the Cross" will be shown for the first time outside of New York City at the American Theater here, beginning Sunday night Jan. 8. This Paramount production is the first great spectacle of the talking pictures and will be presented in all of the leading cities of America during the season of 1933 on the reserved seat plan with performances twice daily.

The man who shot lightning from the skies in "The King of Kings," who parted the waters of the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments," now touches a flaming brand to the magnificent city of Rome, and sends it up in smoke in "The Sign of the Cross."

The advent of this production marks the fifty-seventh feature film which he has presented to the screen. Beginning in 1913 with the film, "The Squaw Man" which in its day was above the ordinary rank and file of film fare, De Mille has swept down through the past 20 years.

The story of "The Sign of the Cross" is not, De Mille wants all to know, a strictly religious one, as was "The Ten Commandments" and "The King of Kings." The background deals with the clash between the pagan ideals of the Romans and the religious ideals of the Christian martyrs.

Barbara Stanwyck is that proud of her husband that she won't sign autographs or anything else other than "Barbara Stanwyck Fay." Her marriage to Frank Fay seems to be one of those rare "till-death-do-us-part" combinations.

The Week's New Films

By DAMON KERBY.

THE wise boys who know all about women usually run into trouble, and Pat O'Brien, out at the Missouri this week in "Virtue," was no exception. A New York taxi driver, O'Brien was in a position to gain a lot of knowledge about the opposite sex, at that, but he forgot all he ever knew in this respect when he met pretty Carole Lombard just after she had been ordered to leave town for the good of the community. Carole didn't leave; she responded to Pat's kindness, got a job, and married Pat, but as pasts have a habit of doing, Carole's turned up to embarrass her no little. Pat was outraged, of course, and his first thought was to leave without even stopping to take along a change of shirts. No quitter, however, he changed his mind and decided to string along with Carole as long as she kept on the straight and narrow path. Things went smoothly until Pat came home from work after midnight and found his wife away. Nothing wrong with her trip out, but Carole just couldn't explain, and they separated. Nothing less than a charge of first degree murder was necessary to bring them together again. The picture is filled with plenty of rough and tumble wise cracks and the fans will like it. Missouri's No. 2 picture, "Under Cover Man," has to do with Georgie Raft and Nancy Carroll turning up gangsters who had murdered George's father and Nancy's brother, and, as gangster fillums go, it makes very good meller-drammer, with Georgie and Nancy winding up as prospective candidates for a trip to the marriage license bureau.

Crime Never Pays.

CHARLES LAUGHTON, the English actor who scored a hit on the New York stage in "Payment Deferred" takes the lead in the talkie version of the same name showing this week at Loew's, and does a good job of it, too, with some excellent support by Veree Teasdale. The story, not a pretty one, hinges around Laughton who, as an English bank clerk—and a selfish and mean husband and father—murders and robs an unexpected visitor, a nephew who drops in from Australia. The crime isn't found out and, with the money, Laughton makes some investments which turn out handsomely. He can't leave the family's mean home, however, for fear that the crime will be detected. He does, however, send his wife and daughter—the latter Maureen O'Sullivan—away for a visit, and while they are gone becomes involved with another woman. His wife returns, learns of his original crime, and decides to stick with her husband until she discovers his affair with the other woman. There is another death and Laughton is charged and convicted, even though he is innocent, but he is quite willing to pay the penalty. Not a pretty story, as told, but a strong one and the acting is far and away above the average in the films. "Their First Mistake," featuring Laurel and Hardy, is typical Laurel and Hardy tomfoolery and may make the picture fans forget "The Isle of Desire," a third feature on the bill which is nothing minus in the way of entertainment.

They Get Their Men.

AFTER a vacation from the films, Pauline Frederick, capable actress, is making an attempted comeback on the screen in "Woman's Defense," out at the Fox, and, truth to tell, Miss Frederick's directors have handed her a story which isn't so hot for that purpose. Miss Frederick, you are told, was the proprietress of a combined gambling house and saloon in British Columbia, and she had an 18-year-old daughter in a California boarding school who believes that her mother operates an inn. This situation might have gone on indefinitely had not a crooked gambler, kicked out of Miss Frederick's emporium, discovered the daughter's address. A letter from him to the daughter, saying her mother was sick, brings the girl to the scene, and her mother learns of her coming only about 48 hours before the expected arrival. Then comes the complicated business of changing the saloon and gambling hall into an inn, followed by a killing, after which Theodore von Eltz, one of Miss Frederick's trusty helpers, is charged with the murder of the gambler. Von Eltz's fate is decided by the roll of a pair of crooked dice. He is vindicated by said dice and wins the hand of the daughter—Barbara Kent—while Jamison Thomas, still another of Miss Frederick's helpers, walks off with the former very recent gambling hall proprietress. On the stage, you may renew your acquaintance with the musical comedy "Irene," featuring the very lovely Kathryn Crawford.

Keep Off the Grass.

JOAN BLONDELL and Wallace Ford were just a country boy and girl who happened to go broke at the same time and same spot in the Big City. The spot was Central Park, and within 24 hours after they met Joan and Wally had helped to round up a band of New York gangsters and incidentally to fall for each other in a great big way. Mixed up in the picture is a battle with a lion which had escaped from the zoo, a hunt for a lunatic keeper, a first-class shooting, and several other harrowing details which escape us for the moment, but you may learn all about it—if you care to—by dropping into the Ambassador this week and seeing "Central Park."

Movie Stars

"ARE movie actors in danger of being eliminated by those from the stage?"

Henry B. Walthall, famous "Little Colonel" of D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," whose latest picture is 'Central Park," now at the Ambassador, doesn't think so.

"I'll answer you by quoting Shaw," he said recently. "Someone came to him when the movies were first invading London and asked if there was danger of the actor being eliminated.

"'You don't say which actor,' Shaw answered. 'Besides, why speak of it as a danger?'

"No, there's no danger on that score—except to such as would have dropped out anyhow for one reason or another. Pictures have always drawn from the stage more or less for their actors. I came from the stage. So did D. W. Griffith and many others. In the early days we were in danger of losing our stage jobs if we went into pictures."

"They were mostly one and two-reelers in those days, but even in later days we didn't use a script. We simply assembled the company and worked from a synopsis. We generally rehearsed from one to two weeks, on location if necessary. The result was that we generally shot the picture without a hitch—often having not more than 50 extra feet of film."

A smile came over his face as he stopped thinking of the past and brought his thought to bear upon the present.

"Don't worry about pictures," he said. "Pictures have gone through these revolutions before. They'll probably go through them again. But we'll always have pictures. They're better now, as a matter of fact, than they ever have been before. Better stories. Better actors, too."

WARREN WILLIAM never wears a costume in a picture, at least he has never yet made a picture in which he did not wear his own every-day clothes.

Just after finishing "The Match King," and while he was selecting clothes from his wardrobe to wear in his latest picture, "Employees' Entrance," he hit upon a scheme for numbering all of his wearing apparel to prevent errors in the combinations of clothes actually worn weeks apart, but appearing in one sequence in a picture.

Into the seams of each garment, on the back of each tie, inside the neckband of every shirt, he had a numbered piece of tape sewed. When any one combination of clothes is finally fixed upon for one sequence, it is carefully written down by number, both by Mr. William and by the script girl. All of which prevents Mr. William (on the screen) from leaving a room with a striped necktie only to enter the next room with a dotted one.

All of one outfit is hung on one hanger in his dressing-room closet between scenes, and the whole outfit has a number which is tagged to the hangar. In the coat and trousers pocket of each suit is another loose, numbered tag, this to enable Mr. William to tell the number of the suit he has on without taking it off to look in the seams.

Altogether it is a very complicated but very handy arrangement on pictures like "Employees' Entrance," in which he wears 20 or more different combinations of suits, shirts, ties and shoes.

RUDY VALLEE, who has retained his position as one of radio's brightest stars, over a record period of time for solo acts, has been signed by Paramount as the first of an all-star cast for "International House," comedy of a stranded troupe of performers in the Orient.

The singing star also has appeared in a number of short productions.

JAMES CAGNEY, having completed his latest Warner Bros. starring picture, "Hard to Handle," arrived in New York last week for a brief vacation. He expects to remain in the East for not more than a fortnight and then will return to Burbank to begin work on his next vehicle, "Picture Snatcher," in which he will play the part of a knight of the news camera. "Picture Snatcher" will be based on an original story by Danny Ahearn. In "Hard to Handle," just finished, Cagney appears as a press agent concerned in the exploitation of marathon dance tournaments and similar enterprises.

Mary Brian, who became a platinum blonde for the first time for her role opposite Cagney in "Hard to Handle," will return to her ordinary brunette appearance in her next picture. This will be "The Blue Moon Murder Case," based on a story by S. S. Van Dine, creator of the Philo Vance detective classica. Ben Lyon will have the masculine lead, and among others assigned to the cast are Peggy Shannon, Glenda Farrell, Lyle Talbot, Guy Kibbee and Harold Huber.

Ford Claims Lead In Total Sales Since First of January, 1927

Since 1927, when the Model T car was discontinued, Ford car sales led those of all other makes, according to a tabulation at the Ford Motor Company reported today by M. N. Johnson, local manager of the St. Louis branch.

In this period, from January, 1927, to and including October, 1932, the last month for which reports have ben compiled, Ford sales totaled 4,001,384, with 3,705,827 for its nearest competitor and total sales of all makes 15,183,842. Ford's share of all business in this six-year period was 26.4 per cent.

This record it was pointed out, was made despite the fact that Ford production here was halted twice during this six-year period in preparing for the Model A and the V-8 Ford cars. Manufacture of the Model T was discontinued in May, 1927, Ford being out of the market until December of that year, when the Model A was announced. Ford again was out of the market the first five months of 1932 until volume delivery of the new Ford began last January.

Ford passenger car sales in October were 20,410 units, or 32.3 per cent of the total sales of all makes. Ford has led in passenger and commercial car sales in the United States each month since June, when volume delivery of new Ford began.

Oldsmobile Plants Swing Into Production

Oldsmobile plants went into production last Monday and a full schedule will be in effect within the next week.

The Fisher Body plant adjoining the Oldsmobile factories, devoted wholly to making Oldsmobile bodies, also is in production.

"For weeks Oldsmobile has been ordering materials manufactured in anticipation of the resumption of full production," a statement says.

Oldsmobile will enter the 1933 selling season with dealer new and used car inventories at a minimum. It will have nearly 1000 more dealers than at the first of the 1932 season.

New Big Pontiac '8' For Low Price Field In Seven Body Types

Pontaic announce Dec. 28 a new big straight-eight in the low-price field. Concentrating upon a single type of motor and chassis for 1933, the Pontiac organization has effected major manufacturing economies. The new car will have a 77 h. p. engine.

Seven new Fisher bodies have been designed for the 1933 chassis. All are low, ultra modern and smartly streamlined. Among them is an innovation in body types, a close-coupled five-passenger, two-door model carrying a trunk. This is the touring sedan. The new Fisher no-draft ventilation system is built into each of the body models and safety glass windshields are standard.

The 1933 Pontiac is the product of more than 750,000 miles of experimental road development conducted during the last two years by the Pontiac engineering corps under Chief Engineer B. H. Anibal. They have been assisted by the staffs and facilities of the various General Motors experimental and testing departments.

Service Managers Hear Discussion of Power Booster Brake

A meeting of 125 service managers of St. Louis passenger car and truck dealers and large fleet operators was held at the plant of Borbein-Young & Co., 3212-26 Lucas avenue, the Bendix distributers, Thursday evening.

It was addressed by William Drumpelman, district representative of the Bendix Brake Division of the Bendix Aviation Corporation, who explained by word and motion pictures the plant, construction and operation of the new B K power booster brakes on new models of trucks soon to be announced. Installations on tractors, trailers and double trailer combinations were fully described.

Short addresses were delivered by Fred W. Parks, vice-president of the Bendix Cowdrey Division, and J. F. Kelly, Bendix district representative.

Friday evening, a similar educational meeting was held for executives of St. Louis new car distributers. In addition to the subjects covered in the Thursday meeting, proposed traffic safety legislation was discussed by Bendix executives.

Tire Tool Recuts Original Treads

The Kwick-Kut Manufacturing Co., 3828 Arsenal street, is manufacturing a new tool that recuts original treads in standard make tires, when sufficient rubber remains, and makes non-skids out of smooth "bald-heads."

The new invention, an electric hot-knife tire groover, is composed of a heating unit and removable cutting blades. The various blades make possible recutting patterns in all standard make tires.

Packard Finds Fine Car Buying Gaining

Buying in the fine car field, although still following that of all other cars in being far below normal, is showing unmistakable signs of improvement, in the opinion of M. M. Gilman, vice-president of distribution of the Packard Motor Car Co.

Registration figures for August, September, October and November have upset averages which existed for years preceding 1932.

"This year registrations of fine cars in August," said Gilman, "exceeded those of July. Since July this year fine-car registrations, instead of falling off as normally, have increased steadily month by month.

Graham Eight Sales Double Those in 1931

The introduction of the Graham eight, on Dec. 8 last year, gave motorists their first view of deep-skirted anti-splash fenders, sloping radiator grill and concealed chassis design.

The Graham-Paige Motors Corporation announces that in 12 months sales of this advanced style model more than doubled the sales of Graham eights in the preceding year.

Fast Advertising Presentation by Air, 1400 Miles in 19 Hours

When Advertisers Incorporated, advertising counsel for the Chrysler Sales Corporation, received a telephone call at 9 o'clock one morning to have layouts, copy and plans in the hands of Chrysler executives in New York City that afternoon, the request did not even cause a flurry. The material desired was ready, of course, and the only problem remaining was to get it to Cliff Knoble, of Chrysler, advertising manager, 700 miles distane.

It was found that a Trans-American plane left the Detroit City Airport at 11 o'clock and that it would arrive in Newark at 3:54. That meant delivery to Knoble in the Chrysler Building before 5.

Because of the pressure of time, Advertisers Incorporated had to have it back within 24 hours. Accordingly, after Knoble had rereceived the O K of the New York executives, he shipped it back by a plane leaving at 12:30 a. m. over United and Trans-American Air Lines,. It was received in Detroit at 6:05 a. m. and was delivered to Advertisers Incorporated when the office opened. The round, trip, including the visa by Chrysler officials in New York, had consumed just five minutes less than 19 hours.

Willys-Overland's New Cars to Carry List Price Under $500

Statement that the Willys-Overland Co. has been granted a license to use "floating power" engine mountings in its future products, is confirmed by John N. Willys, chairman of the board.

He said that the company's 1933 cars, to be formally announced Jan. 7, would include "floating power" among features, and would be priced under $500.

"I want to make it clear that Willys-Overland is not resting its case for 1933 on 'floating power' alone, although this is one of the features," Willys said. "Our principal and most important goal throughout our entire development was the production of a car that would be priced more on a parity with current income of the masses. To our own satisfaction we have proved that it is possible to produce a car, ultra-modern in design and performance, incorporating all that is desirable for comfort and convenience, yet in a price range that meets the demand of the public for a car within present-day means."

De Soto Factory In Production of New Line of Models

The De Soto Motor Corporation is in production of a new advanced De Soto Six for 1933, said by those who have seen it to mark a striking gain in style and smartness in a car already noted for its distinctive appearance. Performance, comfort and safety features new to its field are said to be incorporated in the 1933 car.

Byron C. Foy, president of De Soto, says that manufacturing plans for 1933 call for a measurable increase over the De Soto volume for 1932. Foy said that this was in spite of the fact that, by comparison with the showing of the industry as a whole in 1932, De Soto in 1932 made a better relative showing than any other car, except Plymouth, which is also sold by De Soto dealers.

Features such as floating power, automatic clutch, safety steel bodies and hydraulic brakes will again be important features of the 1933 car.

Changes in Body Styles of Oldsmobile To Be 1933 Feature

Style changes will be the most pronounced features of 1933 automobiles, according to John Oswald, body engineer for Oldsmobile. "The lines of the new cars will indicate a decided trend that will influence future designs," he says.

"The 1933 automobiles will be a symphony in curves with angular forms practically eliminated. The best examples of 1933 styling will be low, with lines that are both beautiful and designed to reduce wind resistance. Due to constructional changes to permit these new low lines, these cars will be more comfortable, safer and with greater roadabilty."

"The new designs actually have been under development for several years past, for fundamental style changes are brought about by gradual and progressive steps rather than by a sudden radical change," he declares.

Sanner in Detroit at G. M. Truck Session

E. C. Sanner, branch manager for the General Motors Truck Co., has gone to Detroit to attend a conference with Vice-President and Director of Sales J. P. Little and all branch managers and distributers in the United States.

"Nineteen thirty-three should find the General Motors Truck Co. in a most strategic position," said Little in commenting on the truck company's immediate outlook. "We will be in a position to offer the truck-buying public the world's most complete line of trucks and trailers manufactured by any exclusive builder of commercial vehicles. For a number of years we have been building toward the attainment of this objective which gives us the advantage of being able to compete in practically every market where trucks are sold."

Road Building Record.

A total of 6643 miles of roads were constructed in Pennsylvania from Jan. 1, 1931, to Nov. 15, 1932. Of these 6643 miles, 4900 are low-cost highways in rural regions built to get the farmer out of the mud.

Drives Large Diesel Bus 3218 Miles Across U. S. in 91 Hours

Dave Evans, race driver and holder of several records for transcontinental bus driving, set a new bus record from New York to Los Angeles on Nov. 17, when he drove 3218 miles in total elapsed time of 91 hours and 10 minutes, actual running time 78 hours, breaking the previous record by 41 hours. Evans averaged 44 miles per hour in spite of stopping seven hours, due to a broken axle.

The vehicle used was a 32-passenger Mack interstate Diesel-powered bus, and carried, in addition to Evans and C. L. Cummins, three representatives of trade journals and newspapers.

Pennzoil motor oil was used during the run. According to a telegram from Los Angeles, no actual motor oil consumption was noticeable, and the oil pressure never varied, even though the bus ran at 60 and 70 miles per hour a large part of the time.

After using Pennzoil in his racing cars at the Atlantic City and Los Angeles speedways, as well as in other tests, Evans again selected it for this run.

The Cummins-Diesel engine has been adopted by 14 leading truck manufacturers, in addition to manufacturers of road-building machinery and railroad cars.

The new 1933 Chevrolet six models were displayed for the first time yesterday throughout the country.

Chevrolet prices for the new models are announced, as follows: Sport roadster, $485; coupe, $495; coach, $515; phaeton, $515; sport coupe, $535; sedan, $565; and cabriolet, $565, at factory.

Longer wheelbase, new "aer-stream" styling, more power and speed but greater economy, larger and lower Fisher bodies with new Fisher "no-draft" ventilation, shatterproof glass in windshield and ventilators, cushion-balanced motor mounting, improved free wheeling plus syncro-mesh transmission with silent second gear, and a 'starterator" for simplified starting, are all new standard features included in the list price.

Wheelbase has been extended to 110 inches. The engine, which operates even more economically than the 1932 power plant, has been stepped up in horsepower to 65, mainly through lengthening the stroke, to deliver a top speed of well over 70 miles per hour.

In appearance the car differs radically from any previous Chevrolet model, the "aer-stream" styling falling between conventional streamlining and modified "tear drop" design. The motif of the new leaning V-type radiator is carried out through slanting hood doors and sharply slanted windshield pillars to the rear end, where an extension of the rear body panels sweeps outward and downward, screening the gasoline tank and the axle and the under carriage of the car.

Skirted fenders, which follow the line of the front and rear tires, and a lower running board, conceal working mechanism.

Simplified Controls.

Three fewer controls are employed in the new car than in last year's model. The starting button has been eliminated, and a "starterator" added, by means of which the motor is engaged by depressing the accelerator pedal. This has an automatic cut-out, so that with the motor operating the pedal performs only as an accelerator. The motor may be restarted without removing the foot from the accelerator, the hands from the steering wheel or the eyes from the road ahead.

A manual spark control has been eliminated in favor of a two-way automatic control which provides for accurate spark adjustment throughout the speed range, regardless of whether the engine is pulling through sand or coasting on concrete. This makes for gasoline economy.

The heat control button has been replaced by an automatic control, operated by a thermostat. This device, by providing the correct amount of heat to the warming engine and cutting out the heat flow at the proper time, also makes for better performance and economy.

Another device for economy is an octane selector, added because various types of gasoline differ in octane content. The Chevrolet selector enables a driver to get high operating efficiency out of any grade of gasoline. It consists of a control on the distributor which advances or retards the spark 10 degrees, according to the grade of gasoline being used. Thus a uniform gasoline cost per mile is possible.

Cushion-Balanced Engine.

Outstanding among the new features is the "cushion-balanced" motor mounting, or "sta-namic balancer," as engineers call it. The new mountings dampen out engine vibrations.

Another new feature is the Chevrolet sub frame. The engine rests entirely on this sub frame, with four points of support, and the whole of its weight is carried on two lateral supports, so located that the motor is balanced on its center of gravity. This method anchors the engine to its frame at its point of minimum movement.

Such lateral support is a rubber "biscuit," or layer of rubber sandwiched between two flat metal surfaces, one surface attached to the motor, the other to the frame. Through the rubber, the engine is securely bolted to the frame and the rubber dampers out any vibration at points of attachment.

Front and rear supports carry no engine weight, and function mainly as stabilizers of static movement, or engine "pitch." Each support is a box-shaped metal container, nesting over a metal square, on which a heavy coating of rubber has been vulcanized. Here, again, the engine is securely bolted to the frame, yet with sufficient leeway to take up vibrations at front and rear points. The supports are so located as to permit the engine to rotate about its principal axis.

All closed models now have de luxe upholstery of a quality superior to that used in the medium-high-priced field only two years ago.

No-Draft Ventilation.

The closed bodies by Fisher have the exclusive no-draft ventilation which permits of greater air intake without drafts and prevents rain or snow from entering the body. Windows are longer and lower for greater visibility. A broad molding marks the bodies just below the window line of various models.

Hardware is all new and chrome plated. The door locks consist of push buttons which reveal at a glance whether or not all doors are locked. The fingertip seat control has been extended to the coach.

The windshield is slanted at a sharper angle to reduce sun glare. The windshield wiper motor is concealed, and provision made in the header board for installation of a second wiper on the right side. All windshields have shatterproof safety glass.

The instrument panel is of airplane type, with instruments and controls grouped in an oval panel of semi-modernistic design. All instruments are open-faced so that they may be read at a glance. Even the speedometer is of the open-face needle type.

Body Features.

Heavily carpeted tonneau, carpet-covered, broad footrest, assist cords, ash-trays, dome light, robe rail, arm rests and other refinements are found in various models.

The head-on view is clean-cut. Fenders flare out in a wide sweep. They have deeper crowns and extend lower over the tires. Space between the fenders, below the radiator, is filled by a radiator splash guard curved to meet the inner fender skirts and concealing under working parts.

The new radiator, of the "V" type, slopes sharply to the rear and accentuates the impression of speed imparted by the new styling. The radiator shell, instead of being chrome plated, harmonizes with the hood color, making the hood look longer. Vertical ribs in the radiator grille accentuate apparent height of the radiator.

The hood slopes gracefully from radiator to cowl, blending with the distinctive design of each. The double body moldings continue through the hood and converge at a point at the front. Three ventilator doors, longer and larger than those of last year, located near the rear of the hood, slope in conformity with the radiator and body lines. A new upper hood hinge, chrome plated to give the effect of a continuous bead, seals the engine compartment against water.

Engine Improved.

The six-cylinder engine has a bore of three and five-sixteenth inches, as last year, the stroke has been increased to four inches. The engine delivers more than 10 per cent more power throughout the speed range, the maximum of 65 horsepower being delivered at 2800 revolutions per minute.

The crankshaft is increased 10 pounds in weight to 63½, and has an improved counter weight and a heavier harmonic balancer.

While all four fan blades are of the same width and have the same pitch as before, they are now staggered angularly, 15 degrees from actual spacing, to break up the frequency of the fan's vibration. The result is a fan that really runs quietly.

New Design Frame.

The 1933 frame is entirely new. It is lengthened to accommodate the increased wheelbase and added body length, and all cross members and brackets are redesigned and relocated. Side frame members are much stronger and the subframe members greatly increase the strength and rigidity of the frame.

The rear cross member also is wider and stronger, and a "kick-up" at the front end and increased "kickup" in the rear bring the center of gravity of the car closer to the ground.

The front axle is heavier and stronger, and the rear axle is completely redesigned.

Steering gear ratio has been stepped up for easier steering.

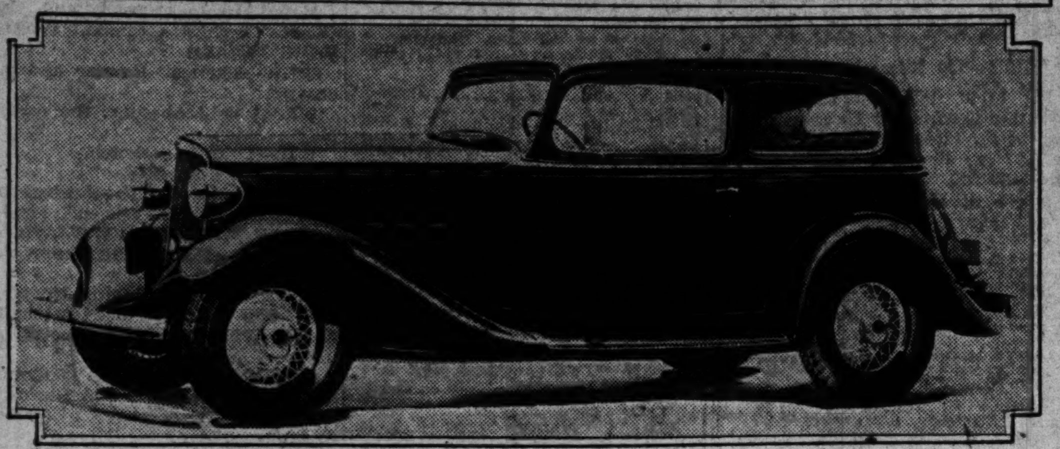
Free Wheeling Refined.

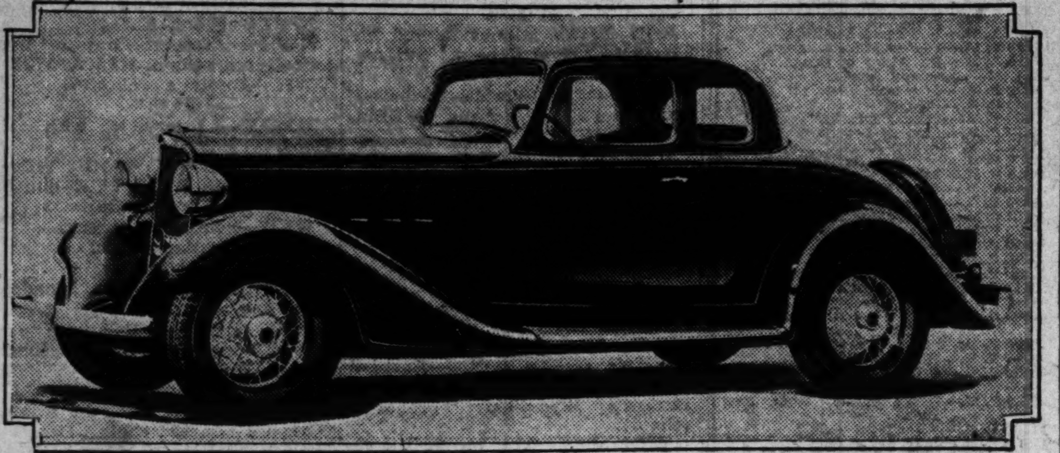
The clutch has been improved and refined. The transmission has helical, constant-mesh type gears exceptionally quiet in operation, particularly in second. The syncronising mechanism also is improved for quick and silent shifting.

The free-wheeling unit is improved and simplified.

How the 1933 Chevrolet Six Looks



New Chevrolet Six coach. As with the other Chevrolet models, this has an "air-stream" body with deep skirted fenders and rear end carried down in a sweep to cover and conceal the gasoline tank and running mechanism.



Coupe model of the new 1933 Chevrolet Six. Longer wheelbase, "no-draft" body, more powerful engine and speed in excess of 70 miles per hour, are some of the features of the 1933 Chevrolet line.

Gasoline Contract For Fast Air Express To Phillips Company

A new overnight air express service between New York and Los Angeles leaves at the close of the business day from Newark Airport and the planes arrive on the Pacific Coast by breakfast time in the morning.

Windowless planes, carrying a half-ton of securities, checks, and perishable freight, fly the two way 18-hour schedule.

The Air Express Corporation, to insure this fast schedule for package transport, has signed a contract with the Phillips Petroleum Co. for its entire requirement of 80 octane aviation gasoline and lubricating oils.

Continental 'Four' To Be Sold Direct, Angell Announces

"Motorists will be able to buy automobiles direct from the manufacturer in 1933," says a statement by W. R. Angell, president of Continental Motors Corporation, in announcing the merchandising plans of this 30-year-old engine builder, which is invading the passenger-car field for the first time.

"Since the early days of the motor-car industry, 30 years ago," says Angell, "there has been little or no no change in the methods of marketing and distributing automobiles.

"Continental is eliminating intermediate agencies which add to the cost of an automobile. This is pioneering in merchandising.

"Continental is in a unique position to take such a forward stride. We have no established precedents to overcome."

It is understood that Continental will establish distributing stations, or "Continental terminals," in every important center. Deliveries of the new Four will be made from these depots and maintenance and parts service will be provided by them.

A special salon to display the new 1933 Marmon "16" models is being held by the Archer-Mann Motor Co., Lindell boulevard at Sarah, and will continue through Saturday. A similar salon is being held by the Salisbury Motor Co.

The new Marmon "16" has a 200 h. p. aluminum engine, and develops startling speed, power and acceleration. The engine is the one that has powered past Marmon "16" models, but it has been improved and still further refined.

All models are custom-designed on a 145-inch wheelbase. Bodies are unusually roomy and luxurious. The Marmon "16" has won numerous beauty, elegance and performance contests in Europe.

In this country, a Marmon "16" won the Stevens trophy for speed and endurance by running 1834 miles in 24 consecutive hours on the Indianapolis track.

Power to weight ratio in a Marmon "16" is only 25 pounds of car weight to the horse-power, which partly accounts for the car's spectacular road and traffic performance. It also makes for exceptional road comfort.

Aluminum alloys, as strong as steel, even stronger, make for light weight. An example of the type of construction is the engine cylinders, which are of case-hardened steel, file hard and, so, practically wearproof. Instruments are of the airplane type, mounted in the driver's line of vision.

Accidents and Congestion Costly.

The economic loss of highway accidents in the United States, together with traffic congestion, is estimated at more than $3,000,000,000 annually.

WLW to Erect 820-Foot Tower Aerial

A TOWER TYPE AERIAL 820 feet tall will be erected for WLW, Cincinnati, and should make the Cincinnati station heard even more strongly than now in this region. An increase of 50 per cent in signal strength is expected. A contract for materials for the tower aerial has been signed, and delivery is hoped for within two months. So it will be several months before the aerial will be in service. Meanwhile, preparations to build the 500,000 to 1,000,000 watt station, which WLW has been authorized to use experimentally after midnight, are reported to be going forward.

The new WLW aerial will be 58 feet shorter than that of WSM, Nashville, but only because the particular height selected is best suited to the length of the wave used by WLW. The tower will be 35 feet in diameter at its widest point, and will taper both ways to points. It will weigh about 300,000 pounds, and will stand on a conical porcelain insulator, five feet high, set in concrete. The tower will be held erect by eight guying cables.

Broadcast Channel Expansion Undecided.

THE major point at issue still undecided after more than four months of parleying, the International Radio Conference at Madrid has adjourned, and the American delegation is bound for home. Virtually all details of the conference were wound up except the keenly controverted proposed widening of the broacasting band to include some long waves. American broadcasters want this and so, presumably, do the Canadian, Mexican and Cuban governments. But bitter opposition to surrendering any channels has arisen from the military and maritime interests. The controversy will flare anew when the regional conference of North American nations is called, probably next spring.

The delegates decided to leave this problem to regional agreements, each region to determine whether it shall use additional broadcast waves at the expense of other services and each to arrange its services accordingly. The North American conference probably will be held in Mexico City.

Bamberg, little village near Vienna, wins a place on the European radio map as the prospective home of the new 120,000-watter broadcasting station now being erected there by the Austrian authorities, which will be on the air by the end of 1932. Another new station of the same power is reported to be on the air now at Leipzig on 770 kilocycles.

With 12 eliminated, eight added and two consolidated, the number of broadcasting stations in the United States and its possessions dropped from 612 in 1931 to 606 at the end of June, 1932, the Federal Radio Commission reveals in its annual report just submitted to Congress.

In the Studios

By Peter Dixon

KING GAG, who has ruled radio for the past year is tottering. Even the comedians admit that the Broadway wisecrack is no longer the ne plus ultra of radio entertainment. After the gag, what? No one seems to know, but half a dozen new ideas in comedy are being tried and the established radio comedians are carefully experimenting with new ideas on their regular established radio comedians are carefully experimenting with new ideas on their regular programs. . . . We have our own pet theory about the next phase in radio. There are indications that the humor will be of the fantastic sort. Baron Munchausen is a step toward this new phase, but it may be Gulliver's Travels—Alice in Wonderland—fantasy . . . That change in humor style might be shoved ahead by a sponsor with the courage and the funds to offer Beatrice Lillie and Ray Perkins as a team. . . . B. A. Rolfe is auditioning a program that should put him back in the radio spotlight. It's a musical drama affair. . . . Georgie Price will leave his program the first of the year.

WOMAN ACQUIRES APARTMENTS ON GRAND AND OSAGE

By Berry Moore.

The record transaction of the week was that whereby Mrs. Ethel Dubinsky acquired the Pasadena Apartment block at the northeast corner of Grand boulevard and Osage street in South St. Louis. In turn, Mrs. Dubinsky conveyed to the Pasadena Corporation 98 feet of vacant ground on north side of Lindell boulevard, 80 feet east of Grand in what is known as the bottle-neck.

Mrs. Dubinsky is the wife of Jack Dubinsky, real estate operator, who acted for her in the negotiations. Valuations given the property in the trade were not disclosed.

The apartment block consists of [illegible] three, four and six room efficiency apartments, and three stores on Grand, designed for the convenience of the tenants. The site is 71 feet on Grand and 135 feet on Osage. Annual rentals approximate $16,000. The Pasadena Corporation is controlled by J. C. Jones, attorney.

The Lindell boulevard ground is now used for parking space. Mrs. Dubinsky purchased it several years ago, alive to the advantages that would accrue with the widening of Lindell between Grand boulevard and Channing avenue. The widening project contemplates a boulevard from Twelfth boulevard to Skinker road. This street is to be widened from [illegible] to 100 feet, and all the ground needed is to be taken on both sides except for two 10-foot strips, one at Channing and one at Grand. Thirty-one property owners are affected.

Awarded $39,996 for Slice.

While the owner of the 98 feet on Lindell acquired in the trade by the Pasadena Corporation, Mrs. Dubinsky was awarded $46,012 damages, reduced to $39,996, through a compromise agreement with Comptroller Nolte. Payment was made last September.

Other damage claims which have been settled through compromise agreements with the Comptroller, include Pierce B. Berard, $11,250 award, reduced to [illegible]; Benjamin A. Wood, $38,000 award, reduced to $33,000; Elsie Probstein, $8563, award reduced to [illegible], and $8855 award, reduced to [illegible]; A. A. Guenther, $57,017 award, reduced to $49,491; and Fred C. Hanpeter, $50,000 award, reduced to $44,800. In addition to accepting a reduction in their awards these property owners have agreed to waive interest since last March when judgment in their favor was entered at the order of Judge Hall.

The commission, appointed by Judge Hall to revise the work of a former commission, consisted of Eugene J. Altheimer of the real estate firm of Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams & Calmer, Inc., James Duross, an attorney, and William [illegible], a contractor. Comptroller Nolte did not accept the findings of this commission.

The widening will reduce the depth of the property on the north side of Lindell between Grand and Channing to an average of 57 feet.

Dubois Hotel Purchased.

The three-story Dubois hotel for Negroes at 4323 Enright avenue, owned by the Thomas Sayman Investment Co., of which Dr. Thomas Sayman is president, has been purchased by Morris Stern, a real estate operator. The price was not announced. The building has 15 rooms equipped with bath, etc. It occupies a lot of 50x110 feet. An addition is to be built in the rear of the premises with recreation features, including a swimming pool for the Negroes. Stern is a real estate operator.

Several deals involving apartment buildings have been placed under contract within the last week, the largest being reported by the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Co. and the Franciscus Realty Co., but details are withheld pending conclusion of the operation. Negotiations are progressing through Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams & Calmer, Inc., for various West End investment builders, it is understood.

Anti-Pogrom Meeting.

A meeting to protest against tre [illegible] of Jews in Poland will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Chesed Shel Emeth Synagogue, Euclid avenue and Page boulevard, under auspices of the Warshaver Unterstitzung Society, a Jewish benevolent organization.

Leases by Edward Glik.

The General Upholstery and Slip Cover Co. has leased through Edward Glik the storeroom at 500 Culver Way from the Nancy Ann Investment Co. A storeroom, 7163 Manchester avenue, in the Brownson Hotel Building, was leased to the Garner Guitar Store and Studio, of which R. C. Garner is the principal. EXHIBIT OF PHOTOS OF MEXICAN BUILDINGS

Collection of Alexander Piaget Shown at St. Louis Mart.

A large group of Mexican photographs taken last summer by Alexander Piaget has been added to the Architects' and Artists' Affiliated Exhibit in the St. Louis Mart. These enlargements have been selected by Piaget from 800 photographs taken. They are not amateur snapshots, but artistic pictures taken by a professional photographer of architectural subjects.

The trip was made largely by automboile over new roads which enabled the party to reach places which hitherto could be reached only on horseback after days of travel. These places are still unspoiled by tourists, although apparently not for long.

Piaget developed his pictures every night as he went along, and was thus enabled to replace any that were unsuccessful.

The buildings represented are not the large cathedrals somewhat familiar to the American public, but the houses, small churches and minor buildings in the small cities and villages. They represent the places where the real Mexicans live as distinguished from the metropolitan districts of Mexico City. These pictures are particularly timely, since they follow the large showing of Mexican art and handicrafts sponsored by Mrs. Dwight Morrow last year at the Art Museum. They show the background in which this work is done.

E. ST. LOUIS MAN IN COLORADO PRISON TO SERVE LONG TERM

DENVER, Dec. 17. — Oscar A. Carlson, formerly of East St. Louis, was taken to the State penitentiary at Canon City today to begin serving a term of 65 years to life for the murder of Patrolman William Keating.

The 21-year-old prisoner pleaded guilty after a death sentence imposed by a jury was set aside when the State Supreme Court ordered a new trial. Carlson shot Keating when the officer attempted to arrest him and a companion. The prisoner's mother and sister returned to East St. Louis yesterday.

FREIGHT RATE CASE RE-OPENED BY I. C. C.

New Study to Determine Whether Year-Old Surcharges Are to Be Continued.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A new study of the freight rate situation was ordered today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The purpose of the inquiry is to determine whether rate surcharges authorized a year ago shall be continued. The carriers, urging the extension, will present evidence on Dec. 23 and opposition statements are to be filed by Jan. 15.

The case was reopened in response to a petition filed by the American Railway Association asking a continuance of the surcharges, which unless otherwise ordered by the commission would automatically expire on March 31, 1933.

The application also asked that the pooling arrangement decreed by the commission be discontinued and that each railroad retain the money derived from the increases. Under the plan now in effect the Railroad Credit Corporation, operated by the carriers, collects the money and lends it to roads needing cash to meet interest and other fixed charges.

The commission in today's order specified that it will study only questions of whether the surcharges shall be continued as at present; the length of time they shall be continued and whether the plan for disposition of the revenue shall be changed.

It specifically barred the question whether the present surcharges shall be increased or extended to commodities other than those on which they now apply. It also barred evidence bearing on the propriety of reducing or eliminating the surcharges.

ADMITS MURDER IN 1930

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 17.—A two-year-old mystery, involving the murder of a woman whose body was found in pieces scattered in the Tiber River and along the coast, was solved today with the confession of Cesare Servietti.

Servietti admitted he killed Beatrice Margarucci, 50 years old, on Oct. 30, 1930, when she returned from America, where she had worked as a servant for many years. He said he robbed her of jewelry and savings, then killed her, cut the body into pieces and threw them into the river. Servietti confessed to another similar murder last Monday. The slain woman had relatives in America.

LEASES CORNER STORE IN ARCADE BUILDING

The corner store room, 26x70 feet, in the Arcade Building at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets has been taken under a five-year lease by Frank Hilton, Inc., dealer in men's furnishings, through Isaac T. Cook Co.

The space will be used for the enlargement of Hilton's present store, which occupies an adjoining space of 24x70 feet in the Arcade Building. The two stores have a total of 50½ feet on Olive street and 70 feet on Eighth street. The inside store was leased some time ago by Hilton, with negotiations pending for the corner store, in anticipation of future requirements.

Plans include an arcade front and elaborate interior appointments. The new lease is effective Feb. 15, 1933, when the enlarged store will be opened to the public.

There is much speculation as to rental involved in the lease of this corner, regarded as one of the best in downtown St. Louis, especially for a men's furnishing establishment. The space was formerly part of the Woolf Brothers establishment, a men's clothing concern, with headquarters in Kansas City, which occupied nearly the entire Eighth and Olive streets ground floor wing of the Arcade Building under a 20-year lease, canceled last February by the Mallinckrodt estate for a cash consideration of $100,000.

ENGINEER DUKE AVERTS WRECK

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 17.—Spain's aristocratic locomotive engineer, the Duke of Zaragoza, avoided serious consequences to passengers of the Sud express today by setting the emergency brakes when the train entered a split switch at Miranda Junction. The locomotive was derailed, but passengers suffered only a jolt. It was recalled that the Duke piloted Queen Victoria's train out of Spain at the time of the revoluation and that in April he was called Spain's foremost engineer when his train carried President Zamora from Valencia to Madrid.

The Duke's full name is Jose Maria Mencos y Reboledo de Palafox. He is a descendant of General Palafox, heroic defender of Zaragoza, and is a member of one of Spain's most important families.

SMALL INDUSTRIES INCREASE IN SPITE OF THE DEPRESSION

H. B. Wallace Reports 110 New Businesses Established in St. Louis District in 12 Months.

105 ALREADY HERE MAKE EXPANSIONS

Investment in Area Increased $5,683,050 and Work Provided for 2539 Workers.

The acquisition of 110 new industries and the expansion of 105 existing industries in the St. Louis industrial district were announced yesterday in the annual report of Harry B. Wallace, chairman of the governors of the Industrial Bureau of the Industrial Club. The report covers December, 1931, and the first 11 months of this year.

The new industries and expansions required the construction of 424,605 square feet of new factory and warehouse space and absorbed 1,374,245 square feet of old space, making a total of 1,798,850 square feet of space. The industrial investment in the district was increased $5,683,050 and employment was furnished for 2539 additional workers.

"One significant thing in this year's activities," Wallace reports, "is the fact that small industries seem to be increasing in number. I do not know whether this is a tendency toward decentralization or not, but the number of small industries starting in the last year is larger than that for any period in the last six years.

"The 1932 figures, as compared with those of last year, show increases, notwithstanding the nation-wide business depression. For example. 43 more new industries came to this community this year than were established last year; there were recorded 36 more expansions of existing industries in 1932 than in 1931; an increase is shown over the 12 months preceding the absorption of old space to the extent of 240,045 square feet; and an increase of industrial investment of $1,178,550 is indicated."

New Industries.

The 110 new industries for the current year include:

Metal Products	4
Men's and Women's Clothing and Furnishings	18
Food Products	14
Chemicals	15
Furniture and Household Equipment	5
Iron and Steel Products	12
Building Materials	1
Printing	2
Miscellaneous	19
Motor Vehicles and Accessories	4
Warehouses	2
Toilet Articles	2
Truck Terminals	4
Electric Supplies and Equipment	4
Machinery	2
Paper Products	2

"A variety of products is represented among these new industries," the report states.

"Reviewing some of the business barometers pertaining particularly to industrial activities, published in the monthly report, we find on comparing the 12-month period referred to above with the preceding 12-month period (December, 1930-first 11 months of 1931) that barge-line tonnage increased 23.14 per cent; freight-car loadings decreased 22.79 per cent; industrial gas (Nov., 1931, to Oct., 1932) decreased 16.75 per cent and industrial electricity—Union Electric Light & Power Co. (Jan. to Oct., 1932) decreased 17.72 per cent—Laclede Gas Light Co. (Nov., 1931, to Oct., 1932) increased 27.98 per cent.

Building Permits Slump.

"Building permits issued for new buildings—alterations for factories and warehouses covering this 12-month period aggregate $298,338, as compared to $6,508,321 for the preceding period, a decrease of 95.42 per cent.

"There has been and still exists a decided feeling toward deferring many new developments contemplated for this industrial district. The St. Louis district, however, is not alone in this respect—this condition is national. The bureau is in touch with many prospects that are held in abeyance for financial or other reasons.

"Contacts were made with various industries in addition to mailing out specialized industrial reports; however, not on so large a scale as usual, due to existing business conditions and a general feeling of holding up expansion programs.

"The real estate files of the bureau include more than 1000 listings of both unimproved and improved industrial properties. The files are complete in every detail and many properties have been called to the attention of out-of-town prospects, as well as of local companies desiring to relocate and those undertaking expansion. Many local real estate dealers have consulted the bureaus files for available properties to submit to their customers. Briefly, our real estate listings may be termed a clearing house for industrial properties.

"With the creation of new committees relating to retail and wholesale interests, it is hoped that a closer contact will be established between the bureau and these two large business groups. Much good can be acomplished for existing industry in St. Louis if we will all work together."

INVENTOR OF ARMORED TANK OPPOSES CONTRACT AWARD

J. Walter Christie Contends Successful Bidder Is Infringing on His Patent Rights.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — J. Walter Christie, inventor of the Christie armored tank, has protested to the War Department against award of the tank contract to the American-La France & Foamite Industry, Inc., Elmira, N. Y., on grounds of infringements of certain of his patent rights.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, formerly Assistant Attorney-General, has been retained as counsel for the Christie company.

The Christie contentions, embodied in a letter to Secretary Hurley from the United States Wheel Track Layer Corporation, Linden, N. J., of which Christie is the head, is that bid specifications as issued by the ordnance department call for machines which are in part a copy of the Christie tanks.

Claiming unjust treatment, Christie maintained that Major-General Samuel Hof of the ordnance bureau appears "rather bitter in his attempts to deprive us of the little business justly due, and I think that if he had his way he would drive me to European governments for the sale of our system."

Christie further said that the chief of ordnance was one of five officers who forced the sale of the Lewis machine gun out of this country into European markets with the result that the American Government at the outbreak of the war was forced "to go over there and buy it back."

The contract with the American-La France company calls for construction of five light tanks at a cost of $29,200 each.

SUBURB CONSIDERS BUYING SCHOOL SITE

University City Offered Messing Tract of 15 Acres for Junior High.

The Board of Education of University City has under consideration the purchase of the Messing tract of 15 acres on the west side of Hanley road, about four blocks north of Delmar boulevard, as a site for a junior high school. The price asked is $37,500, or $2500 an acre.

The tract is at the head of Balson avenue, which the City Plan Commission of University City proposes to convert into a major thoroughfare. The commission opposes the erection of the school at that point on the ground that it would be an obstacle to the extension of Balson avenue west of Hanley road, as is now contemplated, according to Mayor Eugene Ruth.

University City now has one high school, a junior high school and five grade schools. Another grade school is under construction on Balson avenue at Jackson boulevard. The Apex Realty & Mortgage Co. is promoting the sale of the Messing tract.

STOCKS DULL, FAIR DEMAND FOR CERTAIN GRADE BONDS

STOCK MARKET TREND.	Sat.	Fri.
Advances	147	124
Declines	158	316
Unchanged	118	149
Total issues traded	423	589

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Efforts to enlist public interest in the stock market were unavailing this week.

The market was definitely in a rut. In fact, prices wavered as narrowly as they have in any week this year. Trading was in meager volume, and highly professional. A fair demand developed for certain bonds. Commodities were irregularly lower.

The critical Dec. 15 date passed without important financial repercussions from the war debt controversy. French and Belgian dollar bonds broke rather sharply, and the French franc was depressed to levels threatening to tap the Bank of France's huge gold stores. Sterling exchange continued to improve, as Great Britain made her payment on the dot.

With the due date for war debt payments passed, financial quarters were able to concentrate their attention on the domestic scene.

Steel Preferred Feature.

U. S. Steel preferred ran into considerable selling, which seemed to act as a brake upon the rest of the stock list. Some of this selling was believed to be for tax purposes, but the approach of the January dividend meeting, still more than a month away, was undoubtedly an important factor. Reports from the steel industry indicated that it was in its usual year-end slump. Crude oil prices were changed in the Mid-continent area, completely thwarting the effort of some companies, started in October, to jack up the oil price structure.

The bond market indicated that efforts to anticipate the usual turn-of-the-year investment demand were under way, with insurance companies and other institutional buyers reported in the market. The demand, however, was only for certain issues. In the foreigns, there was a rather notable improvement in Germans, perhaps indicating confidence in the Von Schleicher Government, or the belief that the French default meant no effort would be made to revive reparations on the old scale. Or possibly some other influence.

The price index of 90 representative stocks ended the week just one-half point under a week previously, while the index of 60 corporate bonds was up one-fifth of one point for the week. Moody's index of 15 staple commodities declined to 81.2, or 0.9 under a week previously. Wheat futures at Chicago lost 1 to 2 cents, while cotton in New York advanced about $1.50 a bale.

Spiritless Trade Saturday.

Stocks languished through two hours of spiritless trading today and ended the session just about where they began it.

Prices firmed a shade in the first hour, only to settle back in the second; the average net change was a small net loss. Early strength of wheat, contrasting with yesterday's weakness, a fairly strong cotton market, and continued stability of bonds exerted a helpful influence on shares.

Imminence of a vote on the beer bill had some reflection marketwise, for Coca-Cola tumbled about three points and the bottling shares improved. Such interests helped divert attention from United States Steel preferred, which steadied slightly. Rails were narrowly mixed. Utilities again looked rather firm, particularly those in which United Corporation is interested; net changes, however, were minor.

Shares finishing with small gains included Pennsylvania, American Telephone, Loew's, Chesapeake & Ohio, Crown Cork and Owens Glass, United States Steel common, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Kennecott, Sears-Roebuck, du Pont and Allied Chemical averaged less than half a point lower. General Electric, selling ex the Radio distribution, was off moderately. Transactions totaled 413,644 shares and the week's volume amounted to slightly more than 5,000,000 shares.

German Bonds Advance.

German loans continued their aggressive advance in the bond market. French and Belgian issues were quiet and made narrow changes, while U. S. Governments improved. The average level of domestic bond prices was lifted a shade.

Week-end sidelights on trade were of a routine nature. Car loadings for the week ended Dec. 10 were down 26,245, perhaps a trifle more than seasonal, but the returns had no effect on the market. The percentage decline from 1931 was 15, slightly larger than the comparative loss for the preceding week.

Sterling exchange rallied nearly a cent, while francs eased, holding just above their low. The pound's recovery this week amounted to about 5 cents, on top of last week's 7-cent rally. In contrast, French currency has been under pressure. Debt matters appeared, for the moment, to the holding less attention in Wall street, pending President Hoover's expected message and French Cabinet developments.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Trading on the Stock Exchange was light and dealings were featured by the firmness in German bonds which were bought freely. Argentine bonds declined one to two points on reports of disturbances in Buenos Aires. International shares ended with a steady tone and British funds were slightly lower due to lack of support. The closing was irregular.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—The Boerse opened irregular but improved later, some issues advancing as much as two points. Closing prices were slightly below the best and the tone was cheerful.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Trading on the Bourse showed a hesitant tendency in view of the uncertainty over the Cabinet crisis. The opening was heavy but resistance developed with losses being held to small amounts and the closing was irregular.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Steel mill activity tapered out further this week. Ingot production was estimated one point lower at 15 per cent of capacity. Pig iron was also dull and prices generally were unchanged.

Although copper had not rallied from the record low quotation of 5c for electrolytic in the Connecticut Valley, a steadier undertone was reported. European quotations advanced from the declines which followed the break-up of the international producers' conference and domestic inquiry for second quarter delivery at 5c increased. But sellers were asking ⅛c premium for that position and were not actively seeking business. Unofficial sources reported a decline of 8000 tons in world's copper stocks during November.

Tin fluctuated irregularly with London and sterling quotations still the principal price influences in the absence of either active buying or selling interest. However, the tone was somewhat steadier owing to firmer selling. Pressure was checked partly because consumption is said to be in excess of production and in anticipation of renewed demand from consumers.

Lead remained quiet and steady, with large consumers still withholding forward purchases owing to quietness of demand for finished products. A slightly better demand occurred on one or two days, but this was mostly for immediate shipment. A trade estimate placed December purchases thus far at 16,500 tons and January sales at 4500 tons. Sellers are said to be hopeful that buyers must shortly re-enter the market.

Zinc was dull, but smelters maintained firm asking prices influenced by continued steadiness of ore and expectation of renewed demand. Consumers are said to be poorly covered for first quarter requirements and unfilled orders on sellers' books are said to have reached record low proportions.

Antimony quotations remained nominal, in absence of interest by buyers and selling pressure by importers.

U.S. GOVERNMENTS AND GERMAN BONDS LEAD

Steady to Firm Tone Is Shown by the Market Generally.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—A steady to firm tone was displayed by the bond market today with principal activity centered in United States and German Government obligations.

Sales totaled $6,104,000, par value, and the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced two-tenths of a point.

Most of the Federal list recovered from 1-32 to 5-32 of a point after some moderate recessions yesterday. Treasury 3¾s, 4s and 4¼s were in greatest demand. Liberty issues were rather quiet.

Of the German group, 14 different maturities recorded new high for 1932 with advances ranging from fractions to around three points. There was a heavy turnover of the Reich 5½s at a gain of 1½ points.

Other foreign bonds were somewhat irregular. The depressed French 7½s rallied slightly, as did some of the Belgians. British 5½s firmed as did Italian 7s. The Japanese were mixed and the Argentines developed weakness with losses ranging from fractions to more than two points.

Several new year's peaks were reached by some of the domestic loans. Among these were Buffalo General Electric 4½s, Consolidated Gas 5s, Illinois Bell Telephone 5s, Pacific Telephone first 5s, Shell Pipe Line 5s and Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, registered. Various other issues held just under this year's best prices.

United Drug 5s again stepped forward with a gain of 2¾ points and U. S. Rubber 5s and American Smelting 5s were up 1¼. More moderate advances were registered by some loans of Western Union, Detroit Edison, National Dairy Products, Pacific Gas and Youngstown Sheet & Tube. Paramount bonds rallied around two points, but loans of Loew's and Warner Bros. eased. Shell Union Oil 5s advanced while Skelly Oil 5½s lost 3⅜ points.

The rails were somewhat dull and uncertain, a decline in freight car loadings and wage conference uncertainties engendering caution in this group.

MANY LEADERS ON CURB MAKE MODERATE ADVANCES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—After indecisive and unimportant price movements during most of the session the Curb market pulled itself together near the close today and many leaders scored moderate gains. Trading was dull, with dealings totaling about 100,000 shares compared with 80,000 on the previous Saturday.

Utilities were prominent in the late rally, with such issues as American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Columbia Gas & Electric preferred and United Light & Power preferred "A" climbing fractionally to a point.

Electric Power & Light second preferred dropped about a point and Iowa Southern Utilities 7 per cent preferred, an inactive, set something of a record by dropping more than 80 points from its last sale on a transaction of 100 shares.

Industrials were firm in spite of a limited buying interest.

Mining and oil issues were irregular, with a few soft spots. Such oil leaders as Standard of Indiana and Gulf reflected further selling on the recent cut in crude oil prices.

COTTON MARKET ADVANCES IN WEEK-END TRADING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Absence of appreciable Southern selling and reports of unfavorable weather for the movement in the South promoted week-end covering and trade buying in a quiet cotton market today. Prices went back to or a shade above the previous high levels of the week. March contracts advanced to 6.17c, or 16 points net higher, closing at 6.15c. The general market finished at net advances of 14 to 17 points. Spot quiet; mids., 6.15c.

The opening was 3 to 8 points higher in response to steady Liverpool cables, reports of rain, snow or sleet over the Eastern and Central belts, and low temperatures in the West. There was some selling here through houses that operate for the co-operative interests, but very few selling orders came from the South and early offerings were readily absorbed by demand from foreign and domestic trade sources. Houses with Liverpool connections bought and there was a little demand from the Continent.

Week-end covering was naturally in evidence on the advance, which carried January up to 6.05c, or into new high ground for the movement. May contracts sold at 6.28c, or even with the high price touched earlier in the week. Closing quotations were 2 or 3 points off from the best on January and later deliveries.

Unfavorable weather in the South was considered partly responsible for the absence of Southern selling in any appreciable volume. Some traders emphasized the low temperatures in the Southwest with reference to their possible effect on th boll weevil, but this view evidently made little impression on sentiment.

Liverpool cable attributed the earlier advance in that market to Bombay buying and trade calling which absorbed hedging, but said the market reacted later.

HEAT MODERATELY HIGHER IN TRADING AT CHICAG

the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Wheat values we oderately higher today despite renew lling pressure here from traders w ade simultaneous purchases in Winn g.

Export sales of 1,000,000 bushels anadian wheat helped to lift prices.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm at t me as yesterday's finish to ½ cent hig corn ⅛c off to ⅛c up, oats u hanged to ¼c advance, and provisions u hange to a rise of 17 cents.

Evidence that distress selling which rday tumbled the Winnipeg marke new all time bottom price record eased stimulated the upward trend hicago. Encouraging factors were gra steadiness in the Liverpool market th d been expected, and comment that d veries on contracts at Liverpool were a rently passing into strong hands. Hig premiums for immediate delivery whe Missouri River markets also aided a anced quotations for future deliveri ere. The high premiums were ½ ce bove a similar jump yesterday.

Freezing temperatures that extended e Gulf of Mexico added to uneasine er winter wheat.

Comment was heard that last yea omestic wheat production barely e eeded home requirements, and that ne ear's output promised to fall short he average requirements within nited States.

Corn and oats were steadied by whe ction.

WEEK'S LOCAL STOCK TRADE SHOWS GAIN

Total, However, Not Large—"Penny Stocks" and Possibly Tax Selling Factors.

Stock trade, in aggregate, reached the highest volume of any week since July on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week. A fairly large turnover, proportionately, of "penny stocks" and "cross sales," probably representing year-end tax sales, contributed to the increased business. At that, the total was not large.

Prices of the usual leaders on the local board were lower on the whole, though there were exceptions. Coca-Cola Bottling sold to 10½, Wagner Electric to 5½, Corno Mills to 10½ and National Candy to 5½. Changes in all cases except first, were fractional.

ZINC ORE PRICE FIRM AND WITH LEAD UNCHANGED

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 17.—Cold weather this week lessened efficiency of mine mills, thereby reducing zinc production. The purchase was reported at 3550 tons, or almost 600 tons more than was produced.

Zinc ore prices, although firm, remained unchanged at $16 and $17 a ton for floats and $18 for coarse grades. Lead prices ranged unchanged at $30 to $32.50 a ton.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Raw sugar was quiet today with spot prices unchanged at 2.82c. Cubas for early January arrival were available at this level, while February arrival duty frees could be bought at slightly less.

Local refiners showed no particular interest, although they have paid 2.80c for sugars in suitable position. The only business reported was an exchange between an outport refiner and an operator of 28,000 bags of Cuba afloat and 27,000 bags Philippines for December shipment for an equal amount for April shipment.

There was only a small trade in futures but in the absence of selling pressure prices held generally steady on covering and little buying by trade interests.

The market opened unchanged to one point higher and closed at around the initial figures.

Sales were 4000 tons, about half representing exchanges from January to May at 10 points difference. December closed .67, January .67, March .72, May .77, July .82, September .87, December .92.

Refined was unchanged, with refiners listing at 4.15 for fine granulated. Second hands were not much in evidence, but demand was light and only of a hand-to-mouth character.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YOSK, Dec. 17.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $902,622,100 (unchanged); total net demand deposits (average), $50,858,000 (increase); time deposits (average), $4,680,000 (increase); clearings week ending today, $3,093,008,463; clearings week ending Dec. 10, $2,693,272,996.

MEN

WE HAVE 8 OPENINGS IN OUR ST. LOUIS BRANCH OFFICE FOR MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

These positions are genuine opportunities at high earnings for those who can do this kind of work successfully. Our successful men make from $4,000.00 to $10,000.00 or higher per year. These men make this money regularly. There are no off-seasons. These incomes in cash are just as certain and stable as any business or professional positions possibly can be. No cost or investment.

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work must take the necessary time to learn and acquire skill. During this time they must be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125.00 to $200.00 per month, if necessary. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month or six months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements to secure a position with us, you can, with reasonable study, practice, good character and diligence, be genuinely assured of making a success which will afford you the higher incomes.

We are not looking for the "smart" fellow, the "clever" talker or the so-called high-pressure artist. We are interested in the earnest, sincere man, no matter what his previous experience or training, who is willing to follow instructions and has formed the habit of doing a real day's work as a matter of course and not as a matter of exception. To such men this amazing new Electrolux specialty (not refrigeration) is beyond doubt one of the really great opportunities of all time in specialty sales work. (Last year was our biggest year—1932 will be our third consecutive record sales year.) If you feel qualified, apply for personal interview with branch manager Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15, at 561-564 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th and Olive Sts.

WATCHMAN FOUND DRINKING SUSPENDED

Was With Two Youths Identified as Robbers of Filling Stations.

Philip Fricke, 42 years old, a licensed private watchman, was suspended by the Police Department after being found with two youths, subsequently identified as robbers, when police made a liquor raid at 6026 Arthur avenue Friday night.

According to the officers, Fricke and the young men were in a party of five drinking beer at a table. The youths, who said they were George McCarthy of Overland and Joseph Lewis, were identified by Wade H. Rothwell, attendant of a gasoline station at 5924 Clayton avenue, and Walter Zausch, attendant at 5943 Southwest avenue, as the men who robbed them Thursday night after asking to enter the stations to warm themselves.

McCarthy and Lewis admitted the holdups, according to police, and told where to find two revolvers they had used. The watchman, who had been on a beat on Arthur avenue, made no statement. He lives at 5821 Itaska street.

BOYS PUT ON PROBATION FOR DRAWING PARENT'S ACCOUNT

Belleville Judge Says, "We Ought to Have a School for Bank Tellers."

Two Negro boys and a white boy were placed on six months' probation by County Judge Farthing at Belleville yesterday after they had confessed a number of forgeries by which they withdrew $158 from the bank account of the mother of one of the Negro boys.

Testimony was that the 11-year-old Negro boy, with his two companions, one of whom is a year older, appeared at the First National Bank of East St. Louis some time ago and told a teller, "My ma wants some money from her deposit on account of the house has burned down and she needs it."

The teller, according to witnesses, said he would require a note from the boy's mother and the boys returned later with a note.

Later the boys came in with a signed withdrawal slip for $60, and subsequently for other lesser amounts until one day they were told, "Your mother hasn't any more money here." An investigation resulted in the arrest of the boys. They had spent all of the money for bicycles, sweaters, coats and other articles.

In placing them under probation, Judge Farthing said, "We have a school for boys at St. Charles, Ill. It seems to me that instead, we ought to have a school for bank tellers."

An employe of the bank said last night that the loss is borne by a surety company which has the bank insured against loss by forgery.

LETTER METHOD RESORTED TO AT RAIL WAGE PARLEY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—A terse repetition of the railroads' only proposal, delivered to labor leaders in a letter by a messenger instead of across a conference table as heretofore, today concluded the first week's session of their joint wage meeting recessed for the week-end.

The nine representatives of the carriers met in joint conference today with the union leaders who refused to answer "yes" or "no" to five questions as to their authority to negotiate further cuts in pay. The conference then adjourned and the letter method of negotiation was started.

The chief controversy at this stage is over the interpretation of the existing agreement. Labor's contention is that the agreement bound the roads not to serve notice of a reduction in the basic rates, which remain unchanged during the agreement, prior to Feb. 1 when the agreement ends and the rates are to be restored.

The railroad operators' letter said the agreement did not deny them the right to serve such notice at any time, that they have always had the right and have it now.

SANTA ALREADY IS VISITING 7 IOWA COMMUNAL TOWNS

Children Put Out Shoes Each Evening; Colony Abandons Its Community Dinners.

By the Associated Press.

HOMESTEAD, Ia., Dec. 17.—Housewives in Amana, one of the oldest communal settlements in America, which turned to the capitalistic system this year, are for the first time preparing to cook their own Christmas dinners.

Formerly not only holiday dinners but all meals were served in community kitchens at the seven towns which comprise the settlement in the fertile Iowa River valley.

The Christmas celebration at Amana began tonight with a program by the homestead welfare society. The children are putting their shoes out each night now for the advance visits of Santa—an old Amana custom. Presents will be exchanged Christmas eve.

Christmas day members of the colony will go to church three times in observance of the custom of their sect. Members of the Amana society have worked for a guaranteed wage since the first of the year and there will be no needy.

Beginning Jan. 1 the corporation plan adopted a year ago goes into full effect and the lase vestige of the old communal system will be cast off.

Santos-Dumont won recognition on three continents preceding and following the aviation discoveries of the Wright brothers. He was the son of a prosperous coffee planter. BOY BROUGHT HERE BY PLANE FOR TREATMENT

On board a passenger plane when it arrived at Municipal Airport from Kansas City yesterday morning was 7-year-old Michael Tomforde Jr. of Houston, Tex., who was rushed in a waiting ambulance to Children's Hospital for observation by brain specialists.

Michael had been suffering from dizziness and drowsiness for more than a week, which he noticed first when tossing a football and scuffling with a brother and sister.

Dr. William Snow of Houston, an uncle, who accompanied the boy, and his mother, Mrs. Josie Tomforde, said the boy complained of violent headaches after engaging in the outdoor exercise. At first it was thought that he suffered a head injury. His condition improved after being sent to bed and given medical treatment for several days, but later he suffered a relapse. Houston physicians advised that the boy be sent here.

The trip from Houston, started Friday afternoon, was made entirely in planes of regular passenger lines. The boy lay huddled, wrapped in heavy blankets, in a reclining chair of the planes. When he arrived at the airport here he was put on an ambulance cot.

The flight, made on American Airways lines, was completed in 21 hours, including a layover of five hours in Kansas City for plane connection.

SECOND MAN SHOT BY BANK ROBBERS IN TWIN CITIES DIES

Slain Policeman's Companion in Grave Condition; Fourth Victim Also Feared.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 17.—A theory that a fourth victim may either have been slain or is held captive by the robbers who held up the Third Northwestern National Bank yesterday, killing two men and wounding a third, was advanced by police tonight.

Five robbers obtained $20,000 in the robbery, killed Patrolman Ira L. Evans and wounded Patrolman Leo Gorsky as thew drew up to the bank in an automobile in response to an alarm. Physicians said Gorsky had "very little chance" of survival.

Fleeing to St. Paul, the robbers abandoned their car because of a punctured tire and wounded Oscar Erickson, who was driving another machine. Erickson died today. His companion said the robbers were entering a green sedan as Erickson's car drew alongside and police theorized that the sedan's driver owner was forced to accompany the gang. No trace of the sedan or its ownership was found.

Police asserted they had established that the same car was used yesterday and in March when another of the Northwestern National Bank group here was robbed of $200,000.

West Virginia Member Interrupts Debate on Philippine Bill to Make Plea.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A plea for prompt attention to unemployment and destitution relief was made in the Senate today by Senator Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, and seconded by Senator Costigan (Dem.), Colorado.

Neely interrupted the debate on Philippine independence to say this was unimportant when compared with the problem of "unemployment that is leading to starvation and suicide never before known in American history."

Costigan read a newspaper article to the effect that Italy was about to employ 300,000 workers on public construction and asked if this could not be done in the United States.

The West Virginian replied it could and said he regretted the La Follette-Costigan relief measure did not become law at the last session. Costigan and Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, have joined now in another proposal to appropriate half a billion dollars for relief.

30-DAY STATE OF SIEGE DECLARED IN ARGENTINA

Move Made to Forestall Any Attempts at Revolution; Many Arrested.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 17.—A 30-day state of siege was approved by Congress tonight as a move to forestall any attempts at a revolution. Immediately after, the Government issued a decree putting the measure into effect, wholesale arrests of radical leaders allegedly involved in a revolutionary plot were being made, and important military leaders and others were among those held or sought. The siege can be extended by the Government if the Legislature is not in session a month hence.

The Congress' action amounted to a vote of confidence for the administration. Debates in which the most prominent Socialists made heated attacks on the Government marked the consideration of the bill.

Meanwhile police closed several headquarters of the extremist Workmen's Union. One minor disturbance was reported tonight, in the town of Rosario, where a demonstration in favor of former President Hipolito Yrigoyen, who was arrested yesterday and sent to Martin Gracia Island, was broken up by police.

It was learned that those in favor of a revolution were all ready to set up military and civil juntas if the plot were successful. Radicals in all sections of the country were being arrested or else sought. Among these was Gen. Severo Toranzo, former chief of the general staff who led an uprising in Corrientes in 1931.

A Judge's instruction ordered the former Ambassador to the United States. Honorio Pueyrredon, who was detained on the cruiser Vienticinco de Mayo, to return to submit a deposition before authorities.

FUGITIVE FROM CHAIN GANG WAS NEVER PUT IN CHAINS

Georgia Warden Confronts R. E. Burns and Asks Question; Wanted in New York, Too.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 17.—Robert Elliott Burns, recently arrested as an escaped chain gang convict, is a fugitive from justice in New York as well as Georgia.

The police announcement that Burns was wanted in New York City on a forgery charge dating back to 1922, came shortly after Gov. A. Harry Moore announced in Trenton that he would hold an extradition hearing on Burns' return to Georgia at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burns is held in the city jail.

Inspector Joseph Donovan, who notified local police that Burns was wanted in New York, announced that Criminal Identification Bureau records showed Burns was arrested in New York on Jan. 10, 1922, on a charge of forging a $300 check on a magazine.

The Governor received many telegrams and letters from various parts of the country urging him not to permit Burns' extradition.

For the first time since his escape in 1930 Burns today faced Warden Harold J. Hardy Jr., who has jurisdiction over the Troup County chain gang.

"Tell the boys, Burns," urged the warden, "were you ever in chains?"

"Why, no, warden," said the fugitive.

Summary: Score at end of half—Missouri 21, Washington 16. Officials—Orr and Newsom.

By Harold Tuthill.

The Missouri University Tigers had little or no trouble in running through the defense of the Washington University basketball team and as a result the Tigers left for Columbia last night with a 39 to 27 victory. The game was played at the Field House before a crowd of 1300.

For a time it seemed that the Bears might overcome their weakness on defense by a high-scoring offense but the Tigers withstood the Bears' flurry and managed to lead at the half, 21 to 16. While Nelson Hower was doing valiant guard duty the Bears went ahead at one time in the first half, 15 to 10.

Cooper Stars for Tigers.

Johnny Cooper, Missouri's stellar forward put his team back in the game by counting on Maitland Marshall's foul and on a short shot from the side. After Denver Miller was fouled by Capt. Henry Graves as he rushed into the basket, Miller converted the two charity tries to tie the score at 15-all. Cooper flipped in an overhand shot to put the Tigers into a lead that they never relinquished.

During the time that the Tigers were scoring 11 points the Bears were held to one free throw—that by Hower on George Stuber's pass. Floyd Kern raised the hopes of the Washington fans by starting the second half with a goal from scrimmage. Then Cooper tallied on Marshall's foul, but Hower put the Bears on the short end of a 22 to 20 count with a neat follow through shot, one of the few that the Bears attempted successfully.

Crowd Boos Tiger Stalling.

The crowd booed while Missouri stalled in the Washington territory in the last part of the second half, but the strategy helped the Tigers to accumulate their points. Once Missouri was penalized for passing the ball in back of the center line, but Washington failed to profit by the mistake, since they tried to work the ball into the basket near enough for a set-up. The Missouri guards covered up in a fine man-

WRAY'S COLUMN

He Will Be Missed.

THE passing of Jim Bottomley, talked of for two or three years, has finally become a fact—worse luck! There is hardly a fan or fanatic who has followed the fortunes of the Cardinals during the last decade who will not be sorry to see this still great player pass along.

Jim Bottomley.

In disposition and in ability, Bottomley is an asset to any ball club; and his past services to the Cardinals are difficult to overestimate. As "most valuable player to his team," he was rewarded by the committee after one peak season. Babe Ruth's all-star team was not complete without Bottomley's name on at least one of his selections.

It was not much of a compliment to this great player that the club accepted the limited compensation of Pitcher Owen Carroll and Outfielder Crabtree—neither of whom appears to be at all needed by the Redbirds—plus an unnamed amount of cash.

Carroll has not been able to make the major-league grade in a couple of tries and Crabtree, while a good enough fielder, is a weak hitter.

May Mean Another Deal.

PERHAPS the deal is only the first leg of the trade and the second part will bring the Cardinals a shortstop as a sort of insurance against the possibility that Gelbert is unable to play. A deal for Durocher of the Reds would have been better understood by fans than the one completed.

President Breadon, however, declares Crabtree is an A1 fielder and a valued asset; while in Carroll he sees the makings of a fine pitcher.

The Cards in post-season trades have taken on three new pitchers—Carroll, Walker and Mooney. Besides these the club has under reserve Haines, Hallahan, Der-

Depression Takes Bottomley For a Ride to Cincinnati; Cards Get Carroll, Crabtree

By J. Roy Stockton.

James Leroy Bottomley, who smiled and swaggered his way into the hearts of baseball fans throughout the country during his 11 years in Cardinal uniform, has gone the way of most baseball flesh. He has been "sold down the river."

According to the announcement by Sam Breadon yesterday morning, "Sunny Jim" was traded to the Cincinnati Reds for Pitcher Owen Carroll and Outfielder Estil Crabtree. Breadon said he didn't care to discuss the question of how much cash was involved in the deal, but close followers of baseball did not have to be told that it was a cash transaction, and if anybody didn't know about the depression, they ought to realize it now. Jim Bottomley for Owen Carroll and Estil Crabtree!

A Blow Right in the Kitchen.

"I was just sitting in the kitchen with Mother and Dad," Jim told the Post-Dispatch by telephone, "When I got a phone call from the Western Union. It was a message from Frank Grayson, a newspaper writer in Cincinnati, telling me that I was a member of the Reds and asking me how about it. But I wasn't particularly surprised and mother and Dad went right along talking about fried chicken. But I'm sorry to hear it. Hate it for their sakes, too. Mother and dad have been running over to St. Louis pretty often to see Old Jim do his stuff and now Old Jim will have to go down the rest of the baseball trail in another uniform.

"But say, won't Chick Hafey and I give those Cardinals many a pain in the neck next summer? We'll have Gabby Street's heart so far up in his throat when we come to bat that he'll have to tie string around his neck to keep it from popping out. Good Old Sarge! I hate to leave him and I hate to leave all my old friends in St. Louis. But that's Africa, as the missionary said when the cannibal threw him into the stew pot.

"How About That Red Head?"

"Yes, I'd just as soon go to Cincinnati, as long as I have to leave St. Louis. Say, how about that redheaded gal? No, I didn't want to play in the East. Boston's all right, I guess, but New York! No sir, that place is too big for me. I get scared and lost there. Guess I'm still just a country boy. Have I any message for the fans? Sure, tell 'em howdy and good bye. They've been good to me and I ain't got no kick coming. Carroll and Crabtree, eh? Well, that's Africa."

Fans are inclined to agree that the Bottomley deal was merely a move to balance the budget and that with that objective, the Cardinals had to make a sacrifice.

"They're giving up the best first baseman on the squad and the best first baseman in the league, next to Bill Terry," one fan complained, and that was the gist of the comment heard.

Nichols Deprived Of Lightheavy Title by N. B. A.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 17.

GEORGE NICHOLS of Buffalo, recognized as the light heavyweight champion by the National Boxing Association, has been deprived of his title for failure to defend his crown within the regular eight month time limit.

The title was declared vacated in a telegram from James M. Brown, president of the N. B. A., to Jack Singer, manager of Nichols.

Nichols won the championship in an elimination tournament at Chicago last February and has engaged in several non-title bouts since.

MAL STEVENS, YALE FOOTBALL COACH, RETIRES

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 17.—Mal Stevens submitted his resignation today as head football coach at Yale, a post he has held for five years, with the explanation that he desired to "devote more time and energy to the field of medicine."

In accepting the resignation, Malcolm Farmer, chairman of the board of control and director of athletics, said that Stevens, a physician, "has been facing the decision for two years as between continuing coaching or going ahead with his medical career."

Farmer gave no indication as to Stevens' probable successor, saying that the 1933 coaching staff will not be announced "until a later date."

Stevens' resignation came at the conclusion of one of the poorest seasons in the history of football at Yale. The Elis defeated Harvard and Dartmouth, but were beaten by Brown and Army, and held to a tie by Bates, Chicago and Princeton.

Since the close of the football season, Reggie Root, Harvey Harman of Pennsylvania, "Red" Blaik of Army and Adam Walsh, former Notre Dame star, have been mentioned for Stevens' post.

During Stevens' four-year rule, Yale has won 21 games, lost 11 and tied 8.

Yankees Release Weaver.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The New York Yankees today released Jim Weaver, big right-handed pitcher, to the Newark Bears, their International League "Farm" Club, for which he hurled last season. He was recalled by the Yanks at the end of the campaign. Weaver came to New York from the Baltimore Orioles and remained with the Yankees during the 1931 season.

Billiken, Bear and Tiger Stars to Face Notre Dame Men in Benefit Game Today

Former star football players of Notre Dame University will meet an all-star eleven composed of St. Louis U., Washington U., Purdue and Missouri players at Walsh Stadium in a game for the benefit of the Boys' Club this afternoon. The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

Included in the Notre Dame lineup will be names which in years gone by have been prominent in football, and some of them still are.

Savoldi, O'Connor, Mullins.

Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame fullback and now a wrestler of note, is another who will play in addition to several players of All-America caliber. Among them are Tom Conley and Tommy Yarr, who were captains of Notre Dame teams; Bucky O'Connor, remembered chiefly for his great work against Southern California three years ago, when Notre Dame scored a 27 to 0 victory, and Moon Mullins, fullback, who played here last year.

Opposed to this array of Notre Dame talent will be an eleven recruited from graduates or seniors of St. Louis U., Washington U., Purdue and Missouri. Benny La Presta, who has completed his collegiate career with the Billikens this fall, will play in the backfield, as will Harvey Miller, Washington U. captain, and Carl Johanningmeier, Missouri U. star.

From Purdue come two men of All-America fame. They are Paul Moss, All-America end this season, and Purvis, All-America halfback in 1931.

Bears in Billiken Uniforms.

The Notre Dame eleven will use Washington University uniforms, while the St. Louis All-Stars will be arrayed in the Blue and White of St. Louis U., rather a strange experience for Harvey Miller and Max Tyrrell, who have been accustomed for three years to battling the Blue and White in uniforms of Red.

Seat prices for the game range from $1 to $5 and teams of ticket sellers have been at work for some time. It is said that the advance sale has totaled more than $3000.

Shurtleff Five Beats Principia

Putting a veteran, well trained squad on the floor, Shurtleff College of the Little Nineteen Conference easily defeated Principia College in a basketball game last night at Howard gymnasium, 47 to 23.

The Shurtleff team had the game well in hand at the half, when they led by a score of 25 to 9. Sterling, Shurtleff, right forward, and Mayfield, a teammate at right guard, were high scorers of the game with 14 and 10 points, respectively. Tullis, center, led Principia scorers with nine points.

In another game on the same floor, Principia Academy's "A" team trounced the Maplewood High quintet, 26 to 10. Miller, Principia, paced the scorers in this game with eight points.

Stribling Beats Dan McCorkindale

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Dec. 17.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia heavyweight boxer, tonight defeated Dan McCorkindale, South African heavyweight, by decision.

Stribling held the upper hand through the 12-round contest, which was evenly fought before 15,000 persons, the biggest fight crowd in South African pugilistic history.

McCorkingdale was overly cautious through the early stages of the fight but even when he opened up in the late rounds was unable to do much with the polished American boxer.

Dodgers Recall Waivers on Vance

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.

THE Brooklyn Dodgers, it was learned today, have refused the waiver price for Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, onetime king of the National League pitchers, and intend to keep him for part-time work next season.

The Giants were among those refusing to waive on The Dazzler, who won a dozen games for the Dodgers last season, despite a lame arm, and still has some of the "smoke" that made him the league's most effective hurler in 1928 and 1930. The Reds and Cubs also indicated they would like to have Vance, if they could get him at the waiver price of $7500.

WISCONSIN FAVORS A 5-MAN BOXING BOARD

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 17. — The Senate committee which investigated affairs of the Wisconsin Boxing Commission disclosed it would recommend abolition of the present three-man commission and substitution of a five-man board to serve without pay.

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 17.—Combining crushing power on the ground with a smooth-functioning attack through the aerial lanes, California's Bears overwhelmed Georgia Tech's Engineers, 27—6, today to top off an unimpressive regular season with a brilliant intersectional victory.

Some 7000 hardy fans, the smallest post-season turnout since the stadium was built, saw a game but outclassed eleven from Dixie go down to one-sided defeat.

Holding their own for the first half, the Southern boys were swamped under a third and fourth period attack that saw the Bears push over three touchdowns.

Each reached scoring turf in the first half, California crossing for a touchdown shortly after the game opened and Tech coming through with a late rally in the second period to put the game on practically even terms. California completed its try for point, however, to hold a one-tally lead as the half-time gun sounded.

Another Touchdown.

The Bears came out for the third period with a rush that netted a touchdown soon after the kickoff. A 55-yard march consisting of plunges at the line ended when Schaldach went over for the second touchdown of the game.

In the same quarter, the Bears took possession of the ball on Tech's 34-yard line and drove from that point for another score, Williams, sub for Schaldach at left half, going over.

Beaten back by the tremendous power thrusts of a California eleven that rose to its greatest heights today, the boys from Georgia were forced to yield another touchdown not long after the opening of the last quarter.

It was mainly an attack from the ground that netted exactly 67 yards and the fourth score. One pass, from Castro to Carroll Gill, accounted for 17 yards. Fifteen of the yards gained were those inflicted for a holding penalty.

Outclassed but not once outgamed, the Engineers gave the chilled spectators a last-minute thrill by careening down the field 48 yards in a thrust that failed to

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 17. — Mike Nyikos' St. Louis University basketball quintet took a 47-27 drubbing from Purdue's Big Ten championship outfit tonight in one of the most unusual games ever played in Memorial Gymnasium. With only 10 minutes of the encounter remaining, St. Louis was out in front, 27-26, and seemed to be in a fair way to score the first victory over the Boilermakers in the local gym in many years. At this point the St. Louis defense cracked and Charles Stewart and Harry Kellar, Boilermaker veterans, led a brilliant attack which netted 21 points while the visitors were being blanked.

With Grandone and Cochrane playing great ball for the Billikens, Lambert's club was never able to pile up a commanding lead until the final blow-off late in the second half.

Purdue 23, St. Louis 15, at Half.

The Boilermakers got off to an early lead. At one point in the first period it looked as if they would make a runaway of the affair. With 12 minutes of the first half gone, the Lambert machine was leading, 17 to 7, but the St. Louis club steadied and pulled up to 23-15 at the intermission.

Kellar scored in the second half when he made good on one of two free throws. Then the big St. Louis drive got under way. Grandone hit a free throw and Gorman, Dirksen, Cochrane and Grandone followed with four successive long heaves from mid-floor, tieing the score at 24-24. Flannagan's toss from the line gave the Billikens a one-point lead and Purdue took time out. Kellar flipped one in from the side of the floor to make the count, 26-25. However, Grandone scored from underneath the basket and the visitors were again out in front with only 10 minutes left. Another of Kellar's spectacular one-handed shots put Purdue out in front, and from this point on until the finish, Purdue baskets rained from all angles of the gymnasium.

Grandone Makes 12 Points.

For two-thirds of the contest, St. Louis defense had the famed Boilermaker attack well bottled up, the locals even having trouble getting open shots from the center of the court. As usual, Purdue's offense depended largely on one-handed shots, with the shooter driving in and then fading away from the hoop, while the St. Louis attack was based upon getting men into the open for flat-footed shots.

Grandone, playing the pivot at the foul line most of the game, was easily the outstanding offensive threat in the St. Louis lineup. The Billiken center grabbed high point honors for the visitors with four field goals and four fouls. He was consistently outjumped, however, by Fisher and Fehring, and Purdue controlled practically all of the [illegible] offs.

The victory was Purdue's second of the season in two starts.

TAFF BOWLS 1682 IN FLORISSANT TOURNEY

Fred Taff, shooting a score of 1682, paced the bowlers in last night's competition in the eight-game bowling classic at the Florissant Recreation parlors.

Taff's performance was no fluke, as only recently he won the Officers' Club tournament. He bowls with the Gus Krons of the A. B. C. and Major City Scratch Leagues.

PITTSBURGH LIKELY TO PROVE TROJANS' TOUGHEST RIVAL

GAME SHOULD BE BATTLE OF TWO POWERFUL LINES; RESULT A GUESS

By John E. Wray.

Southern California's brilliant campaign to prove its claim, for the second successive season, to the football championship of the country, will come to a close Jan. 1, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

The Pittsburgh Panthers, a powerful unbeaten eleven and one which conquered Notre Dame by practically the same score as did Southern California, will furnish the opposition and that this will be of the strongest there is no doubt whatever.

If comparative scores mean anything, Southern California is likely to prove the victor, for, on a line through Stanford, it figures to be one touchdown better than the Panthers.

But a touchdown on paper is just no margin at all in these days, when a pass snatched out of the air after a desperate heave may beat a team that had strength enough to march 80 yards up to an opponent's goal line, only to fumble the ball.

Trojans Have a Great Line.

Southern California's game against Notre Dame made a great impression on the listeners-in. From the kick-off the Trojans showed a great line, one almost invincible, some of the finest kicking and punting strategy that has been displayed this year on any gridiron, greater versatility of attack than "the Irish" and field generalship that made the Notre Dame masterminding appear of the kindergarten variety.

The game was a masterpiece of good headwork on the part of the Coast men and if they were somewhat aided by good fortune, that's usually the lot of the more alert and intelligent eleven.

The Pittsburgh team is a rather sluggish scoring eleven. Its defense will probably prove equal to that of the Southern Californians. Only two elevens have been able to score against it, this season, and the Army and Pennsylvania were not weaklings.

On the other hand, the scoring punch of the Panthers was extremely dull and came to a dull stop in two games, those with Ohio State and Nebraska, both of which held the Panthers to a scoreless tie.

Scores of 6 to 0 against Carnegie and 7-0 against Stanford do not impress one with the scoring strength of the Pittsburgh outfit. Its 12-0 scores against Notre Dame were due to the good break of a run of half the length of the field and an intercepted pass, heaved by Notre Dame in last-moment desperation.

If Pittsburgh is unlucky enough to receive the first kickoff, it may share the fate of Notre Dame and die penned up back of its own 30-yard line for the greater part of the struggle. On the other hand, if Pitt gets a break in the toss and kicks off to Southern California, the result may be entirely difficult. An early "break" in California territory might net the Panthers a score and its strong defensive team would then give it a great chance to retain its advantage.

If Pittsburgh wins, then the championship situation will be hopelessly scrambled, but with Colgate and Michigan really having the best claims to consideration. If Southern California should defeat the Panthers, there still will be doubt cast on the title, because none can say just what would have happened had Michigan or Colgate or both had a crack at the Trojans.

The Eastern eleven always is at some disadvantage in California; but with a month in which to prepare and a week or so in which to become acclimated the Panthers will hardly be able to alibi a defeat on the ground of the journey or the weather conditions.

That has happened before; but there seems to be an unwarranted tendency to minimize. Far Western football quality notwithstanding results of previous Rose Bowl games show that the coast elevens have been able to more than hold their own against all comers, except in the case of Alabama.

This Southern school has played three games in the Rose Bowl and is unbeaten, having won twice and tied one game.

Southern California will be playing its fourth Rose Bowl game and its record is even better than Alabama's, the Trojans having won all of their contests. One of its victims was Pittsburgh. That was in 1930 and that year the Trojans mopped up the bowl with the Panthers, score 47 to 14.

The score of East against West in the Rose Bowl games now stand seven victories for the Coast and five for all comers, excepting the service games. Three games were tied.

Following is the complete record of Rose Bowl games:

1917—Oregon 14, Penna. 0.
1918—Mare Island (California) Marines 19, Camp Lewis (Wash.) 7.
1920—Harvard 7, Oregon 6.
1921—California 28, Ohio State 0.
1922—Washington and Jefferson 0, California 0.
1923—Southern California 14, Penn State 3.
1924—Washington 14, Navy 14.
1925—Notre Dame 27, Stanford 10.
1926—Alabama 20, Washington 19.
1927—Alabama 7, Stanford 7.
1928 Stanford 7, Pittsburgh 6.
1929—Georgia Tech 8, California 7.
1930—Southern California 47, Pittsburgh 14.
1931—Alabama 24, Washington State 0.
1932—Southern California 21, Tulane 12.

Lowell Jackson and Ray Holmes, star bowlers of the Hermann Undertakers, present leaders in the Major City and A. B. C. Scratch leagues, St. Louis' strongest tenpin circuits, have been selected as the best of a group of young bowlers who have advanced rapidly in the bowling game during the past few years, by Otto Stein Jr., dean of local match-game bowlers and former world's all-events champion.

Stein, who recently defeated Jackson in a 20-game match, rates the two young bowlers on a par. Holmes, who came into prominence as a bowler at Charley Peterson's alleys, is second in high average in the Major City League with a mark of 216, while Jackson is carrying an average of 201. In the A. B. C. Scratch League, Holmes has 206 and Jackson 201.

Ervin Brunsmann, star of the Charles Krons and present Middle-West all-events champion, is rated next, Brunsmann totaled 2123 in winning the Mid-West title at the Rogers' alleys. Al Krekel, a member of Bob Bruce's Alexander and Sons team, is listed fourth, followed by Harry Welsh of the Gus Krons; Steve Kenney, of the Alexanders; Fred Taff of the Gus Krons; Harold Schaeffer, Arthur Scheer and Frank Schalk. Others who received mention were Edgar "Bud" Rice, Al Ahrens, John Flanagan and Ambrose Nathe.

According to Jerry Ameling, secretary of the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association, Schaeffer appears to be the most promising of the younger stars. Schaeffer, who has been bowling only a few years, is still in his teens, but is holding an average of 217 in the Major City League. He bowles with the Q. M. Recreation team.

Panthers Defeat Alumni, 7-0 in Indoor Contest

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 17.

DRIVEN indoors by a pelting snow, lashing the silent stadium, Pitt's gridmen clashed today with Pitts stars of used-to-be, trouncing the Alumni 7-0 in a rough-and-tumble family fued waged beneath the gaunt rafters of an armory.

Carrying 36 players and three coaches, the Panther Rose Bowl Odyssey will start West at 11:20 o'clock tomorrow night.

MISSOURI TIGERS EASILY DEFEAT WASHINGTON, 39-27

ner, however, and forced the Washington forwards to hurry their shots.

Johnny Cooper carried off high scoring honors with five field goals and two free throws, 12 points, leading his teammate, Miller, by a field goal. Three Washington men—Red Graves, Maitland Marshall and Floyd Kern, each gathered six points.

Notes of the Game.

Two St. Louis boys—Capt. Norman Wagner of Normandy and Barney Passer, formerly of Soldan High, had no small part in the Tigers' victory. Passer specializes on tricky passwork to put his mates in scoring position and only made two free throws. Wagner broke into the scoring column with three field goals and as many foul tosses for nine points.

The bleachers fans did not change their opinion that the Bears will have to work hard to perfect their defense. Hower frequently broke up plays, but he had a terrible time finding somebody open to whom he could pass the ball. White sent in as reserve guards, Joe Meisel and Bob Mautz, but neither was in long enough to determine whether he is the answer to the fans' plea for a sturdy guard.

BAER'S MANAGER SAYS HIS BOXER HAS OFFER TO MEET SCHMELING

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, heavyweight pugilist, left hurriedly today for New York after an announcement that he was going to sign for a fight between Baer and Max Schmeling, former world's champion.

Hoffman said he had talked today by long distance telephone with Jack Dempsey, who is expected to promote the fight, and Joe Jacobs, manager for Schmeling. He said he had a tacit understanding on terms, but declined to reveal details.

The proposed fight, Hoffman said, will be held either in the Polo Grounds, New York, or at Soldier Field, Chicago, during next year's world's fair.

Soccer Referee Should Never Change a Decision, Says Famous English Official

First Thing Arbiter Should Do Is to Let All Know Who Is Boss, Capt. Prince-Cox Declares.

THIS is the first of a series of articles by Captain A. J. Prince-Cox, a former English International Referee, on Soccer in which he gives some valuable points on refereering, one of the hardest tasks in sport, since there are so many small rule infractions to watch.

By Capt. A. J. Prince-Cox.

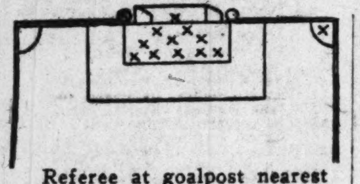
THE most difficult task in football is refereeing; but my travels in football, which embrace every European country where the game is played, have taught me one lesson, a lesson which must be learned by all who hope to succeed in this very difficult task. From the very start of every match the referee must convince the players that he is the master, and that he will stand no nonsense from anyone, player or club official.

I recall refereeing in Spain when an excited linesman rushed on to the field and told me I should have given a penalty kick to his side. I could not speak Spanish, nor he English, except for the word "penalty." Here was a problem. If I had been weak and allowed this linesman to overrule my judgment I should have been in trouble with the crowd. Gently I led him back to his line and left him there.

There was no fuss, no bother, but the crowd knew who was in charge; and so did the players. I have had players who, because I could not speak their language, have thought they could take advantage. They have soon learned better, and this handling of players is to be my first step in assisting referees.

Must Not "Bully" Players.

Firmness does not mean bullying. In the whole of my football career, in the English Football League, the great and exciting Cupties of England, Scotland, Ireland and France, in all kinds of matches, I have never had to send a player off the field. That is a record of which I am very proud.



Referee at goalpost nearest to corner from which kick is to be made, with linesman at other post.

I do not believe in treating men as though they were naughty school boys. When a player does something which I think is wrong I do not stop the play and make him walk up to me to be publicly admonished. If I want to say anything to him, I give my ruling, start the game, and then run alongside the player concerned, and tell him that I saw his action, and, if there is a repetition, I shall take more drastic steps. I am always prepared to warn any man twice in this way.

But this simple little thing, of not making a player appear foolish before the vast crowd, usually has its effect. I do not make him feel chastened, with the result that he returns my effort by careful attention to his conduct. I try to treat footballers as men like myself. It pays.

Don't Be an Actor.

To you referees, I say, avoid all effects of the actor. Blow your whistle, give your decision, and get on with the game. Wild rushing about the field tends to make the crowd and players laugh at you. Do not be in a hurry to give your decisions. It does not take a fraction of a second to study what has happened. Once you have blown your whistle, you must stand by it. What I am going to say may appear dogmatic. You must never be wrong, and you must not change a verdict, after once giving it. You have got to teach everybody that you are always right! Take an extra fraction of a second to consider every point, and then stick solidly to your decision.

Man in Charge of Match Should Be Thoroughly Acquainted With All the Rules of the Sport.

These are general rules of control, but no man can control unless he knows exactly what he is doing. Every point in the Laws of Football must be ready in your mind. When I go to referee in Germany, I go to the trouble of getting a translated copy of the laws as they apply in Germany. There are one or two minute differences compared with the laws in England, but I know those differences. Neither I, nor you, nor any man can administer the laws unless we have them perfectly assimilated.

Great Help to Official.

Now I am going to help you, I think, by telling you of a great improvement which we have perfected in England. You know how difficult it is to see all that happens in the goal-area when a corner kick is taken. You should stand by the goalpost nearest where the kick is being taken. You must be in position to see whether or not the ball goes over the line. You must watch the ball, which means you cannot also watch what the players are doing behind your back. This has caused much concern.

To get over this difficulty, we now bring the linesman, who is on the side of the field opposite to where the kick is being taken, to a position at the other side of the goal to where we are standing. A simple thing, but it means that the whole goal area is under supervision. The diagram given here shows exactly what I mean. The kick is being taken from the right, the players in the goal mouth are indicated by crosses, the referee by a circle, and the linesman by a cross inside a circle.

Nothing can now happen, as you will see, in the goalmouth, without the linesman being aware of it, and he can tell the referee, and so prevent unfair play. I propose to give in each article a problem for you to solve, and answer it in the next. My first happened to me in a First Division game of the English League. A player shot the ball into the goal, the goalkeeper picked up the ball and kicked it to the center of the field, but when the center forward put it on the spot, he found that the ball was burst, and he claimed that no goal could be scored, as the ball did not meet with the law's requirements as to size and dimensions. I gave a goal. Do you know why, and how would you have tackled that problem?

THREE GOLFERS TIED FOR LEAD IN PASADENA OPEN

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 17.—Eddie Loos, Chicago professional, swept into a tie for first place at the half-way mark of the Pasadena $4000 open golf tournament with a hole in one today.

The veteran Loos, by virtue of his one-stroke hole on the 150-yard thirteenth, turned in a 67, four under par and the best round of the tournament, for a 36-hole card of 138.

Tied with him were Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., professional, who had a 69 today, and Harry Cooper, one of yesterday's joint leaders. Cooper, also of Chicago stroked his way to a 70. Three strokes behind moved Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico.

Tied for first position at the end of the first round, Diegel lost the feel of his irons and came in with a 73 this afternoon.

Cooper was the only one of the four leaders yesterday who could maintain the pace. Dick Metz, Wood's professional partner at the Hollywood Country Club, couldn't retain his putting touch and finished today's round with a 74, for a 142 total and a tie for fifth place. Willie Hunter of Los Angeles cracked out a 72 to keep company with Metz.

The other member of that foursome which carded 68 yesterday, Fred Morrison of Pasadena, suffered a bad out nine by going four over par and finished with a 76 for a 144 in a tie for eighth.

Loos played a steady game. He missed only two greens and putted exceptionally well. Going to the lucky thirteenth, he was even pars. He stepped up to the ball and cracked it with a mashie some 10 feet short of the cup and to the right. It dribbled along, described an arc and rolled in.

As a result, Loos finished the home nine in 32, the best card of the tournament, as well as the low 18 total to date. He was out in 35.

M'NAB IS NAMED COACH OF STIX; LEADERS OPPOSE ANDERSON TEAM

By Herman Wecke.

Further changes have been made in the management of the Stix Club, leader in the St. Louis (professional) Soccer League, it was announced yesterday by Jack Dwyer, owner of the franchise. The latest move will give Alec McNab, veteran forward brought here from the East, a bit more to say in the running of the club.

Tate Brady, who recently was named to succeed Jimmy Burke as manager, will remain in that capacity, while McNab will be in charge of the conditioning of the team. He replaces Harry Ratican, who has been dropped from the club's roster.

"It looked to me as though we were carrying too many men," was Dwyer's comment in announcing the changes.

No changes are planned in the makeup of the eleven, but with McNab in charge of the training he will bring some of his ideas into play. He is of the opinion that more running, in an effort to get that extra step on the opposition, will be far better than kicking all the time. His main idea probably will be an effort to build up the speed of the players. While nothing definite has been announced, it is probable that from time to time McNab will visit the Municipal League fields in an effort to line up some players who will strengthen the Stix Club for the coming national challeng cup competition. He declares he is especially anxious to see a certain player in action, but refuses to divulge his name.

Leaders Oppose Andersons.

With the officials announcing that the matches would be played at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, unless there was a heavy fall of snow, the Ben Millers will tackle Phil Kavanaugh's Coca-Colas in the opener, starting at 1:45 o'clock, with the Andersons and Stax playing in the second. There will be added incentive for the Andersons and Kavanaughs to play at top speed, since a chance against the Slavia Club of Cleveland hinges on the outcome of the battles. One of the games, probably that of Dec. 26, will see the Stix in action, while the other, on Dec. 25, will go to the second place team in th local circuit. At present the Andersons have a two-point margin and need only a tie with the league leaders to be assured of an engagement with the Cleveland team.

Johnny Marre, manager of the Andersons, plans to keep Sam Dueker at the center forward position, leaving Bertel to do duty between the uprights. Dueker played forward against the Kavanaughs a week ago and had much to do with the success of the eleven. He did a lot of charging of the "goalie," probably figuring that "he had been taking it all season and now that he had a chance to give a bit in return he would not let that opportunity go to waste." In other positions the makeup of the club will be the same. Lou Ahrens is still suffering from a bad ankle and may again be out of the Stix battle front. The last two meetings between the clubs have resulted in draws, while in the first the Stix won.

Opposing the Kavanaughs, the Millers, surprise eleven of the past two weeks, will be seeking its third successive victory. In drubbing the Andersons and Stix, the Millers have scored 11 goals against one. All the regulars of the two clubs are ready for action.

Trying to Book Maccabees.

With the Slavia Club of Cleveland signed for the Christmas holiday attraction, officials of the local circuit now are dickering with the Maccabee All-Stars of Chicago for games during the New Year holidays. The Maccabee team, a fine club, made up of young players, is one of the Chicago elevens which has never been seen in action here. Sparta is another Windy City club which wants to come here.

The use of goal linesmen at the local games was talked over at a recent meeting and this plan may be in use before the season gets much farther under way.

It was the first shutout for Mike Karakas, the Flyers' youthful goalie, and while the latest figures show him tied with Levine in the standing of the goalies, recent games really have put him in first place.

First "Ladies' Night."

Friends of Williams here have planned a celebration for him tonight at which he will be presented with some token of the regard in which he is held here.

It will be the first "ladies' night" of the season and those who purchase tickets before 5 o'clock will be given a ticket free for a woman.

WINNERS IN GIRLS' BASKETBALL GAMES MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

The winners in the first night's play of the Greater St. Louis Girls' Basketball Association will meet at Battery A, Grand boulevard and Hickory street, Friday night, when the Bachelors oppose the Aquinas Club.

The preliminary contest also promises to be interesting as the two defeated teams, Crystal City and the Belleville Turners, clash in this number. Both of the latter squads have been ordered to report for several hard scrimmages this week in preparation for their meeting Friday.

Arrange Baseball Games

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 17.—Holy Cross College baseball schedule for 1933, announced today, includes the following dates: May 10, William and Mary at Worcester, and May 13, Georgetown at Worcester.

HE'S BACK! Burr Williams to Play at Arena Tonight

FORMER star defense man of the St. Louis Club, who is with Duluth this season and will make his first appearance against his old club here. He was sold by St. Louis to the Chicago Blackhawks of the National League, who turned him over to Duluth after a tryout proved that Williams needed more experience before playing in the big league.

GREENLEAF WINS FROM PONZI IN U. S. TITLE PLAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Ralph Greenleaf, 10 times holder of the pocket billiard title since 1919, tonight thrust aside the challenge of Andrew Ponzi, defeating the Philadelphia cue artist 125 to 33 to retain undisputed possession of first place with six consecutive victories in the national tournament here.

Greenleaf, playing position with uncanny ability at times, completed his conquest over the chubby little Quaker City player in 10 innings, running out the game with an unfinished cluster of 27.

Ponzi Plays Position Badly.

Ponzi had his chances, but played position badly and was able to get the balls rolling in only three innings. He pocketed eight in the second inning, 20 in the third and dropped nine more in the seventh. He lost four points with intentional scratches in an effort to stop his brilliant opponent.

Getting away to early lead with a run of six in the first inning, after Ponzi had broken the rack, Greenleaf never lost control of the situation. A foul ended his run on his initial appearance at the table but he came right back with a sensational exhibition of position playing to run 56—his best cluster of the game. This time he scratched on his last shot, the cue ball following the break ball into the upper left pocket.

Celebrating his twenty-second birthday with one of the greatest comebacks in recent billiard history, Jimmy Caras of Wilmington, Del., toppled Erwin Rudolph, Cleveland veteran, from the ranks of the undefeated with an unexpected triumph in an earlier match.

Caras Displays Great Game.

Young Caras astonished even the old masters with his knowledge of the green cloth table as he came back from an overwhelming defeat at the hands of Pasquale Natalie last night to turn back Rudolph, a former champion, 125 to 56, in 28 innings.

Playing with aplomb, the youthful Wilmington sensation showed much improvement over his game with Natalie, in which he managed to score only three points. Today he took the lead in the first inning, piled up an advantage of more than 100 points at the half-way mark and then fought off Rudolph's defensive tactics with a defense equally brilliant, finally running out with an uncompleted cluster of 15.

Allen Is Victor.

In the first game of the day, Bennie Allen, 43-year-old Kansas City veteran, came from behind to defeat George Kelly of Philadelphia, 125 to 104, in 21 innings, and win his fourth game in eight starts.

The standing:

Ralph Greenleaf, New York	6	0	67
Erwin Rudolph, Cleveland	5	1	59
Pasquale Natalie, Chicago	5	1	67
James Caras, Wilmington, Del.	5	2	65

Bennie Allen, Kansas City	4	4	56
Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y.	3	4	64

Santa Claus Still Lives.

BOTTOMLEY got a break in one particular—he'll be among friends in Cincinnati. There he will find almost a transplanted Cardinal baseball team with Douthit, High, Chick Hafey and Walter Roettger on the job.

If the Cincinnati team is to emerge from the first floor apartment of the National League race this year it will owe a lot of thanks to Sam Breadon, who has given it a fistful of talent—enough to enable the team to do something, with tight pitching to help out.

The transfer of these players, and especially of Bottomley, from the Cards to the Reds seems to indicate that Santa Claus still lives.

Back to the Old Game.

PRIMO CARNERA is back at the old game of pushing over setups. He is matching up with Kayo Christner, Big Boy Peterson and that sort—men whom he has beaten before, for the most part, and who could not beat anyone worth the name of "fighter," much less Carnera.

It's all in the pot-boiling game. It has been done and will be done to the end of time—or as long as the public is interested enough to pay.

Carnera, however, will fight the good ones also. He has just picked off one of the first 10—King Levinsky. Now he is planning to meet Max Baer or Jack Sharkey. It is almost certain that either the champion or the rising young challenger will face Carnera this spring.

It will be a real attraction, for Baer has made a good impression in recent months

One Prosperous "Bowl."

WHEREAS many big stadiums and arenas of the country have been financially sick, including the St. Louis Arena and the Chicago Stadium, Madison Square Garden is sailing prosperously along.

The Garden Corporation's earnings are reported to be more than $600,000 ahead of last year's and of this more than $150,000 has been made since the outdoor boxing season. The Garden paid off $300,000 on its mortgage and built the Long Island city "Bowl," which it has filled up several times since. A lighting system costing $27,000 was also constructed.

This profitable season considered, it is entirely unlikely that the Garden will consider a proposal to take over the Detroit Olympia, the Chicago Stadium and the St. Louis Arena to exploit a chain store sports enterprise. Three would be merely a drain on one under current conditions.

Just Another Myth?

THE young fellow was indignant. He had just been reading opinions derogatory to the modern game called wrestling. He felt that a terrible injustice was being done to a great sport.

"It's great, to me," he said. "I just can't believe that it's only a show. In fact, if there's anything wrong with wrestling, I don't want to know about it. I get a big kick out of it as it is."

Which is just about the same reply we might have made 50 years ago to the neighborhood Smart Aleck, who tried to convince us that Santa Claus was just a lot of hooey.

We part with illusions reluctantly. And perhaps it's best, after all. We like the truth, but not too naked.

All in a Day's Work.

PERHAPS the wrestlers themselves are to blame for some of the incredulity that attaches to their claims of giving a real contest. For example, Ed Lewis, a champion, wrestled in New York Wednesday. He hopped to Detroit and wrestled the next night. From there he came to St. Louis and "risked his title" against Szabo. Five wrestlers who competed in New York and several wrestlers on the Detroit card, competed on the St. Louis program, with two and one day intermissions, and train rides in between.

You can't reasonably expect the public to consider such circuses as real contests.

The other wrestling groups have been guilty of just as outrageous insults to public intelligence.

Now there is nothing wrong in putting on a circus. The chariot show is great—and thrilling. But why expect people to believe it a race? And in the day-by-day wrestling that goes on in the country, such as in the case cited, can anyone reasonably be expected to believe that it is anything but a very thrilling exhibition of man power and acrobatics?

Why not, then, treat modern wrestling under circus news, instead of sports? It will draw just as well.

Room for Improvement.

WISCONSIN, which had about the best boxing law and the best boxing supervision in the United States, is considering a change in its boxing commission. It is thinking of expanding its three-man commission to five, with no pay for any commissioners. Economy is part of the move.

Such a change will be good, if good men are found; very bad if political climbers are named. The best boxing commission is one that is paid and whose members can be held to account under the law. Men who serve without pay are excused for many shortcomings.

"Oh, what can we expect?" is the retort to criticisms. "He's doing it just for love and giving up his time from his regular business," etc.

And incidentally it would be better for every state to have paid men who can be held responsible without apologies for mistakes or abuses of office when or if such occurs.

And that goes for Missouri, too.

We Need a Change.

THE Missouri law needs to be amended—badly. The coming session of the Legislature may be asked to remodel the commission law in at least one particular. That relates to the selection of its chairman.

The present law sets forth that the chairman of the commission shall be the director of athletics of the State University. At present this post is filled by a most admirable man, Chester Brewer, but one who is bored and embarrassed by the commission duties thrust upon him unwillingly by statute.

His duties at Missouri University more than take up his time. His interest does not run along boxing lines. It is even farther removed from professional spheres. He stands between Old Nick and the deep blue sea, with a dictator for the Eastern district in St. Louis, and a dictator for the Western district in Kansas City—two czars each a law unto himself in his respective territory.

When these two clash, Brewer is called upon to decide between them and, of course, he can only temporize. He is in the deplorable position of a man who, not caring for his job can't resign it, and owing to its requirements can't fill it acceptably.

The same situation will exist for every future director of athletics at the State University, and that part of the Missouri law could be changed to advantage.

COGGESHALL IS NO. 1 IN VALLEY TENNIS RANKING

By Davison Obear.

Harris M. Coggeshall of Des Moines, former Missouri Valley Conference champion, succeeds Wray D. Brown of this city as No. 1 ranking men's singles player in the Missouri Valley Tennis Association according to the 1932 list released last night by Kard Hodge, chairman of the Ranking Committee. Brown did not participate in tournaments in the Valley territory last season and therefore did not qualify for a ranking.

COGGESHALL

The second place in the singles was awarded to Hal Surface, brillia: Kansas City youth, who reached the finals of the Missouri Valley championship at Tulsa last June. Surface was defeated by Fred Royer, Dal- player, for the title.

For the first time in many years there were no St. Louis players named in either the singles or doubles list. This was due to their failure to participate in the sanctioned events held outside of St. Louis. In addition to Brown, Ted Drewes, Karl Hodge and Gus Boehmer are mentioned in the insufficient data list.

Only three players ranked in the first 10 last year remain in the 1932 list. These players are Surface, who moved up from No. 4 to second place; Nelson McIninch, Kansas City junior, who advanced from five to three, and Lowe Runkle, Oklahoma City, who moved from nine last year to six this year.

1. Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines.
2. Hal Surface, Kansas City.
3. Nelson McIninch, Kansas City.
4. Donald Cram, Des Moines.
5. Charles Davis, Oklahoma City.
6. Lowe Runkle, Oklahoma City.
7. Arthur Voss, Topeka, Kan.
8. Gerin Cameron, Tulsa, Ok.
9. William Kiley, Kansas City.
10. Dave Freeborn, Tulsa, Ok.
11. Max Everett, Des Moines.
12. Kenneth Kell, Topeka.
13. Ben Beckerman, Des Moines.
14. Albert Rollins, Okmulgee, Ok.
15. John Pierpont, Wichita, Kan.
16. H. Loschke, Kansas City.
17. Byron Engle, Wichita, Kan.
18. Albert Upshur, Oklahoma City.
19. Floyd Pierpont, Wichita, Kan.
20. W. B. Fitch, Fort Smith, Ark.

Not ranked on account of insufficient data: Ted Drewes, St. Louis; Sterling Cutlip, Kansas City; Leslie Dewitt, Wichita, Kan.; Wray Brown, St. Louis; Frank Brody, Des Moines; Karl Hodge, St. Louis; W. E. Coen Jr., Kansas City; G. H. Boehmer, St. Louis; Jerry Sass, Oklahoma City.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

1. Jerome Sass and Charles Davis, Oklahoma City.
2. William Kiley and Nelson McIninch, Kansas City.
3. Ben Beckerman and Frank Brody, Des Moines.
4. Lowe Runkle and Edward Overholzer, Oklahoma City.
5. Dave Freeborn and Gerin Cameron, Tulsa, Ok.

Bronko Nagurski	Chicago Bears	F. B.	Minnesota

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—Green Bay, Chicago Bears and Portsmouth, the three leading teams in the National Football League, grabbed the lion's share of places on the all-professional eleven selected for the Associated Press by seven of the eight coaches in the league.

On the first team, three places each went to Green Bay and the Bears. Portsmouth was awarded two and the remaining positions were filled by New York, Chicago Cardinals and Boston. The Bears and Portsmouth tomorrow decide the national professional football championship in a play-off game at the Chicago Stadium. They tied with six victories and one defeat each in the regular season. Green Bay lost three games and won 10.

Being selected on a nation-wide team is no new experience for two of the first team players, Earl Clark of Portsmouth and Bronko Nagurski of the Bears. The former was named quarterback on the Associated Press' All-America team in 1928, when a member of the Colorado College eleven. Nagurski was similarly honored the following season at Minnesota, where he played tackle.

Grange on Second Team.

Harold "Red" Grange, who galloped to All-America fame in 1925 at the University of Illinois, was relegated to the second team. Three more All-Americas of other years—Christian Cagle, Army, 1928; Benny Friedman, Michigan, 1926, and Kenneth Strong, New York University, 1928—were given honorable mention.

Clark was the only unanimous choice. Nagurski received six of the seven votes. The other positions were more hotly contested.

Ray Flaherty, New York's great pass catcher, and Luke Johnson of the Chicago Bears won the end positions and Cal Hubbard, 225-pound boy from Green Bay, and Glen Edwards of Boston, the tackles. Two Chicago players, Jules Carolson of the Bears and Walter Kiesling of the Cardinals, were named as guards. Nate Barrager of Green Bay, former Southern California star, was selected for the snapper-back job.

PLAYER.	Team.	Pos.	College Attended.
Dilweg	Green Bay	L. E.	Marquette
Christensen	Portsm'th	L. T.	Oregon U.

California, Florida and Oregon Win Intersectional Football Games

Fast and furious was the battle in the first half. Gaining ground on an exchange of punts, California went into action on its 46-yard mark. Schaldach passed to Jones for 40 yards, the latter snagging the ball with a one-handed catch of the baseball variety.

Schaldach hit the line twice to put the oval on the one-foot line, from where Quisling bucked through for the first score. Schaldach added the extra point with a drop kick.

A few plays later the Bears crashed 78 yards down the field to the seven-yard line, only to lose the ball when Castro caught Schaldach's pass outside the end zone. Just before the period ended, the Californians recovered a blocked put on Tech's 16-yard line, but again lost a scoring chance by an incomplete pass.

Florida Upsets U. C. L. A., 12 to 2.

By the Associated Press.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 17.—Out of the debris of a disastrous season, Florida's sophomore eleven arose here today to crown its campaign with a fine and surprising 12-to-1 intersectional victory over the University of California at Los Angeles.

Battered into submission in six of their eight previous starts this season, Florida's young but husky players found themselves in their final contest and outsmarted the favored Bruins from the University of California at Los Angeles from the outset.

The Alligators scored early in the second period following a blocked punt, after a 50-yard advance had been halted just short of the goal, and tallied their second touchdown in the last quarter on a long pass from McAnly, sub for Henderson, to Schirmer.

California's safety came in the third period after Coats, substitute center, had blocked Henderson's kick and the little Florida back had been tackled behind the goal line.

Touchdown Called Back.

Florida was placed in trouble early in the battle as a wild pass sailed over Henderson's head, and he was downed on the five-yard stripe. He kicked out short and California opened its offensive from the 27, but this march was halted before it could get under way, as Hughes intercepted Keeble's pass and Florida booted out of danger.

Later Henderson passed from his 43 to Schirmer, who raced across the goal line, but officials detected clipping on the play and Florida was forced to kick.

Just before the quarter ended Shearer, Florida end, burst through to block Decker's kick and Stark recovered on the three-yard line with Henderson bombing through the line for a touchdown. Hughes' place kick for the extra point was blocked.

The Californians came back with a ferocious drive that carried 35 yards before a pass was intercepted on the 32.

California made two short marches at the beginning of the third quarter and then kicked to Florida on its 13. Henderson dropped back to kick and Coats, substitute center, dashed through to smash the punt. The ball rolled back over the goal line and Henderson was snagged for a safety.

Californians Stopped.

The most dangerous bid of the invaders came at this time, as Frank Ovitch dashed the kick off back to Florida's 40. Punching the line for consistent gains, the Californians drove to Florida's three, where Keeble was smothered on a wide left-end sweep.

As the fourth quarter started California again turned to long aerial heaves, one of which was intercepted by Davis, and ran back to near the center of the field. McAnly broke through the line for a 35-yard gain, but Florida was offside and on the next play McAnly passed 25 yards to Schirmer, who caught the ball high in the air, shook off would-be tacklers and raced for the touchdown. Again the extra point was missed on an attempted pass.

U. C. L. A.	Pos.	FLORIDA.
Mueller	L.E.	Shearer

Mikulak's 12 Points Give Oregon Victory.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 17.—In sub-freezing weather, with a biting wind, the stout football team of the University of Oregon today defeated the lighter eleven of Louisiana State University, 12-0.

The game was played before a scant 1200 spectators, who sat huddled in blankets and waited in vain for the home team to score.

At the start of the game the visitors showed their superior strength by breaking through the Louisiana line, while Louisiana was unable to dent the Oregon wall and confined its efforts in the main to end runs and forward passes. But the Louisianans could make little ground around the ends, except for a 51-yard run by Almokary in the first quarter.

Each Oregon touchdown was set up by forward passes and completed by a series of line plunges with Mikulak, Kostka and Temple slamming through the holes laid open by the powerful linesmen.

Punting Poor.

Punting of each team was poor, the cold weather apparently stiffening the muscles of even the Oregonians. Jack Torrance, ordinarily a threat with his kicking, was unable to get distance but made up for this failure by a stubborn defensive game.

Oregon made its first touchdown from a 30-yard pass, Temple to Gee, which put the ball on Louisiana's 18-yard line. Four line crashes by Mikulak took the ball over the goal line, but Morgan missed the place kick for point after touchdown.

Like the first, the second touchdown was set up from a pass but it was somewhat of a fluke. The officials ruled a pass from Temple as complete because of interference by Almokary and the ball was brought to Louisiana's 24-yard line, where line plunges pushed the ball forward until Mikulak crashed the line for the second touchdown. Temple missed the point of an attempted place kick.

Lineups:

OREGON	Pos.	L. S. U.
Wishard	L. E.	Fleming
Morgan	L. T.	J. Skidmore
Clarke	L. G.	Wilson
Hughes	C.	Stoval

'SILVER BILL' STICKNEY BALL PLAYER OF PIONEER DAYS, DIES

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Dec. 17.—William "Silver Bill" Stickney, patriarch of the baseball diamond, died in his hotel room here last night at the age of 72. He had lived there several years on a pension furnished by the Southern Baseball Association.

Bill learned baseball on the sandlots of his home town, Montgomery, Ala. His first professionalism was with Jackson, Mich., in the old Tri-State League. He was one of the first paid players.

Then he moved to the Pacific Coast and played with San Francisco, Oakland and many other cities pioneering in baseball. After that came "big league" play with Chicago and Cincinnati.

NELL KUHLMAN WINS BY THREE LENGTHS AT NEW ORLEANS

MILLS' MOUNT IS SECOND IN FEATURE DASH; TRACK MUDDY

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17.—W. F. Lutz's Nell Kuhlman, a three-year-old filly, easily accounted for the Petite Verchere Purse, a six-furlong claiming affair, which featured Jefferson Park's mediocre program today.

Nell Kuhlman had placed second in two previous starts here, but the filly was much the best today. She showed more early speed than usual and remained close to the pace, set by Nomin, to the half-mile post. Here Dupuy shook her up and the Lutz speedster ran over the leaders and drew away through the stretch to win by three lengths. Making Bubbles, with Hank Mills up, was second and Very Well third, another two lengths behind.

The coldest weather of the meeting cut sharply into attendance today and racing was over a track still deep with mud.

Allen Matthews, Negro middleweight star, has signed for a five-round bout with Striking Blacksnake on Jack Tippett's ring carnival program at the Coliseum Tuesday night, the net proceeds of which are to go to the aid of the American Woman's Council of Justice, a charitable organization with headquarters at 2103 Franklin avenue.

Another five-round match also has been announced by Tippett, between Tony Viviano and Frankie Doxey. There will also be a professional heavyweight wrestling match, some amateur boxing contests, a 10-man battle royal between Negroes and a three-round bout between two woman boxers, Evelyn Norris and Bobby Brewer.

Also Digger Nelson and Billy Cain, who met on Tippett's first program at the Coliseum in 1927, will box three rounds.

R. R. Andrews, 428 Lee avenue, Webster Groves, went on his first goose hunting expedition recently and not only brought down a 14-pound honker, but learned far more about wild geese and migratory fowl than he had ever expected to learn so quickly.

Andrews, hunting with Preston Anheuser, at Clinton's farm, near Miller City, Ill., brought down a Canadian goose with his first shot from a goose pit and when he ran out to pick up his prize he found an aluminum band on one of its legs.

On one side of the band was the information that it had been banded in the spring of 1932 by Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist of Kingsville, Ont., and on the other was a verse of Scripture and a request that the hunter bringing down the bird write to Miner.

Andrews complied with the request and following are excerpts from the reply he received from the Canadian naturalist:

"Ducks, geese and other smaller migratory birds that visit this bird sanctuary, are tagged to aid in the study of their routes of migration and their life span. It also gives Jack Miner full information as to the states and provinces killing the greater number of birds; how long they stay in the United States and how long in Canada.

"I now have tags returned to me of wild geese from North Carolina to Baffin Land and over a hundred from Hudson Bay Indians and Eskimos. As for ducks, I now have tags returned from 33 different states and provinces—the farthest South coming from Guydan, La.; and from east to west I have them from Long Island, N. Y., to Englefield, Saskatchewan, thus covering an area of about 2000 miles square, or 4,000,000 square miles.

"But about the most encouraging fact I can give you is that fully 40 per cent of the birds I tag in the fall return to me the following spring. It is now near the middle of December and there are about 75 wild ducks and more than 1000 wild geese feeding within gunshot of where I am sitting.

"Some of the ducks breed in this vicinity and bring their toddlers here, but fully 90 per cent of them do not return until October, and, strange to say, very few geese come in the fall.

Proprietor of Sanctuary Sends Word That He Has Tags Returned From 33 States and Provinces.

"I had one wild mallard duck, hatched and raised by a domestic fowl in 1912. She migrated and returned to me for six springs and raised five families in six summers two eights, two nines and a 12. Just think what it means to a sportsman to have one duck escape our aim.

"The Government has given me permission to put up nets. The birds are either coaxed or driven in, tagged and then liberated at once. The last six or seven years I fed from 3000 to 4000 bushels of ears of corn each year to the wild fowl, and they seem to realize that I am a converted Jesse James to their kin. Yes, converted, because years ago my brother and I were market hunters."

Lindsey Named Head Coach of Jayhawker Eleven

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 17.—Adrian C. Lindsey, who became acting head football coach of the University of Kansas last October, today accepted the Athletic Board's appointment as head coach for a term expected to run at least three years, starting next fall.

Board members made it plain that they considered three years the minimum tenure for a coach; however, State schools cannot make contract for employment for more than one year at a time.

Lindsey played football for Kansas and captained the Jayhawkers' gridiron squad in his undergraduate days; played with the Eighty-ninth Division in the A. E. F., and the University of Oklahoma before returning here last fall as assistant to H. W. Hargiss, deposed football coach, who now is in charge of the Jayhawker track squad.

18 HORSES, VALUED AT $150,000, PERISH IN HAWTHORNE FIRE

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., Dec. 17.—Eighteen race horses, valued at more than $150,000, perished early today in a fire that razed a huge barn on the Hawthorne Farms of the Samuel Insull estate near Libertyville early today.

The fire started amid 20 tons of hay in the loft and was not discovered until 1 a. m., with the mercury 11 degrees below zero.

Among the best-known thoroughbreds lost were Big Star, a three-year-old which established a track record for the mile at Sportsmen's Park last season; Lieut. Russell, Siberia, Price Tag, Dewey Fly, Black Lightning, Gallery, Profession and Toney Star. Four race owners suffered in the loss. They were Ralph Gallett, Michael Mann, H. Swenke and R. Williams. Profession was a brother of the famous Top Flight.

Crew Experiments With Syncopated Stroke in Rowing

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, England, Dec. 17.

EXPERIMENTS in "syncopated rowing have been successfully carried out by a crew belonging to Pembroke College, Cambridge.

Instead of eight oarsmen, only six row the boat.

These "syncopated six," as they are called, are grouped into pairs, and they sit so that there is a space between each pair. When they have rowed a certain number of strokes in unison, the first pair alone rows a stroke. As their oars leave the water the second pair begin a stroke, followed in due course by the third pair. Then the first pair takes up the "tempo" again.

The effect is to substitute an even progress for the boat instead of the usual series of jerks.

Once the crew are "syncopated," a pair of oars is always levering the boat through the water, the only difficulty being the unusually fast speed of the boat when each pair of oars enters the water.

C. lost to Battle, Beaumont, decision, 1m 7s; Kramer, B. C., defeated Quallen, Beaumont, decision, 1m 56s.; Herwig, B. C., lost to Seacat, Beaumont, fall, 4m 20s.; Gibson, B. De Molay Fives To Open Season

With strenuous preliminary work completed, the six quintets slated to fight it out for the titular laurels of the De Molay Basketball League are ready for their inaugural skirmishes as the circuit prys open its fifth season of play, Sunday afternoon at the Armory, Grand boulevard and Enright avenue.

The inaugural schedule finds Harmony Chapter opposing St. Louis Chapter at 1:45 o'clock; Carondelet Chapter pitted against Washington, Mo., at 2:45, and the Sentinel Chapter, who are defending the laurels they won four consecutive seasons, ready to repulse the Perfection Chapter squad at 3:45.

Don White, head basketball coach at Washington University, has been named to referee the three games.

BROTHERS BOWLING MEET TO BE HELD AT WASHINGTON ALLEYS

The fourth annual Brothers bowling tournament will be held Jan. 7 and 8 at the Washington alleys, it was announced today. Following the Brothers' tourney, the first Husband and Wife sweepstakes will be held. This event is scheduled to be bowled Jan. 14 and 15.

Any pair of brothers who have league averages are eligible to compete in the first event, which is a handicap affair. In any case where there are more than two brothers, entrants may roll more than once by changing partners. Former champions who will compete in this year's event are Conrad and Herman Klosterman, Sam and Will Garofalo and Harvey and Bill Kopp.

The Husband and Wife sweepstakes, the first of its kind ever presented in St. Louis, will probably draw a large entry. A silver trophy will be awarded the winning couple. The event will be three games, total pins, on a handicap basis. Entries for both events can be made by calling Mal Stein, GArfield 8953.

JOCKEY GILBERT STARTED RIDING AT AGE OF 12

PITTSBURGH, Kan., Dec. 17.—When the talk hereabouts swings to Johnny Gilbert, the year's leading jockey, among the better informed members of the "I-Knew-Him-When" group is Dr. E. G. Gilbert, foster father of the 17-year-old rider.

It was about 10 years ago that two ragged, wide-eyed little Assyrian boys began to haunt the stable where Dr. Gilbert, a veterinarian, kept his shetland ponies. That was the beginning of a racing career for Johnny and his older brother, Pete Dyer, who later became the Gilbert boys by adoption. Other youngsters in the neighborhood began to ride and soon there were spirited derbys in the alley behind the stable, with bare heels urging the ponies to greater speed.

Close Race With Rival.

Pete was killed in a motor car accident in Texas last March, shortly after he had been named to ride Liberty Limited in the Kentucky Derby. But Johnny is riding on and after today's racing at New Orleans was still three victories ahead of his rival, Hank Mills, with 195 wins, just 12 short of the American record for one year.

"I saw it in them from the start," Doc Gilbert commented. "They had a natural horsemanship. They sat on their mounts well and held the reins with natural talent. I said all the time they were riders."

When Johnny was only 12 years old and Pete 13 they rode in the Crawford County fair races. Track officials protested against the employment of such youthful jockeys, but the young Gilberts begged for a chance. The officials relented and the boy riders gave good account of themselves.

Has Had Several Spills.

Johnny cried to come home and once wrote: "I can't do it, I just can't do it, they're running away with me."

But Doc Gilbert urged them to stick and stick they did. Johnny's grit carried him through several misfortunes. At Fairmount two years ago his mount fell on him, but he came back the same day astride a winner. He fell again at Hawthorne, but hung up a record of seven wins in eight days. There were spills at Bowie and at Havana, but each time Johnny emerged a more determined and resourceful jockey.

Joe Dyer, another brother, also is a jockey, and the two are the sole support of their widowed mother, Mrs. Anna Dyer, two sisters and an invalid brother.

WARNER INTIMATES THORNHILL IN LINE FOR STANFORD POST

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 17. — Whether Glenn "Pop" Warner takes over coaching at Temple University for spring practice depends upon what action Stanford University takes in granting him leave of absence, the resigned Stanford Coach said today.

"I would naturally like to get back there this spring," Warner told the Associated Press, "but it's up to Stanford first." Warner intimated "Tiny" Thornhill was in line for the Stanford coaching job.

"If Tiny succeeds me and no leave of absence is granted me I'd enjoy helping him out as much as possible, but would leave the principal plans up to him," Pop said.

PETE BAUSCH TO WRESTLE FRENCH ON ARENA CARD

Pete Bausch, former University of Kansas football, track and basketball star, and a brother of Jim Bausch, winner of the Olympic decathlon title in Los Angeles last summer, will be introduced to St. Louis wrestling fans at the Arena next Wednesday night in a bout with Frank French, an Iowa heavyweight. The bout was announced last night by Promoter Tom Packs as the curtain-raiser of the program featuring Everette Marshall in a dual engagement with Hans Kampfer and Rudy Dusek.

Bausch is one of the mat game's latest recruits from the realm of college athletics. As a student at Kansas University he was twice selected as center of the Big Six Conference football eleven. He played in all the Jayhawkers' basketball games in 1929 and again in 1931, and also won letters in track competition. He is six feet, two inches tall, weighs 210 pounds, and is said to have acquired considerable proficiency in wrestling technique as part of his course in physical education.

Marshall Trains Today.

The bout between Bausch and French rounds out a program of five events. Dr. Ralph Wilson of Evansville, Ind., meets Abe Kashey, a Syrian heavyweight, in the second preliminary, while the third bout brings Pat O'Shocker, redheaded Irish grappler, against John Katan of Canada. Jim McMillen of Chicago, and Darna Ostopavich of Poland, are paired in the semi-windup. The preliminaries are each to be governed by a time limit of 30 minutes.

Everette Marshall is scheduled to hold a training workout this afternoon at the National Gymnasium in preparation for his novel Arena engagement in which he will try to make good his boast that he can pin Dusek and Kampfer in succession. On his previous visits to St. Louis young Marshall, a native of Colorado, disposed of Paul Jones and three of matmen booked for preliminary bouts on Wednesday's program, namely Ostopavich, O'Shocker and Katan.

Jockey Is Married.

NICOLET, .435, LEADS TROLLEY LEAGUE BATTERS

Clarence "Bill" Nicolet, who played third base for the Standards of Alton in the Trolley League last season, led the league in hitting with an average of .435 for the 20-game schedule, according to averages released today.

At present a senior at Shurtleff College, in Alton, Nicolet has been voted the outstanding athlete of his school. He was captain of the football and baseball teams.

Marion Gaines of the Edgemonts led the league in fielding with no errors in 20 games, and Nick Laffler of the Ben Millers topped the base stealers.

The St. Louis Dairy Club of Belleville won the league championship.

SPRINGFIELD, Illinois.

A FRONTIER village of long ago, Abraham Lincoln's home town of the Illinois backwoods, is soon to rise again on the bluffs overlooking the Sangamon River in Menard County, north of here.

In the 1830's it was the village of New Salem, scene of the gawky young Lincoln's rail-splitting and storekeeping, scene of his wrestling feats, his beginning of the study of law, his first foray into politics, scene of his great and tragic romance. With 23 houses and a population of more than 100, it rivaled Chicago in size in those days.

The site is Old Salem State Park now, grave of a town that has been dead nearly a hundred years, for the town died in 1840, when the railroad came along and missed it by two miles. Only one of its original cabins still remains, but excavators are at work digging out old foundations, tracing old roads, locating old survey markers and making ready for a building program that will reproduce the village Lincoln knew. Within a year or two, it is expected, New Salem will be completely restored, its cabins duplicating log for log the cabins which stood when Lincoln courted Ann Rutledge and won the village wrestling championship.

For some 19 years now, the State of Illinois has contemplated restoration of this historic settlement. William Randolph Hearst was the first to consider such a plan. Twenty-six years ago he purchased a large tract including the village site, which was then a cow pasture. Later he presented it to the Old Salem Historical Society and, in 1917, the society presented it to the State. That same year the Illinois Legislature passed a bill authorizing expenditure of $50,000 for development of the spot as a Lincoln shrine, but except for the erection of a handsome stone museum 12 years ago, no work was done until summer before last, when Governor Louis L. Emmerson determined to carry out the project and appointed a committee to undertake extensive research concerning the early town and its inhabitants.

The research program is far enough advanced now to permit construction work to begin, and a $28,000 contract has been awarded to a Champaign firm for the first unit of the undertaking. This calls for rebuilding 13 of the 23 cabins and erection of another structure to shelter the one original cabin still standing on the site. This one cabin is the old Onstott cooper shop in which Lincoln spent many winter evenings studying by the light of burning shavings. The 13 to be restored comprise eight residences and five shops. The residences are those of Dr. John Allen, Samuel Hill, Robert Johnson, Dr. Francis Regnier, Alexander Waddell, Henry Onstott, Peter Lukins and that of Joshua Miller and Jack Kelso. The shops include the Berry & Lincoln store, Clary's grocery, Denton Offut's store, the Hill-McNamer store and Miller's blacksmith shop.

The Berry & Lincoln store, which was the only frame building in the entire village, will be of sawed oak lumber and sheathed with walnut siding. All the other structures will be of hewn oak logs, treated with a chemical preparation to preserve them from the ravages of time and weather. All will be roofed with the rough board shingles of the frontier. The majority will be able to boast floors of sawed boards, but a few will have to get along with puncheon surfacing underfoot as did their originals, the "poorer" homes of the little community. Several will have picturesque log chimneys lined with mortar. Along the ridge for half a mile these quaint pioneer dwellings will be strung out facing "Main Street," which was the old stage road.

The second unit of construction will come later—just how much later nobody will be able to say until the preliminary research work is further advanced. The research corps is having some trouble determining just what some of the other 10 structures were and where they stood. Plans definitely provide, however, for the old Rutledge Tavern, the Mentor Graham schoolhouse and the old mill below the bluff at the bend in the Sangamon.

The second unit also will include restoration of the old well from which Lincoln drank, and the road upon which he set out as a young lawyer and legislator to Springfield, leaving New Salem forever.

A group of women comprising the Old Salem Lincoln League will undertake restoration of interior decorations and the pioneer household equipment for the cabins. Not many of the original articles which had a part in the life of Lincoln's town still remain, but the few that do survive are being assembled along with pieces of typical pioneer furniture, cooking utensils, dishes, spinning wheels and other household appliances. The interiors of the cabins, it is intended, shall reflect the frontier atmosphere with as much fidelity as the outside walls.

This fidelity to fact is the keynote of the whole undertaking. Many years ago inexact restorations were made of the Rutledge Tavern, the Berry & Lincoln store and two or three other cabins, the purpose being to show approximately how the original structures looked and where they stood. These are still standing and appear as ancient now as the original Onstott cooper shop, but they will have no place in the new restoration scheme. The State's uncompromising determination to reproduce all buildings exactly as they were, rules out all previous restorations. Incidentally, it renders the restoration project a far more formidable undertaking, for the task of bringing to light now the many long-lost details of the village's make-up is a tremendous one.

Governor Emmerson's research committee, during the 18 months it has been at work, has spared no pains to uncover every fact that might have a possible bearing on the old town's appearance. The committee is made up of six men—Harry H. Cleveland, director of the State Department of Public Works and Buildings; Paul M. Angle, Secretary of the Illinois State Historical Society; C. Herrick Hammond, State supervising architect; Joseph F. Booton, chief draftsman of the State Division of Architecture and Engineering; Dr. C. M. Service, departmental inspector of the Department of Public Works and Buildings, and Thomas P. Reep, author and Lincoln biographer.

THESE men have studied all available records in the courthouses at Springfield and Petersburg, county seat of Menard County. They have searched through all Lincoln biographies and other books bearing on his connection with New Salem. They have interviewed old residents of the county and carried on extensive exploration on the village site itself. Under the direction of Charles Olsen, 80-year-old resident of the community, who remembers how the remains of the town looked when he was a boy, they have excavated old foundations and probed in the soil around about for remains of timbers which might indicate lean-tos and additions or outside cellars. Through these measures the investigators have been able to determine many facts about the size and shape of houses which the stone foundations alone did not supply.

As the facts are obtained they are set down in permanent booklet form so that each step taken in the restoration scheme will be backed up by the reasons for taking it. For example, here is a paragraph from data on the Berry & Lincoln store drawn from Thomas P. Reep's "Lincoln at New Salem." It read:

"The Berry & Lincoln store, north of Main street, was a one-story frame building consisting of two rooms, a large room in front with a small room adjoining on the north. Part of the original stone foundation, particularly the four corners and the PARIS.

FEODOR CHALIAPIN, considered the greatest actor on the operatic stage, Maurice Ravel, the most celebrated French composer alive today, George Robey, England's most famous comedian, and G. W. Pabst, the German-born French producer and director, have collaborated in a talking picture production of "Don Quixote," the most widely printed fictional work in the world, and the result will shortly be released both in French and English versions.

It is Europe's latest challenge to what is considered over here to be the unrelieved inanity of most American films. The belief that the talking pictures are capable of serving as a medium for the most monumental sort of art is generally held by leading European artists, who feel that all that is needed is a great enough theme and a sufficiently wise direction. The theme in the case of "Don Quixote" is indisputable in its greatness, and the critics who have been allowed to see some of the shots taken during the production, believe that Chaliapin's screen performance may not only make a tremendous impression, but will reawaken a slumbering interest in the vast possibilities that the screen holds for the mimetic artist.

But though Chaliapin's appearance in the role of the crack-brained knight is awaited with tremendous interest, the public is being warned against expecting the style of performance that Chaliapin has made familiar to the opera-going public in works such as "Boris Goudonoff," "Don Carlos" and others.

On the stage Chaliapin works in the grand manner, with bold and forceful gesture and rapid action. On the screen, where all of the features are expanded anywhere from twice to ten times their natural size, facial expressions and movements of the hands have to be much more restrained and movements have to be much slower when they are being used to enforce the meaning of spoken lines. This meant a considerable alteration in Chaliapin's fiery attack, but those who watched the film being made on the French Riviera say that he was always able to work out a dramatic equivalent in screen terms for some of his more striking histrionic attitudes.

Chaliapin never thought that filming would be such a tiresome job. He was unused to working at such unusual hours, for many of the scenes were made after midnight. It was not easy for him to sing in the open air. He also encountered some difficulty in making the differentiations in style called for by the English and French texts. English and French humor, for instance, had to be interpreted in different ways.

And often these difficulties had to be met in a hurry, for Chaliapin's time was limited. The film had to be finished in time for him to keep other engagements.

The organization of the scenario was entrusted largely to Paul Morand, the French writer, who is almost as celebrated in his field as Chaliapin and Ravel are in theirs. Morand was on the scene all the time, and often when the day's work was terminated—usually late at night or early in the morning—Morand and Pabst would go over what had been done and prepare an outline for the next. Naturally many of the scenes in the Cervantes novel had to be eliminated and the director also had to make certain rearrangements in order that the picture might march progressively toward a climax.

Ravel, the composer, has done two of the most important musical numbers, in both of which Chaliapin participates.

The role of Dulcinea is taken by Mlle. Renee Valliers—who was discovered by Pabst.

She has won the admiration of all her co-workers by her charm and finish.

Mrs. Benjamin Harrison.

Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THAT women usually outlive their husbands is a statement frequently made and apparently authenticated by census figures. The wear and tear of business responsibility and the strenuous activity of political, industrial and scientific pursuits, it is contended, take several years from the man's life, while the wife at home, pursuing her duties of housekeeper, social arbiter and family shepherd, is subject to less strain and, as a consequence, still has a few years left after attending the funeral of her husband.

It is interesting to note how the rule of wife outliving husband applies to Presidents and their wives. On the surface, it would seem to be borne out with rather startling emphasis. Only one former President of the United States survives — Calvin Coolidge, while besides Mrs. Coolidge there are five wives of former Presidents, or rather widows of former Presidents, still alive. They are Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland; Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Closer examination of the facts, however, throws a somewhat different light on the question. Not only were all of these women younger than their husbands, but three of them—Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Wilson—were second wives, the three men having already outlived one wife each before they married second wives. Between the Roosevelts and the Tafts the difference in age was not great. The second Mrs. Roosevelt was only three years younger than T. R. and Mrs. Taft only four years younger than her husband. But in the other three cases the difference was considerable. Harrison was 25 years the senior of his wife. Cleveland was 27 years older than Mrs. Cleveland and Wilson was 16 years older than the second Mrs. Wilson.

The rule, however, not only says that women usually outlive their husbands, but that their life span is longer.

AND they have better than an even chance of reaching greater ages. Statistics back up this statement, too. The expectation of life for a woman at birth is 57.52 years, while for a man it is 55.33 years. Expectation of life changes for both after they reach the age of 40. At 40 a woman may expect to reach the age of 69 and a man may count on living past his sixty-sixth birthday. Two of the women mentioned—Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Harrison—already have passed more milestones than did their husbands. Benjamin Harrison died in 1901 at the age of 68. Mrs. Harrison is still living at 74. Theodore Roosevelt died at 61 in 1919. Mrs. Roosevelt is already 71. Mrs. Taft, now 71, bids fair to reach a greater age than did her husband, who died two years ago at 73, and Mrs. Preston and Mrs. Wilson are, to use a life insurance expression, "good risks" to attain greater ages than did Cleveland and Wilson.

Mrs. Preston, now 68, is still three years short of the age at which her first husband, Grover Cleveland, died in 1908. He was 49 and President of the United States and she was 22, just graduated from college, when they were married in the White House in 1886.

Mrs. Cleveland was the youngest First Lady the country ever had, but opinion generally conceded that she filled the position with tact and grace. After the expiration of President Cleveland's second term in 1896 the couple moved to Princeton, New Jersey, with their four children. Cleveland died there in 1908. In 1913 his widow married Thomas J. Preston Jr., professor of archeology in Wells College. Since then the Prestons have made their home in Princeton.

BENJAMIN HARRISON was 63 and had already completed his term as President when he married Mrs. Mary Scott Dimmick, a niece of his first wife, in 1896. She was just 28. Harrison's first wife had died in the White House in 1892, the fourth year of her husband's administration. Harrison and his second wife had one daughter, Elizabeth, now the wife of James Blaine Walker Jr., New York attorney. The Harrisons made their home in Indianapolis, where the former President died 31 years ago. His widow has continued to reside in the Indiana capital.

The second Mrs. Wilson was a widow 43 years old when she became the bride of the war time President in December, 1915. Wilson was then 59. He was 68 when he died in 1924, but Mrs. Wilson is still eight years short of that mark. Since her husband's death she has made her home in Washington.

She is active in charitable work and keeps in close touch with the affairs of the Democratic party.

The evidence seems to indicate that the rule of wife surviving husband applies to other famous men besides Presidents. At any rate, it will be found easier to compile a list of widows of famous men than a list of famous men who have outlived their wives. There are Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Nicolai Lenin, Mrs. Champ Clark, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Queen Marie of Rumania, to name but a few. Most of these have survived their husbands by several years.

NEW YORK.

BUDA GODDMAN, once the clever and glamourous "come-on" lady for a famous Chicago-New York blackmail ring, and a bright light in the world of organized gyp when the easy-money period was at its height, has taken the count at the hands of a Police Department underling and a sleazy trick of fate and gone to Auburn Penitentiary for a four to eight year sentence.

Attractive at 44, and ready as ever with a neatly turned remark, the lady who simply had to have plenty of money and wasn't so particular about where it came from, calmly inspected her soft, tapered fingers as General Sessions Judge Joseph E. Corrigan emitted a judicial "tchk! tchk!" as he sentenced her for receiving goods stolen in what he called "one of the most daring and shocking crimes committed in this city in a long time."

Judges, of course, are in the habit of making such remarks, and Buda Goddman must have had some such reflections as she heard Judge Corrigan tolling off her sentence. For, working with her biggest love, "Dapper Don" Collins, the brains of a blackmail gang, Buda Goddman, in the role of Alice Williams, an innocent young girl, back in 1916 had helped perpetrate a job requiring real enterprise and gall, one of many of its kind.

The crime involved the old "white slave" racket (although the word racket still meant a tennis instrument then), and a much scared gentleman who thought he had lured demure Alice Williams into his quarters in a New York hotel. The gentleman, who was from Chicago and should have been smarter, had hardly turned the key in the lock and sneaked to the window to throw it out, when there was a knock at the door.

Federal officers they were, no less. Ominously, they hustled the Chicagoan and the girl into a machine and drove to the train. The Chicagoan soon learned that he was Chicago bound, to face charges in Federal court as a "white slave" offender. A day later, after keeping him secretly under arrest, the Federal men told him that if he pleaded guilty he would get off with a $15,000 fine, and he might as well pay it to them and get out of town before the news got around. He did, and "Dapper Don" Collins and his fellows had a good laugh as they unrolled their fake badges and dressed for an evening in a cabaret. Buda Goddman, the sweet Alice of the story, went with Collins. Although Buda did some extensive slithering from gentleman to gentleman thereafter and indorsed checks of men with fatter bank accounts, she always had a soft spot in her heart for "Dapper Don," and usually, after he left her apartment, had soft spots and black and blue spots elsewhere. Don Collins was no sissy. He packed a mean sock.

One of Buda's long-time friends, after she went back to New York, was Charles A. Stoneham, millionaire baseball magnate and sometime owner of the New York Giants. In fact, much of the time intervening between the "white slave" operations and the recent unhappy occurrences, Buda spent as Stoneham's "protege"; that is, up to a couple of years ago, when she began running with a somewhat rougher crowd—she who had once been the friend of big shots like Arnold Rothstein and Bill Fallon, the criminal lawyer.

It was a shame, her friends said, when she fell into the company of Sam Ippolito—a girl like her, who could pick and choose among the big guys. Buda had met Sam at a hospital in Indiana, where she had gone for an operation. Sam, who was known also to the police as Sam Entratta, was in to be cured of a narcotic addiction. They became fast friends and, back in New York, were together a lot. Sam, in between robberies, picked up the opium-smoking habit, and Buda whiffed now and then to keep him company. She was a homey sort that way.

SAM had a couple of friends named Indelicato, Anthony and Joe. They were pals, see? Nobody could say anything against them, see? They were Sam's friends and O K guys. He brought them frequently to the apartment (a cheaper one since Buda had broken with Stoneham), and everything was pretty much to the good. Buda got along with them and they got along with Buda. Sam got along with all three. It was pretty swell, with everybody on the up-and-up with one another and plenty of dough to spend. Buda always had plenty and spread it like a visiting Queen, presents and that kind of thing, you know; real swell stuff, nothing picked up off of a bargain counter. Buda's heart was as big as a barrel, Sam would have you know.

Well, if Mildred Adams hadn't put her nose in last January, everything would have been grand. Mildred had been a girl with Buda back in Chicago. She popped in one day, saying she knew Sam, and put a bug in Buda's ear. So when Sam buzzed around to call again, he was asked what about it, and finally busted down and admitted that Mildred had the right angle, all right.

"It" was the Glemby jewel robbery of a week before. It wasn't quite as daring as Judge Corrigan had said, but it was a pretty neat bit of work, and it had netted jewelry worth a little better than $300,000. Sam confessed with some show of pride that he and a few of the boys had turned it, and shamefacedly handed over the bangles to Buda. He hadn't wanted to worry her over it, he explained; that's why he had kept it under his hat, see? Buda saw, and convinced him that she was the only one clever enough to dispose of the rocks. It was a pretty ticklish job, and one for a woman's touch.

She asked for details of the robbery. Simple, said Sam. A party of three, led by him, walked up to the Glemby apartment on the third floor of an old residence off Park avenue. There was a triple strength police guard around the neighborhood that morning, because a few days before jewels had been taken from the William A. Rockefeller home and from the exhibit of a London jewelry firm in Peacock alley at the Waldorf-Astoria. To get past the trio posed, ironically enough, as bootleggers. Sam carried a sack of gin bottles filled with water. The maid opened the Glemby door and Sam handed her the sack.

"A little stuff for Mr. Glemby," he explained.

As she was shutting the door, Sam said wait, maybe he had better look and see if there were any broken bottles. If so, the boss would want to replace them with the same quality merchandise, as they did only a strictly first-class business. With a scared glance at the other two, the maid tried to slam the door, so Sam and his companions abandoned all pretense and shoved their way with revolvers drawn and ready.

To the butler, who offered a word of remonstrance, one of the invaders handed a tap on the skull, which put him out of the running. The maid cowered in a corner.

Harold C. Glemby and his wife were both at home, he in the bathroom, under the shower, and she in her own room, behind closed doors, chatting by telephone with a friend. Glemby heard the butler hit the floor and rushed out of the bath with a towel around his middle and the rest of his ample frame covered not even by one of the hair nets upon which his fortune is built. He was trussed up with picture wire and laid considerately upon a tiger rug.

The governess happening along at that time, Glemby directed her to open the safe in the closet, of which she had the combination. Two of the robbers stuffed their pockets with the jewels. Sam wandered around the place until he blundered into Mrs. Glemby's room, and was that a panic? Mrs. Glemby let out a yell, let the receiver drop and pulled her kimono closely about her. Her friend on the other end of the wire, one of those smart bridge players, immediately perceived that something was wrong. Mrs. Glemby had never yelled like that over the phone. So she called up another friend and asked what she should do. The other friend thought maybe the police ought to be notified. Meanwhile, Sam had rushed to the living room and told the boys to cheese it. They cheesed in a hurry and the police got there a half-minute late, thanks to the quick thinking of Mrs. Glemby's telephone friend. It was a big job, all right, Sam told Buda. Look, the evening papers had it in that Police Commissioner Mulrooney and all the biggies were there.

Pretty nice, Buda told Sam, as she took the loot in charge. She and her closest girl friend, Ruby (last name withheld by police), would get rid of the stuff on somebody. Sam said the boys thought they ought to get $40,000. Buda said all right, let them think that; she would get $50,000, give Ruby $5000 of the extra price and Sam the other $5000 to set himself up in some sort of business. The other boys needn't know and, anyway, they only asked 40 grand, so nobody was cheated, and Sam would have his share of the 40 and five extra for himself. When Sam told his companions in the job of turning the stuff over to the girls, they thought it was O K, and so it was. They were clever girls.

It wasn't long before the girls spotted the right guy, a rich spender from Seattle named Abraham Rothstein. He was a jeweler, in New York for a big time. He was a kind of patsy and would probably go for some hot rocks.

THE girls strung along with Rothstein. It was night clubs and shows every night, and the very best liquor and food wherever they went. At the end of a month, they wanted to do something really nice for Mr. Rothstein. They offered him $300,000 worth of merchandise for $50,000. It was a knockdown. Maybe there was something shady about it, but he could get rid of it on the west coast easily and make a nice piece of change for himself. Rothstein balked. He had wanted a good time, had had it and was in a hurry to get back to his family. Nix, no business on this trip. They persisted and cajoled. He finally gave in and said he would take a look at the stuff.

The two women, each carrying a brown paper bag, met him in a taxicab outside his hotel. They drove uptown, bound for a speakeasy the girls knew. Half way there, they were stopped by a motor cycle cop, and before they had time to make up a little speech about the taxi chauffeur being green and not knowing a red light from a green one, police cars had surrounded the cab. The police found that one bag contained almost all of the Glemby jewels. The other, which the girls had apparently intended to substitute at the proper moment, was full of pieces of crockery and other worthless odds and ends.

The whole crowd went to headquarters. Inside two hours, police had also rounded up Sam Ippolito and the two Indelicato boys. All were released on bond, pending arraignment, and a few days later it came out in the papers that Abraham Rothstein was really Abraham Gralla, a statistician at police headquarters, who had been pressed into service as a detective. Mr. Gralla, not even a patrolman, spends his days ordinarily listing the number of people killed by automobiles and robbers, and counting, for the annual report, the almost numberless things metropolitan police have to count.

Sam Ippolito, in Buda's apartment almost daily, brooded and sniffed a white powder. He wasn't himself. Buda told him to snap out of it. All they needed was a good lawyer like Bill Fallon. Sam's comeback was that Fallon was dead a long time.

Then the papers came out with something else. Mildred Adams, who had tipped off Buda to the fact that the Glemby robbery had been pulled behind her back, turned out to be an operative for an insurance company.

THIS was the sleazy trick of fate involved in Buda's downfall. It was related in the papers that when the police, by posing as bellboys, grocery boys and what not, had decided who had the loot, they got together with the insurance company which had written the policy on the Glemby diamonds. Noel Scaffa, the insurance detective par excellence, a great specialist in recovering stolen property, took part in the conference. It was discovered that Mildred Adams knew Buda from years back. Miss Adams (not her real name) was sent to put the bug in Buda's ear, and then Gralla was inserted into the case as the erring jeweler from the west coast. It worked like a charm.

Buda was out buying groceries when Sam, sitting in her apartment, read about all this. He jumped as if someone had shot a gun. It descended upon him like a thunderbolt that it was he who, after meeting Mildred Adams casually, had re-introduced her to Buda. What a sap! What a sap! Well, that was the end of it for him. Faced with prison once more (he had served several terms), his pride as a smart guy leveled, Sam went into the bedroom and looked into Buda's mirror. A sap, if there ever was one, was the humiliating thought that ran through his brain. He picked up his revolver and looked at it curiously, then put it down. Pulling a folded paper from his pocket, he tossed his head back and emptied white powder into his mouth. He reached once more for the gun and put it to his temple.

He had been lying with a bullet in his brain about an hour when Buda returned. Sam died a few hours later.

Buda decided to plead guilty, and got her four-to-eight-year sentence for receiving stolen goods. Joe Indelicato also took a plea and was given 10 to 20 years in Sing Sing for robbery

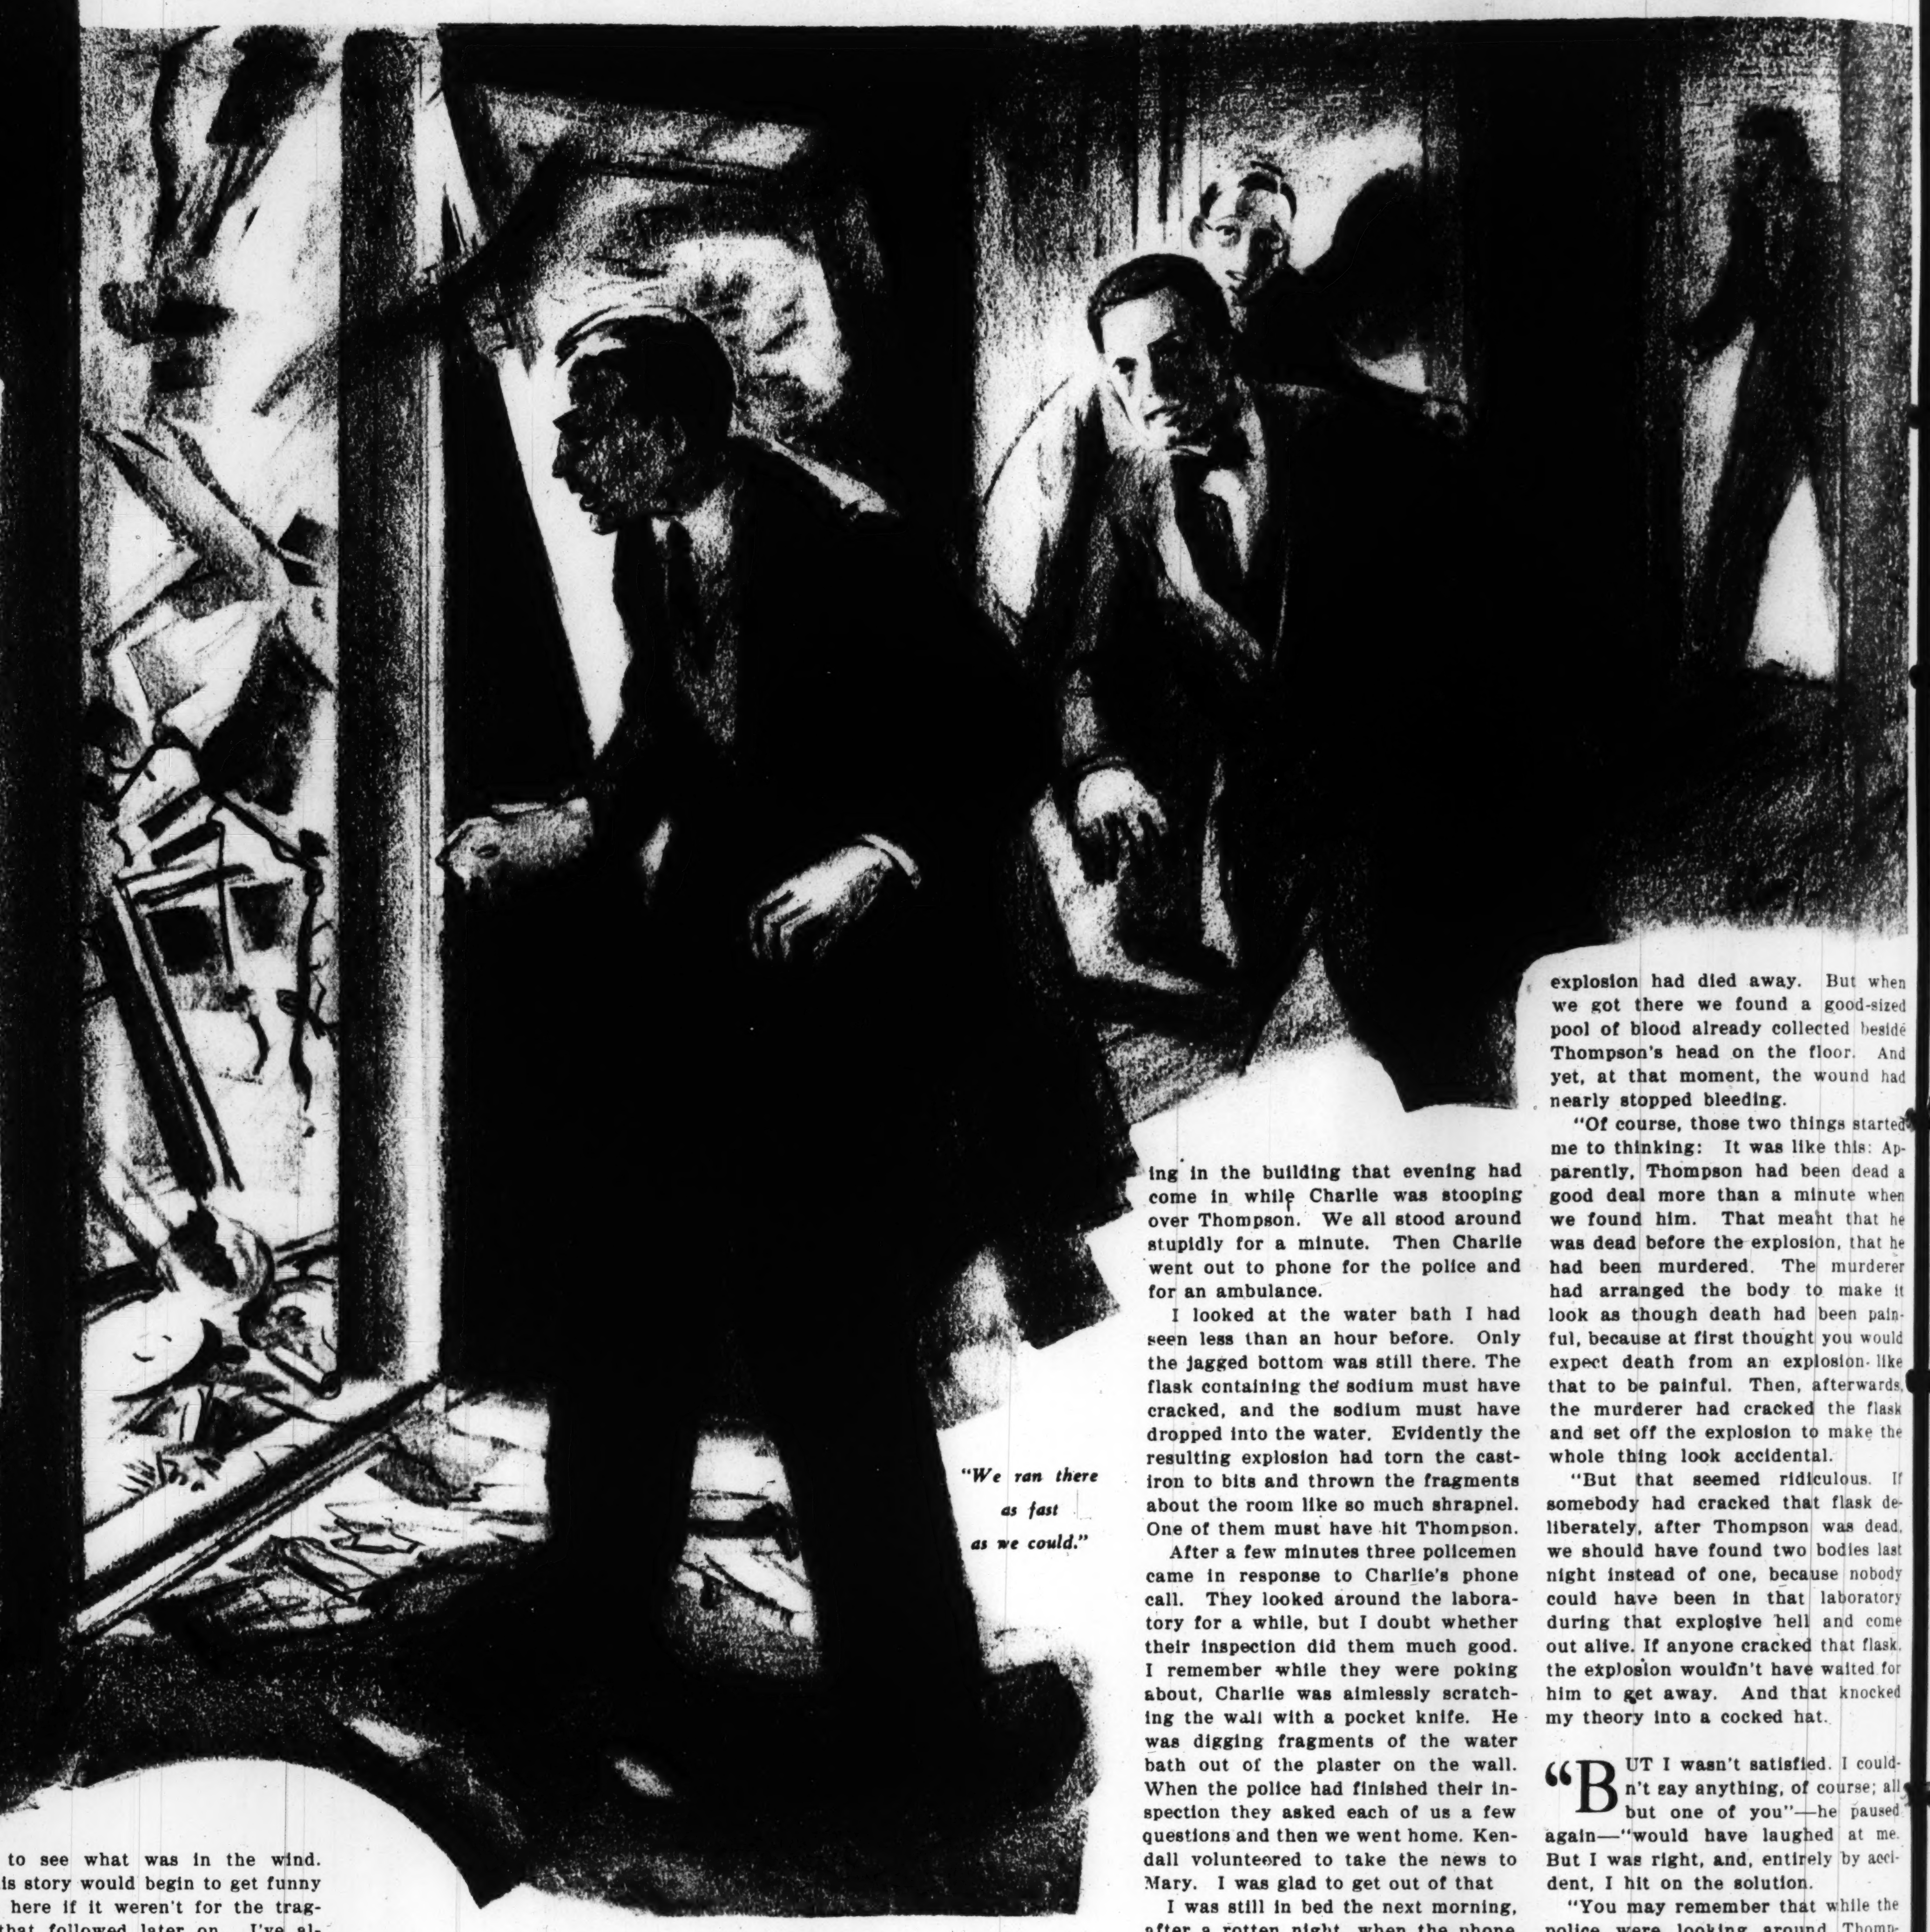
The LABORATORY MURDER



"We ran there as fast as we could."

By
EDGAR H. BOHLE

ESSENTIALLY, I suppose, this is a detective story. If you fellows are going to consider it a detective story I'll have to begin with an apology. The apology is for the detective. This story hasn't got a regular story-book detective—long, lean, ascetic, hook-nosed, supercilious, eccentric. I'm sorry; I'd like to make Charlie Kamp just that kind of detective, but I can't. He wasn't like that at all. First of all, Charlie would fall down as a regular story detective because of his name. Every detective story I've ever seen had a detective with some slinky sounding name, but there isn't anything mysterious about the name Charlie. A man that people call Charlie is usually a regular fellow, and that's what Charlie was: hail-fellow, well-met, chunky, fat-faced and amiable. He was professor of organic chemistry at the university, and he knew about all one man can know about organic chemistry, but he didn't pretend to know anything about ancient civilizations in Egypt or the mathematics of the quantum theory or astronomy, and he would have laughed at anybody who accused him of using cocaine. He'd have been as surprised as anybody else if you'd told him 19 years ago, when he first came to teach on our campus, that he was going to be the central figure in the unraveling of a mystery. Funny things happen, though.

The events that finally culminated in this Thompson mess began a couple of years ago, when Baxter and Kendall came to the university. Old man Ross—the big shoe manufacturer up in Chicago, you remember—died just about that time, and he had an idea that scientific research was exactly the thing to cure the world's troubles, so he left the university a nice, fat fund to endow a research fellowship in organic chemistry. We had that job open—a nice, comfortable job, too—$2500 for nine months a year, with no teaching to bother about, only research—and we got this chap Baxter for it. He'd just got a nice, new, shiny Ph. D., working under Adams on the stereochemistry of some diphenyl derivatives. Kendall came to take an instructorship in the freshman laboratory.

WELL, those two men came from the same school at the same time, but it would be hard to find two people more temperamentally unlike. Baxter was a typical research man, right out of a novel, diffident, shy and brilliant. He had no interests in life outside his organic chemistry. Never went out, never danced, never read a book unless it was a book on organic chemistry. Nervous and bashful as the devil, too; he began to fidget and blush if you just looked at him. But Kendall was quite the opposite sort. He came from a wealthy family to start with, and he had all the social graces. He was a charming talker on almost any conceivable subject. He was polished and urbane and affable. Drank like a fish, but never got drunk. He came down to town a total stranger, but by the end of three months he was moving in the best circles; he knew all the debs and socialites by their first names and went to all their parties. He knew how to circulate.

We had a girl in the organic division that year teaching the laboratory end of the course they give the sophomore pre-medics. Her name was Mary Wells, and she was a peach. She had both looks and intelligence. Being in the organic division, she saw quite a lot of Baxter. Now, he didn't make any better impression on her than he did on anybody else. Whenever he saw her looking at him he'd start knocking flasks to the floor just out of pure nervous awkwardness. But Mary seemed to like him. She was a sympathetic girl and I suppose she could see what a social inferiority complex he had. Anyhow, she began to date him occasionally, and by the end of the semester the socially impossible Baxter was taking her to all the shows that came along. It was easy to see what was in the wind.

This story would begin to get funny right here if it weren't for the tragedy that followed later on. I've already told you how well Kendall got about socially. Well, with all the debutantes in the city to choose from, Kendall himself fell for Mary. Of course, he was too sophisticated to show it the way Baxter did. When Mary was around, Baxter's eyes would follow her movements with a sort of dog-like adoration shining in them; Kendall didn't show anything like that, but he didn't fool us.

You had all the ingredients of a good triangle right there. The wives of all the professors on the faculty began to gossip about the affair. You know, who'd get the lady, Baxter or Kendall? Things went along like that all through the second semester, and we looked for developments along about the beginning of the next year. We got them. Mary suddenly married Douglas Thompson.

God only knows why. Thompson was head of the organic division, a surly, morose, lame chap, twice Mary's age, and what a girl like Mary could see in him nobody could understand. The marriage was a shock to everybody. Nobody'd been expecting anything like that. It was just one of those things that happens without any apparent reason. Anyhow, Mary Wells, or rather Mary Thompson, just dropped out of our lives. She resigned her job on the faculty and went to live with Thompson in a great, big, gloomy, old house some distance from the campus.

That marriage turned out worse than you had any right to expect. Mary's life with Thompson must have been just one continuous hell. I can't give you many details, because we didn't see her very much. Out of rotten-tempered jealousy, Thompson kept her shut up at home most of the time, but we could see in a general way how things were going. I remember how Thompson acted at the president's annual reception the December after the marriage. He and Mary came rather early, and they were standing by themselves talking when Thompson was called away for a few minutes to attend to something or other. Baxter and Kendall came in while he was gone, and, seeing Mary standing in a corner alone, naturally went over to talk to her. They were still talking when Thompson came back. I thought the man was going to have an apoplectic stroke right there. His face went purple and his eyes bulged. Stiffly, he stalked over to Mary and, without a word to anybody, grabbed her arm and rushed her away, right in the middle of a sentence. They must have gone home, early as it was, because I didn't see them again that evening. That was only one of a whole series of little things of the same sort.

As you'd imagine, both Baxter and Kendall were pretty well cut up by the way things had gone. To lose Mary seemed bad enough, I suppose, but to see the life she led with Thompson must have gotten to them. Baxter took to working like a galley slave; he was in his laboratory day and night, working away with a set frown. He didn't talk to anybody—just waded into his research and paid no attention to anything or anyone.

KENDALL didn't show his disappointment very markedly. He was too suave for that. But he contracted a new hobby: shooting. He was always out on the range in the fieldhouse, peppering away at the target with an army automatic. Peculiar how an activity like that will take a man's mind off things, isn't it?

The climax came during the Christmas holidays. It was two nights after Christmas—a nasty night, with an icy wind whipping across the campus. I went over to the building about 7 o'clock. It was locked up and I nearly froze my fingers fumbling with my key at the door. When I got in, the first open laboratory I passed was Thompson's, and I dropped in to warm my fingers over the radiator. I made a few perfunctory attempts at conversation, but he was as gruff as usual.

He was heating a flask full of an amber liquid on a water bath. That's nothing but a cast-iron kettle full of water, with a Bunsen burner underneath; the water boils, and the steam heats the flask that sits up on top of it. I pointed to the flask. "Important reaction?" I asked him.

"Wurtz-Fittig," he grunted.

Maybe that won't mean much to you fellows. Anyhow, it's a reaction where you heat hydrocarbon derivatives with sodium. They have to be kept from water because if sodium comes in contact with water you have a violent explosion. There seemed to be a good-sized hunk of sodium in the flask he had on the water bath.

"Well, let's hope your flask doesn't break," I laughed. "If that sodium got out and hit that boiling water down below it"—— I shrugged.

"It won't," he said. "It's a good flask. No cracks in it."

I walked on down the corridor to my own laboratory. Charlie Kamp had just dropped in for a few minutes' chat when it happened. There was a sharp report that became a reverberating roar that seemed to rock the building. We rushed out into the corridor. The door of Thompson's laboratory was hanging crazily by one hinge, with the glass all shattered. We ran down there as fast as we could. Inside, the laboratory was a wreck, with the windows blown out, sashes and all, and apparatus strewn about in broken confusion. Thompson was lying in a corner, his body contorted, and a gash in his forehead and a pool of blood beside him on the floor. Charlie ran his hand beneath the lapel of the brown laboratory jacket. "He's dead," he said.

Baxter and Kendall and one or two graduate students who had been working in the building that evening had come in while Charlie was stooping over Thompson. We all stood around stupidly for a minute. Then Charlie went out to phone for the police and for an ambulance.

I looked at the water bath I had seen less than an hour before. Only the jagged bottom was still there. The flask containing the sodium must have cracked, and the sodium must have dropped into the water. Evidently the resulting explosion had torn the cast-iron to bits and thrown the fragments about the room like so much shrapnel. One of them must have hit Thompson.

After a few minutes three policemen came in response to Charlie's phone call. They looked around the laboratory for a while, but I doubt whether their inspection did them much good. I remember while they were poking about, Charlie was aimlessly scratching the wall with a pocket knife. He was digging fragments of the water bath out of the plaster on the wall. When the police had finished their inspection they asked each of us a few questions and then we went home. Kendall volunteered to take the news to Mary. I was glad to get out of that I was still in bed the next morning, after a rotten night, when the phone rang. It was Charlie; he wanted to talk over a few things about the explosion, and would I come over to his office right away? Well, of course, I would. I was there inside of half an hour.

When I got there I was a little surprised. Not only Charlie was there, but McReynolds, the head of the chemistry department, and Baxter and Kendall as well. They were all sitting more or less on the edges of their chairs; the tension was quite apparent. I sat down on a stool by the reagent shelf, and Charlie cleared his throat and began to talk, rather more quietly than usual.

"FELLOWS," he said, "we'll make this brief. Last night Douglas Thompson was killed. He was heating, among other things, a chunk of sodium in a flask on a water bath. The flask broke and the sodium dropped into the water bath. The resulting explosion tore the flask to pieces and sent particles flying like bullets. Presumably one of them hit Thompson and killed him."

He paused and looked at us. Nobody moved. You could have heard a pin drop. He went on talking.

"Now, actually, that isn't what happened at all, and one of you four men here knows it. I mean to say, Douglas Thompson was killed last night—but not as a result of that explosion. I'll tell you how I know that.

"Thompson was lying in a contorted position when we found him last night. One leg was doubled away back beneath the body, and the hands were clenched. But the wound in his head was nasty and deep. If that wound was inflicted by a fragment of the water bath, Thompson was dead before he hit the floor. He would have fallen sprawled out and he would have stayed that way. His body wouldn't have been in that peculiar contorted position.

"Another thing: when we heard that explosion last night all of us ran like rabbits to Thompson's laboratory. At the longest, we were in there not more than a minute after the sound of the explosion had died away. But when we got there we found a good-sized pool of blood already collected beside Thompson's head on the floor. And yet, at that moment, the wound had nearly stopped bleeding.

"Of course, those two things started me to thinking: It was like this: Apparently, Thompson had been dead a good deal more than a minute when we found him. That meant that he was dead before the explosion, that he had been murdered. The murderer had arranged the body to make it look as though death had been painful, because at first thought you would expect death from an explosion like that to be painful. Then, afterwards, the murderer had cracked the flask and set off the explosion to make the whole thing look accidental.

"But that seemed ridiculous. If somebody had cracked that flask deliberately, after Thompson was dead, we should have found two bodies last night instead of one, because nobody could have been in that laboratory during that explosive hell and come out alive. If anyone cracked that flask, the explosion wouldn't have waited for him to get away. And that knocked my theory into a cocked hat.

"BUT I wasn't satisfied. I couldn't say anything, of course; all but one of you"—he paused again—"would have laughed at me. But I was right, and, entirely by accident, I hit on the solution.

"You may remember that while the police were looking around Thompson's laboratory I was digging fragments of the water bath out of the plaster wall with my knife. It was the wall opposite the door. One of the fragments was lead."

A sharp, involuntary sigh escaped Kendall, but Charlie rushed on. "Do you all understand what that means? Somebody killed Thompson last night and arranged the body as we found it. Then he went outside the laboratory into the corridor, crouched down behind the heavy wooden panel of the door, and he broke that flask on the water bath by shooting at it with a revolver. The explosion swallowed up the sound of the shot. But he should have remembered that bullets aren't cast-iron; they're lead."

There was a leap and, before anyone could interfere, a hand had snatched a bottle from the re-agent shelf beside me. It was Baxter. He put the bottle to his mouth and drained it. Then he crumpled up. The bottle fell and broke. The label read: "Potassium Cyanide."

Charlie stood over the prostrate body. "Get up, Baxter," he said. "You're not dead. That wasn't potassium cyanide; that was distilled water."

Baxter broke down and confessed after that. And we turned him over to the police.

It was the next day before I saw Charlie alone. We talked for a little, and finally I said: "Charlie, did you know all along that Baxter had killed Thompson?"

"No," he said, "I didn't. I was bluffing. Of course, I was pretty sure it was Kendall, since the murderer used a pistol. Anyhow, I figured nobody could sit calmly through my little talk with that mess on his conscience and not give himself away. I wasn't sure he'd try suicide, but I sort of figured he might. That's why I threw out all the cyanides in the office and filled up the bottles with pure water. It's funny, but the first poison a chemist thinks of is cyanide."

"Yes," I said, "it's funny."

Said He'd Wait 10 Years to Marry Her—and He Did

The Pianist's Father Promised Her $100,000 If She Didn't Marry Until She Was 30, But When the Time Had Elapsed She Accepted the St. Louis Symphony's Former Concertmaster Who Had Wooed Her for a Decade.

Michel Gusikoff.

Bohumir Kryl.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

A MUSICAL romance which had its inception here 10 years ago reached its climax the other day with the marriage in New York of the beautiful Marie Kryl, concert pianist, and Michel Gusikoff, violinist-composer, and formerly concertmaster of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. For many years Miss Kryl's attitude toward matrimony has been a subject of interested speculation in musical circles, for she is one of the two daughters of Bohumir Kryl, celebrated bandmaster, who some years ago announced that he would give $100,000 to each of his daughters if they would forego marriage until they reached the age of 30. Both daughters were musicians; Josephine, the older, was a violinist; Marie, then in her 'teens, was showing exceptional promise as a pianist. The money was offered not because the father objected to matrimony, but because he was afraid an early marriage might interfere with what promised to be two interesting careers. By the time they reached 30, he declared, they would in all likelihood be definitely on their way in the realm of music, and the settling down process that usually accompanies marriage wouldn't be likely at that time to interfere with their music.

These exacting conditions had hardly been imposed on the two girls by the ambitious father when Josephine, the violinist, shrugged her shoulders at the promised fortune and, only three years after her father's offer had been made, gave her hand in marriage to Paul Taylor White, himself a musician and composer.

Since then Marie Kryl's name has been frequently mentioned in connection with numerous suitors, and on more than one occasion rumor had her bound for the altar. On several occasions there was more than mere imagination in the rumor. Conspicuous among these suitors was Michel Gusikoff, the violinist. But Miss Kryl had acquired some of her father's fear that marriage might, indeed, interfere with her development as an artist, and she allowed her thirtieth birthday to pass some months ago without taking the marriage vows.

She had, in fact, gone so far as to express the belief that she would never marry, but three elements combined to bring about a complete change of mind. One of the factors was her father, who said that since she had observed his wishes by devoting herself uninterruptedly to music until she was 30 he had no more to ask of her and would be pleased to see her happily married. The second element was her own realization that marriage, after all, didn't necessarily destroy one's artistic interests. This was illustrated by her own sister, who, after having become the mother of three children, again took up her violin and gave a number of creditable public performances with it. The third factor contributing to her change of mind was the persistence and devotion of the one suitor who would never take "no" for an answer, the suitor who first met her here 10 years ago, fell in love with her and never recovered.

LOVE at first sight is not an unusual phenomenon, but with Michel Gusikoff it was a case of falling in love with Marie Kryl even before meeting her. This unusual occurrence took place in St. Louis in 1922, when Gusikoff was concertmaster of the Symphony Orchestra, and Rudolph Ganz, pianist, was the orchestra's conductor.

Gusikoff had called at the Ganz apartment on Clara avenue one afternoon, where they were to practice for a joint performance of the Cesar Franck Sonata for violin and piano. As they were about to begin practicing Gusikoff noticed a newly framed photograph standing on the piano. It was the photograph of a young lady, and it seemed to exercise a sudden fascination for the violinist, for he picked it up and scanned it closely.

"I'd certainly like to. Who is she?"

"Her name's Marie Kryl," Mr. Ganz went on to tell him. "She's going to be soloist with the orchestra in a few weeks. She's a fine musician."

Gusikoff continued to admire the photograph.

"If she plays as beautifully as she looks," he mused.

"Come," exclaimed the older man. "Are you going to hold that picture in your hand all day, or are we going to get some work done?"

With a soulful sigh, Gusikoff put down the photograph and took up his violin.

"I think I am going to play well today," he said, indicating the photograph. "That will be my inspiration."

Mr. Ganz recalls the incident today with some amusement. "There happened to be no music stand in the apartment at the moment, and I suggested to Michel that he let his music rest against the photograph on the piano.

"But no, he wouldn't think of that. 'I want that picture where I can see it,' he said. And so we had to get some books and arrange them on the piano for his music to rest against."

Another portrait of Mrs. Gusikoff.

It was a few weeks later that Miss Kryl appeared in St. Louis as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra and played the F-Minor Chopin Concerto for piano and orchestra. Mr. Ganz conducted the orchestra, and just a few feet from the piano on which she was playing sat Michel Gusikoff, the concertmaster, who, completely unsuspected by Miss Kryl, was comparing the photograph he had seen at Mr. Ganz's apartment with the original at the piano. The comparison favored the original, for the photograph had only vaguely suggested the reality of the mass of golden hair with which the 20-year-old girl was crowned.

Gusikoff, of course, was introduced to Miss Kryl, and this personal meeting completed the devastation the photograph had already begun. An ardent young musician, himself just turned 27, Gusikoff immediately began to pay court to the young pianist. However, Miss Kryl's father, Bohumir Kryl, had accompanied his daughter to St. Louis to attend her performances with the orchestra. At first he was quite pleased at the concertmaster's interest in his daughter, and took for granted that it was inspired solely by admiration for her musicianship. But there was a certain exaltation in Mr. Gusikoff's face as he stood by the piano when Miss Kryl was playing at the home where they were stopping, and this caused Mr. Kryl to suspect that the concertmaster very probably wasn't even listening to the notes the young lady was producing. After that, Mr. Kryl somehow happened always to be present when Mr. Gusikoff called.

A few days later Mr. Ganz observed that his concertmaster was looking noticeably depressed. He inquired the reason, and Gusikoff explained. He was madly in love with Miss Kryl, he confessed, but he could never be alone with her long enough to inform her of the fact with proper eloquence.

"I want to propose to her," Gusikoff admitted to the astonished Mr. Ganz, "but I never have a chance to. It's driving me mad."

It then developed that Gusikoff had not yet learned of Mr. Kryl's disapproval of marriage for his daughter before she reached 30, or of the fortune he had promised her if she observed his wish. Mr. Ganz told Gusikoff the story in detail.

"It's out of the question," he explained to the violinist. "Not only has she promised her father, but she feels the same way about it that he does. She loves music too much to sacrifice her career by settling down into family life. You'd better give up the idea."

"No, I won't give up the idea," exclaimed Gusikoff. "I'll speak to her about it. And if she won't take back the promise she gave her father, I'll wait until she is 30!"

Mr. Ganz, considerably older than Gusikoff and wise in the ways of infatuated youth and its extravagant promises, smiled and said no more. But as it turned out, Gusikoff has done exactly as he promised. He waited.

Miss Kryl ultimately changed her mind about marriage necessarily being the graveyard of art. And her father, when informed of his daughter's marriage at the municipal building in New York, said he was well pleased.

WITH Marie, as with her sister, marriage promises to enlarge her sphere of musical activity. Josephine's husband, Paul Taylor White, as composer and assistant conductor of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra, has materially assisted her artistic development. Marie Kryl and her husband likewise plan to work together in music.

Marie Kryl studied under Heniot Levey of Chicago, Rudolph Ganz and Harold Bauer, has concertized widely and appeared with leading symphony orchestras as soloist in this country and abroad. Gusikoff was a child prodigy who completely fulfilled his early promise. At 12 he toured with Mme. Emma Calve. When he came to St. Louis in 1917 to be concertmaster of the orchestra, then under the baton of Max Zach, he was the youngest man in this country to hold such a responsible position with a major orchestra.

After leaving St. Louis he served as concertmaster with the Philadelphia Symphony, resigning from the latter organization to devote himself, to radio solo playing and conducting and to composing. He recently completed his first major composition, American Concerto: A Jazz Fantasie. It is the first work of its kind composed for the violin and orchestra, being a jazz concerto in classical form. Efrem Zimbalist recently played it at his Carnegie Hall recital, where it was widely acclaimed by public and critics. Gusikoff has also played it with Paul Whiteman's orchestra in Carnegie Hall and with the Philadelphia Symphony and the National Symphony of Washington. Critics hail it as the most significant adaptation of jazz elements to classical form since "The Rhapsodie in Blue," and on the strength of it predict a brilliant future for Gusikoff as a composer.

WHAT AMERICA'S BEST KNOWN "EX-WIFE" THINKS of MARRIAGE

Her Recent Divorce Classifies Both of Ursula Parrott's Matrimonial Ventures as Failures, but She Doesn't Regard Divorce as a Tragedy.

What Every Man and Wife Need

6. Ability to have disagreements with ones husband or wife without having a row.

WILTON, Conn.

WHEN Ursula Parrott says she believes in the kind of marriage that will last forever, that no girl has any right to accept a man's proposal unless she loves him truly and has a hunch she'll feel the same way about it on their golden wedding anniversary—when she says this people are surprised.

She used "Ex-Wife" as the title of a novel. It made her famous. But first of all she took the role personally, when she divorced Lindsay Parrott, a newspaper man, in June of 1928. Not long afterward she brought out her first book.

People opened it, hunting for resemblances. They found them. The hero was a 22-year-old newspaper man, earning $45 a week, the heroine a girl of 21 in the same field. Moreover, the two had a son. And a divorce, of course.

The book was a best seller. Ursula Parrott became a well known literary figure. People came to know her as the "Ex-Wife" who knew what she was writing about.

"If I should marry again it will be forever and ever," she announced quite solemnly after that.

But she was wrong.

Charles T. Greenwood, the 41-year-old banker whom she married in October of 1931, couldn't hold her affection. She stepped back into her old role the other day and is once more an ex-wife.

The dark-haired author with the merry blue eyes and the gay young bob thinks there is no reason in the world why marriage shouldn't succeed. And also that there are no grounds for tragedy when it doesn't.

"When a woman's marriage fails she wouldn't be hurt nearly as much if she had been trained to believe that maybe it wouldn't last," Miss Parrott says. "The time is coming when girls will be reared with a professional attitude just as boys are.

"Then, whether a girl is upset or not over a man, she can go on, because of some other compelling interest. It doesn't matter what she does, whether it is baking cakes or singing, as long as she does something.

"Women are too possessive. If they had outside careers or other interests, they might get around this. Then, too, women with interests that aren't entirely centered around their husbands are more interesting to those husbands.

"If a man and girl marry when he is 25 and she is 21, he goes on developing and making a higher place for himself in the world while she often lets her interest dwindle down to the apartment. It is an awful sell for a man to find himself married to a fat woman he never met, who doesn't keep up with him.

"Women should remain on tiptoe. They should understand politics, know why the tax rate was raised. With the modern educational advantages there is no reason for any woman to be a back number.

"If the man you want to marry comes along, marry him and believe that you will do your best to make it last forever. But don't feel that it is a catastrophe if it doesn't.

"The old idea that a woman wasn't successful unless she married is not true. Jane Addams never married, Pearl Buck did. And both reached the heights."

A husband and a wife haven't any business getting hot and bothered about other men and women, she insists.

"A man and woman who are married to each other should control fleeting attractions," she says. "Anyone who wants to go on having fleeting fancies cares more about them than about making his marriage go.

"Two people who are married shouldn't have any outside romances to explain to each other.

"Of course, if a woman meets an interesting man at a country club dance, and lets him take her to lunch the next day, that is all right, as long as it is done openly. But if she secretly meets him for tea at his apartment, then that puts a different construction on it."

"When a woman's marriage fails she wouldn't be hurt nearly as much if she had been trained to believe that maybe it wouldn't last."

Miss Parrott believes that marriages should have children. Whether or not a man or woman go on loving each other won't spoil their pleasure in a child.

Her own interest centers in Lindsay Mark Parrott, the eight-year-old son by her first husband.

"We call him Mark to distinguish him from Lindsay," she says, quite casually mentioning the husband of her youthful romance. "He has Lindsay's brown hair and eyes. He swims and jumps his horse over a four-foot fence. I believe firmly in muscular development and control and I'm seeing that he exercises.

"We spend lots of time together, and we read history together. I want him to like it. And I believe that I have been to every museum in this part of the country where there are dinosaurs.

"He drags me everywhere that he thinks he will find one."

She doesn't want a child prodigy. Since her son already is advanced beyond his age he is being taken out of school this autumn and will spend the winter in France. If he continues to advance too rapidly he will leave the classroom every five years or so for a holiday.

"I won't have an over-developed little prodigy for a son, who is ready for college at 16. He's going to be going on 18 before he is a freshman," his very modern mother insists.

Miss Parrott and Mark and Miss Parrott's sister live in a large, sprawling house here in Wilton. It sits in the middle of an apple orchard, with elm trees in the front yard. Fireplaces take up lots of room.

"Every woman should have a garden, a club, some interest not contingent on her husband," Miss Parrott asserts.

She hasn't a husband any more—but she has the garden. It is a large one which supplies all the vegetables for the house. She not only planted every seed and plant in it but cares for a wild flower garden, too. In addition, she raises chickens and ducks on the farm.

It is domestic stuff. But women are all inherently domestic, this advocate of the new freedom believes.

"I like to cook," she says.

She is happy, but she believes that a married woman is happier than a single woman.

"A married woman has a more secure companionship than a single woman," she explains. "However, I don't believe that a woman should marry anyone who will interfere with her career.

"If an actress plays until midnight every night she won't be contented with a husband who insists on rising at five o'clock every morning to play golf, and goes to bed at nine o'clock every night so he will be able to get up when the alarm goes off.

"A woman and her husband should have some of the same interests. If you like to read and he hates books, it won't work. However, two people can be perfectly happy if a husband enjoys art exhibits and his wife doesn't. Such things aren't important."

Ursula Parrott and her first husband happened to have the same interests. Both were, or had been, in newspaper work. But Charles Greenwood belonged in the financial world.

"Marriage goes on the rocks, often, because each of the two parties demands too much of the other," the ex-wife believes.

There are certain qualities in a wife, and in a husband, which make for success of the matrimonial venture. According to the country's best known literary ex-wife, a woman needs:

A SENSE of humor; the ability to see two sides of a question; patience; comprehension and gratitude; ability to make reasonable compromises; ability to have disagreements with her husband without having a row—in other words, she should be able to be as courteous in dissension with him as she would be with a stranger.

Men, she says, need these qualities and a couple of others.

"Men must have tolerance, and the ability to treat their wives as friends instead of possessions," she says. "I don't believe that there should be a head of the house in a family. It never works. A child will give both parents much pleasure if they remember that he is an individual and should be treated as such.

"There isn't any right age for people to marry. When the man you love comes along, take him. If he doesn't come, life can be successful anyway.

"No girl is self-sufficient. But she should try to be as nearly self-sufficient as she can. The nearer she comes to this the better."

Re-creating the New Salem Scene lower layer of stone on the south side, were found to be intact and show the main building to have been 20 feet square outside."

Besides facts relating to the physical aspects of New Salem, the investigators have endeavored to gather all the information possible concerning its residents, their personalities, habits, interests and their influence on Lincoln as a young man, for the six years he spent in this obscure village were formative years—the period which established the trend of his career toward politics and government. It was during these years that he made his first real progress toward acquiring an education. In New Salem he mastered Samuel Kirkham's grammar, memorizing tedious rules and exercises by the light of the burning shavings. Here he discovered Shakespeare, thanks to Jack Kelso, the village fisherman, and ultimately took up the study of law. Here he first distinguished himself as a debater. His first glimpse of military activity was an incident of his life in New Salem, when he served as Captain of a company of volunteers in the Black Hawk War. In and around New Salem he waged his first political campaign and won his first election. Here he first fell in love, and suffered, with the death of Ann Rutledge, the greatest tragedy of his life. Until the day of his death, memories of New Salem tugged at his heartstrings. He expected to return there after his presidency and make the deserted townsite his home.

NEW SALEM was only two years old, but it was already a rising village with a dozen families—the same number of families Chicago had—when Lincoln had his first look at the place. The Rutledges and Camerons, who had built the dam and grist mill in a bend of the Sangamon, bought land on the bluffs in 1829 and laid out a town, sold lots, put up a log tavern of four rooms and established a postoffice. Farmers came from points 50 miles away to have their grain ground into flour and to buy groceries, hardware and calico prints. The stagecoach brought the mail once a week from Springfield.

In April, 1831, a flatboat laden with pork barrels came down the Sangamon on its way out to the Illinois and Mississippi, New Orleans-bound with its cargo. It got stuck on the mill dam and hung there all day, while the villagers came to look at the disaster. One end of the boat projected over the dam and was rapidly filling with water. Loss of the cargo seemed certain. Then one of the boatmen, a tall lanky youth, with pantaloons stuffed in his rawhide boots, went up in the village and borrowed an augur. By the extraordinary expedient of boring a hole in the bottom of a foundered boat to let the water out, he righted the craft and saved the cargo. The spectators commented on his resourcefulness as the boat went on its way to the Mississippi water course, carrying Denton Offut's cargo of pork to New Orleans. Somebody said the young man's name was Abraham Lincoln and that he was from over about Springfield.

That summer, the river trip completed, the same young man came back to New Salem to live. Denton Offut had decided to open a store in the village, and Abraham Lincoln was his clerk.

Offut's enthusiasm about his new clerk ran so high that he made several statements generally considered extravagant. "He knows more than any man in the United States," Offut is said to have declared. "Some day he will be President. . . . He can outrun, outlift and outwrestle any man in the county."

The Clary's Grove boys, a group of boisterous young bloods, heard about this and decided something ought to be done. The upshot was that Bill Clary, who ran a saloon and grocery a few steps from Offut's store, put up a bet of $10 with Offut that Lincoln couldn't throw Jack Armstrong, the accepted champion of the neighborhood. A level spot next to Offut's store was the scene of the encounter and sports came 50 miles to see the tussle. Lincoln, with his long arms, held off the muscular champion until Armstrong lost his temper and attempted foul tactics. Lincoln then lifted him from the ground, shook him and slammed him on his back. A general fight was threatened, but Armstrong broke it up, shook his opponent's hand and declared: "He's the best feller that ever broke into this settlement."

All homes were open to Lincoln after that. He was adopted. People called on him to settle their disputes and judge their horse races and chicken fights. His nickname of "Honest Abe" was the outgrowth of an incident, celebrated in all the Lincoln story books, that occurred when he was clerking in Offut's store. One of Offut's woman customers overpaid the clerk by 6 cents, and Lincoln walked six miles that night to return the money. Many famous anecdotes of Lincoln's early life revolve about his connection with this log cabin store. It was there he won the wager that he could lift a barrel of whisky and take a drink out of the bunghole. It was there he thrashed the loafer who was careless about his language in the presence of women. It was during times of slack business at the store that he split rails for his employer. During this period of clerkship, also, he laid the foundations for his education by studying mathematics and grammar, laboring over his books at night, when the rest of the village was asleep.

The Berry & Lincoln store represented Lincoln's choice between learning the blacksmith's trade and going into business for himself. This was after the Offut store had failed—Denton Offut drank too much liquor out of his own stock, villagers said—and after Lincoln had come home from the Black Hawk campaign.

LINCOLN'S partner in this venture was William F. Berry, who turned out to be even a poorer business man than Offut. He drank and played poker. Lincoln read Shakespeare and Burns. He would go off fishing with Jack Kelso and sit by the hour listening while this amiable backwoods litterateur read poetry. The store did not prosper. It was locked most of the time. But it was the scene of the occurrence that started Lincoln on his way to the study of law.

A mover came by one day, heading west in a covered wagon, Carl Sandburg relates in his "Abraham Lincoln." He sold Lincoln a barrel, which Lincoln bought merely to be obliging. He paid 50 cents for it. Later, upon emptying rubbish out of the barrel, he found at the bottom Blackstone's "Commentaries on the Laws of England." He had heard lawyers say that students of law should read Blackstone first. Here pure chance had placed it in his hands. He made the most of his opportunity, as subsequent events were to show. In the restoration of New Salem, a barrel will stand in front of the rebuilt Berry & Lincoln store, commemorating this episode.

Ann Rutledge appears to have entered Lincoln's life quite without her own knowledge, soon after his arrival in the village. She was just 18 then, a slim girl, with corn-silk hair, blue eyes and a pink complexion. She was one of the four daughters of James Rutledge, keeper of the tavern, and was generally conceded to be the most beautiful specimen of womanhood in the entire region. Suitors were many and most of them unsuccessful. John McNeil (whose real name was said to be McNamer), partner of Samuel Hill in the town's leading store and considered a "good catch" by the womenfolk, was far in the lead—so far that Lincoln did not consider himself a suitor, or even a prospective one. He contented himself with adoration from a distance.

It was not that he and Ann weren't often together. They were. He spent many evenings with the Rutledge family at the tavern. James Rutledge admired him and predicted a great future for him; liked to have him around. He read and romped with the Rutledge children. He even helped Ann through some of the difficulties of Kirkham's Grammar. But when alone with her, bashfulness overwhelmed him, the biographers relate — bashfulness and the melancholy conviction that such a lovely creature must remain forever beyond his reach.

"After the first evening in which Lincoln sat next to her," Sandburg writes, "and found that the bashful words tumbling from his tongue's end really spelled themselves out into sensible talk, her face, as he went away, kept coming back. So often all else would fade out of his mind and there would be only this riddle of a pink-fair face, a mouth and eyes in a frame of light corn-silk hair. He could ask himself what it meant and search his heart for an answer, and no answer would come. A trembling took his body and dark waves ran through him sometimes when she spoke so simple a thing as 'The corn is getting up high, isn't it?' "

FOUR years had passed and Lincoln, at 26, was already a member of the State Legislature when first he dared to assume the role of suitor. McNeil, or McNamer, to whom Ann was betrothed, had gone back to New York to visit his relatives and, writing but seldom, had delayed his return by one excuse after another, until Ann had written to him that she expected release from her pledge. She was humiliated and hurt, and it was the awkward but kindly Abe Lincoln who brought solace. They walked together in the moonlight, talked of their plans.

Ann was proud of Lincoln. He would go far in the world and she would go with him. She would go to Jacksonville in the fall for a term at the young ladies' academy and he would divide his time between the Legislature and the study of law in Illinois College. Then he would get from under his heavy burden of debt and they would be married.

James Rutledge had sold his tavern to the Onstotts and moved to a farm on Sand Ridge, so the courtship, in its latter days, involved travel. Lincoln rode horseback six or seven miles to the farm when he paid Ann a call. That, however, was no burden. As Carl Sandburg describes it, "He was 26, she was 22; the earth was their footstool; the sky was a sheaf of blue dreams; the rise of the blood-gold rim of a full moon in the evening was almost too much to live, see and remember."

It was the summer of 1835. With luck, they would be married within another year. Then came tragedy. Sandburg writes:

"August of that summer came. Corn and grass, fed by rich rains in May and June, stood up stunted of growth, for want of more rain. The red berries on the honeysuckle refused to be glad. The swallows and martins came fewer.

"To the homes of the settlers came chills and fever of malaria. Lincoln had been down, and up, and down again with aching bones, taking large spoons of Peruvian bark, boneset tea, and calomel. One and another of his friends had died; for some he had helped nail together sthe burial boxes.

"Ann Rutledge lay fever-burned. Days passed; help arrived and was helpless. Moans came from her for the one man of her thoughts. They sent for him. He rode out from New Salem to the Sand Ridge farm. They let him in; they left the two together and alone a last hour in the log house, with slants of light on her face from an open, clapboard door. It was two days later that death came.

"There was what they called a funeral, a decent burial of the body in the Concord burying ground, seven miles away. Lincoln sat for hours with no words for those who asked him to speak to them. They went away from him, knowing he would be alone, whether they stayed or went away.

"A week after the burial of Ann Rutledge, Bill Green found him rambling in the woods along the Sangamon River, mumbling sentences Bill couldn't make out. They watched him and tried to keep him safe among friends at New Salem. And he rambled darkly and idly past their circle to the burying ground seven miles away, where he lay with an arm across the one grave.

" 'Vain man, thy fond pursuits forbear.' As the autumn weeks passed, and the scarlet runners sent out signals across the honey locust and the sycamore trees where they had sat together on the Salem hilltop, and the sunsets flamed earlier in the shortening afternoons, the watchers saw a man struggling on the brink; he needed help.

"DR. ALLEN said rest would help. They took him to the home of Bowling and Nancy Green, at the foot of a bluff climbed by oak-timber growths. A few days he helped in the field at cornhusking; most of the time Nancy had him cutitng wood, picking apples, digging potatoes, doing light chores around the house, once holding the yarn for her as she spun.

"In the evenings it was useless to try to talk with him. They asked their questions and then had to go away. He sat by the fire one night as the flames licked up the cordwood and swept up the chimney, to pass out into a driving storm-wind. The blowing weather woke some sort of lights in him and he went to the door and looked out into a night of fierce, tumbling wind and black horizons. And he came back saying, 'I can't bear to think of her out there alone.' And he clenched his hands, mumbling, 'The rain and storm shan't beat on her grave.'

"Slowly, as the weeks passed, an old-time order of control came back to him—only it was said the shadows of a burning he had been through were fixed in the depths of his eyes, and he was a changed man, keeping to himself the gray mystery of change."

GOTHIC HEAD

THIS Gothic head is the sixty-third in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of the head follows:

Reputed to have come from a private chapel in a chateau in the neighborhood of Lille, this fine Gothic limestone head must once have held an important place in its decorative scheme, since even in the palmy days of the Burgundian rule in the fifteenth century, when this fragment from a more than life-sized figure was probably executed, there could scarcely have been a great congregation of such imposing figures in one chapel. Yet on what grounds its importance was based remains an inscrutable secret. Broken off at the base of the neck, there is no hint of costume or attributes which might help in its identification, while the features further mystify one by their conflicting suggestions of naturalism on the one hand, as if the intention might have been to make it a portrait, and of abstract idealization on the other, as if it were created in the image of some divine being. The perky little nose, pouting mouth and abnormally elongated eyelids, all with a strange tendency to droop slightly on the left side of the face, lend a very definite air of individuality to the head, as if in close imitation of nature, while the hair, which falls rhythmically from a central part in heavily massed curls, is treated not realistically but with studied abstraction as a delightfully ordered linear harmony. This last characteristic, together with the extreme breadth of the forehead, the small chin and the apparent lack of feeling for the bony structure of the face, which was the result of a kind of traditional formula for youthful female and angel types in the North, make one feel inclined to believe that the head was intended to be that of a saint or an angel, in which one may detect a slight and inevitable infiltration from the tumultuous storm of realism which dominated Northern France in the fifteenth century, rather than that it was a portrait, possibly of an amazingly youthful donor, in the manner of the more tempered realism of the "detente."

THE head is in almost perfect condition and still retains much of its original polychrome, which has, however, worn away and faded into a subtle, warm tone, which has perhaps a more delicate beauty today than it may once have had. The light brown of the hair appears to have been overlaid with gold, a fact in accordance with the taste for profuse use of the precious metal even where it did not actually appear in nature. The head is carved out of a completely detached piece of stone, but probably was originally placed in a niche, since the back of the head is left roughly blocked out, with no indication or surface details.

Whatever significance it may have had in the past, one may feel sure that this head is now destined to give pleasure to many observers who may pause to look at and to feel its subtle charm.

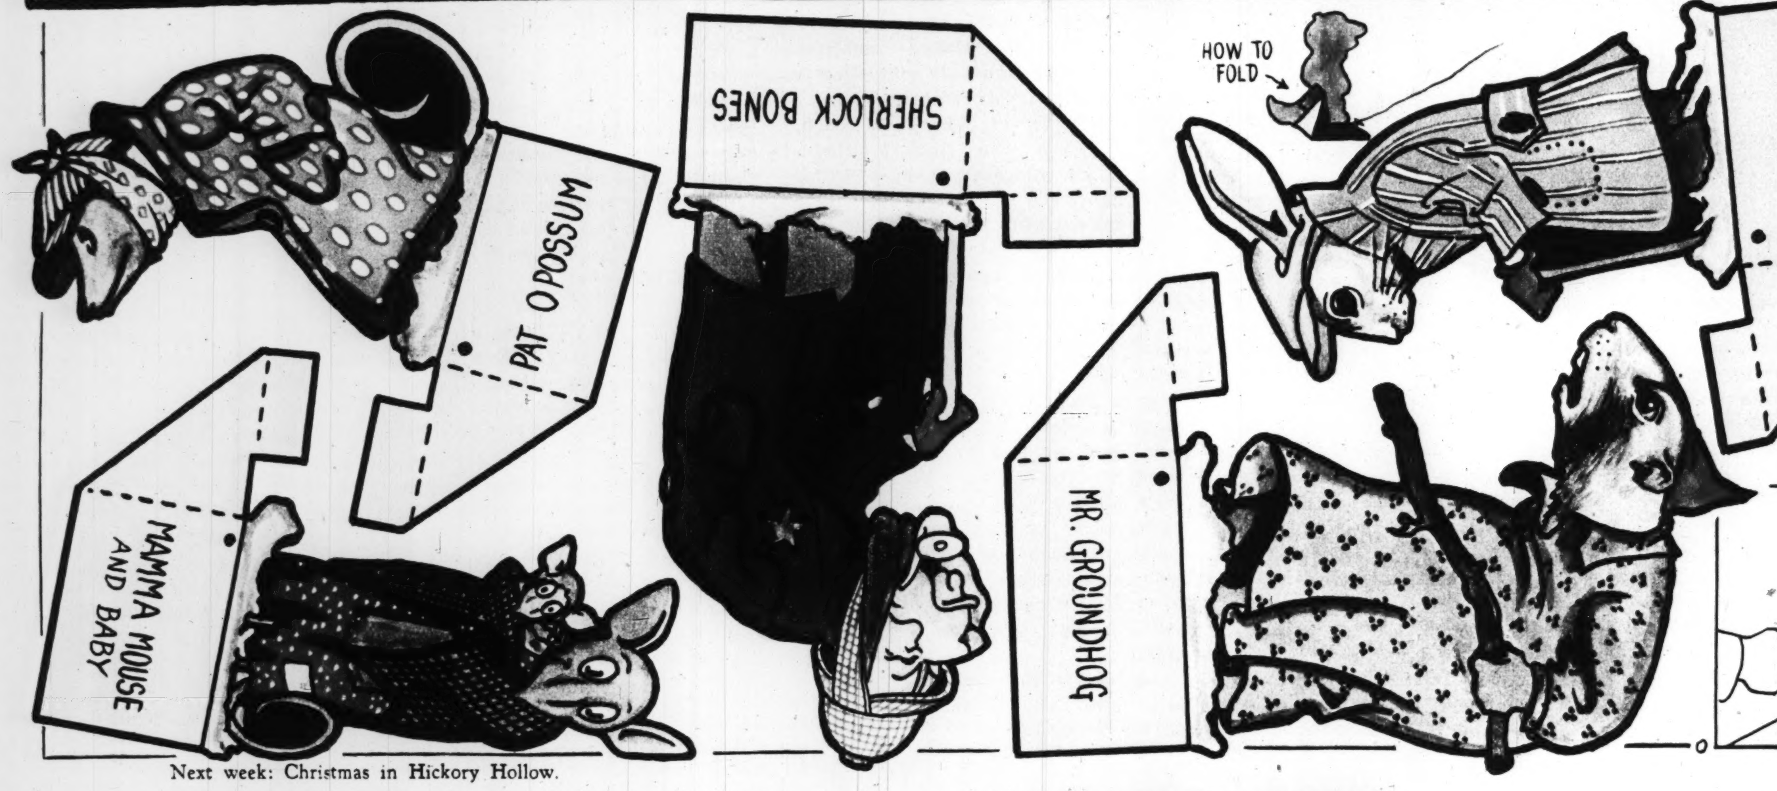
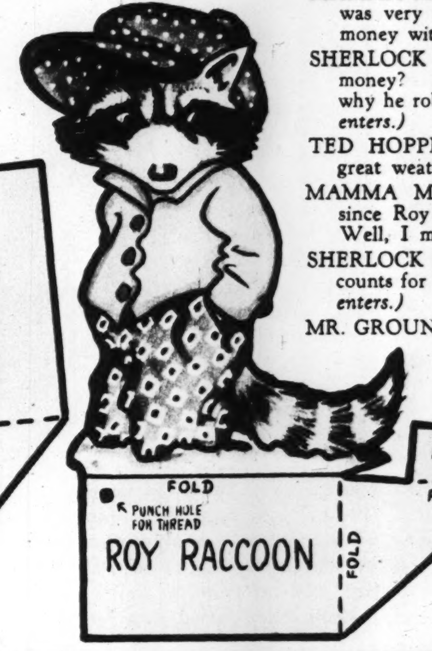
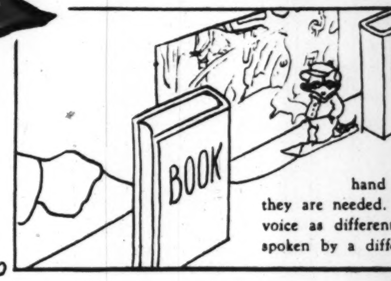
CURTAIN





Next week: Christmas in Hickory Hollow.



DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

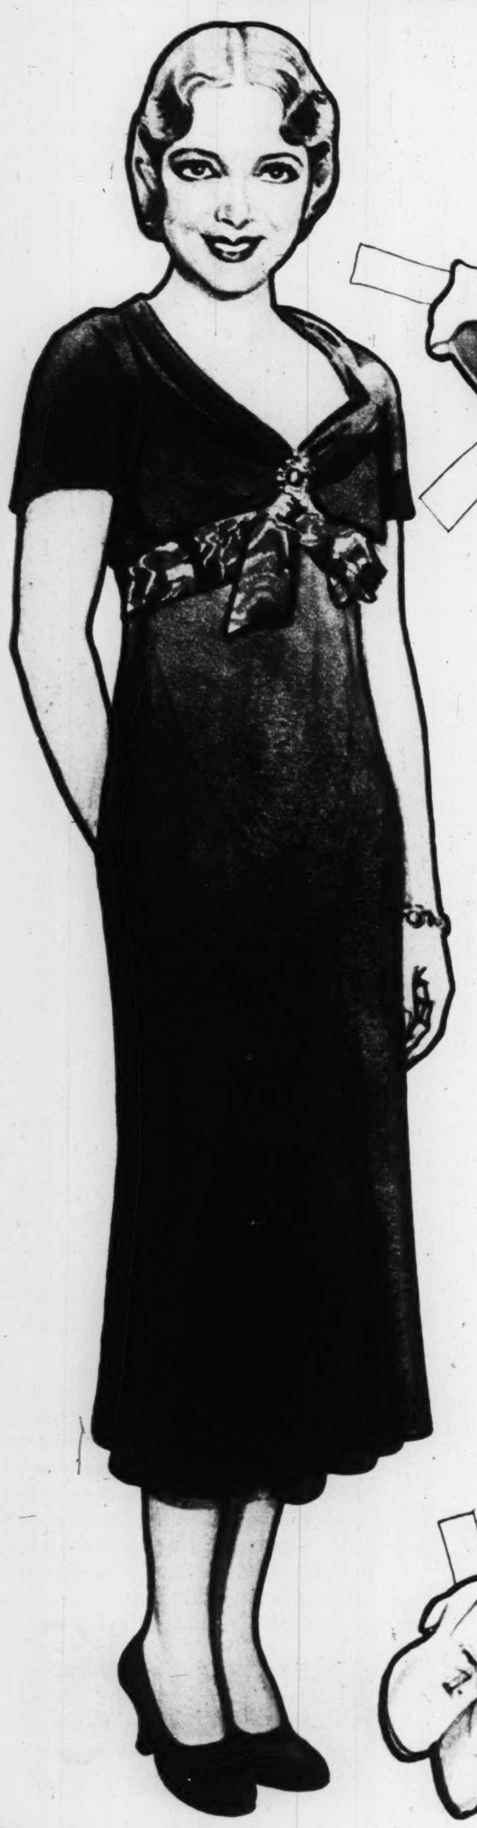
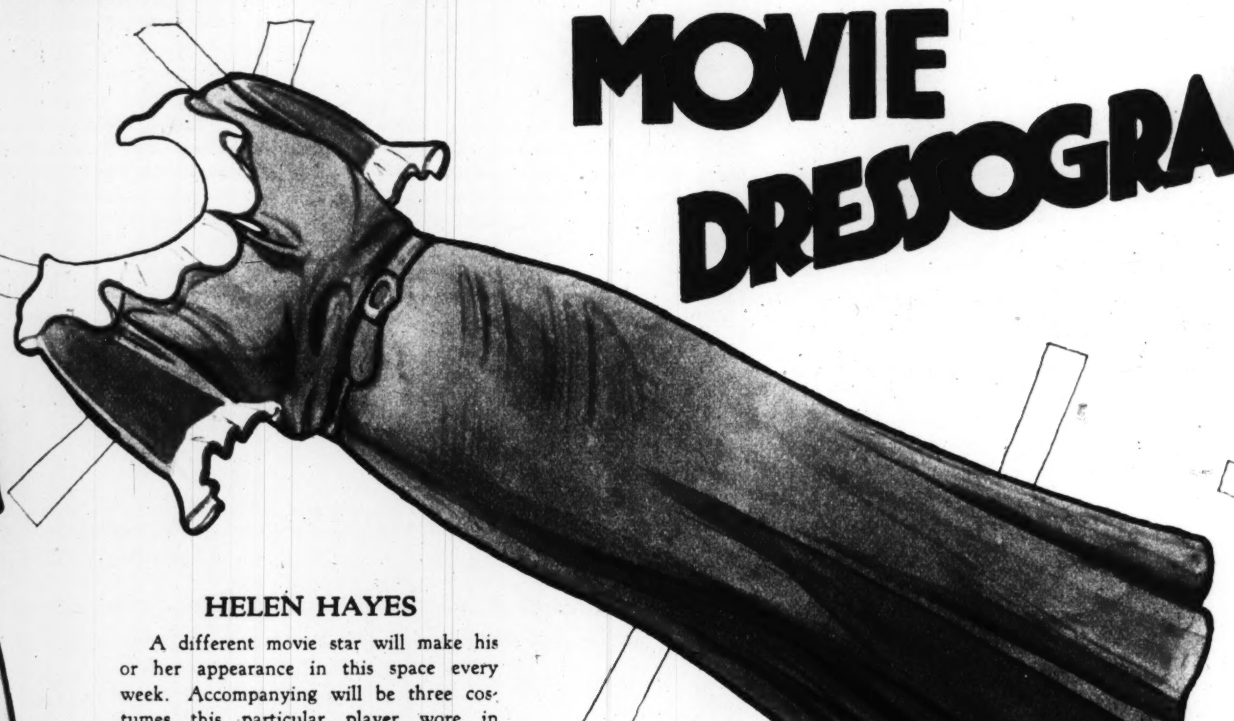
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS





HELEN HAYES

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen.

Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in her proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

Madelon Claudet in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," in which role she won the award of the Academy for Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best performance of any actress for the 1931-32 season; Catherine Barkley in "A Farewell to Arms," and Leora Arrowsmith in "Arrowsmith."

Next week: Dickie Moore.

A WAY TO GET THOSE PAST DUE BILLS MARKED "PAID"

Have you the problem of meeting "past due" bills with a shrunken income? Are creditors insisting that "something must be done?"

Every day such emergencies are met with loans obtained on a Plan offered by Household, America's foremost family finance organization.

On the Household Plan husbands and wives may borrow $300 or less without stocks, bonds, or real estate for collateral; without even the need of a co-signer.

The money is available to families, keeping house, who can make small repayments regularly each month as they work their way out of debt. Bills can be paid at once and, with the pressure relieved, home budgets can be adjusted to new conditions.

Household, where desired, is ready to give helpful suggestions and the counsel of experts in home economics to make dollars go farther, ideas that will help you make ends meet from now on. This service is offered without cost, whether or not you borrow.

If you live within a reasonable distance of one of the 148 Household offices (those in this locality are listed below) you are invited to call, 'phone, or write for full information. Ask particularly for the booklets, "The Household Loan Plan," "Money Management," and "Safe Food Economy." There is no cost or obligation.
